1 Then the HIGH-PRIEST

† 2. It seems probable that Stephen here followed the Jewish tradition, (adopted by Philo,) that God appeared twice to Abraham,—1st, when living in Chaldea, and 2dly, when resident in Haran. He left Ur at the first call, and came to Haran with his father Terah, (Gen. xi. 31; ) he left Haran at the second call, and came into the promised land. In this way the account harmonizes with the call as narrated in Gen. xii. 1: "Now the Lord had said unto Abraham," &c. † 4. By recurring to Gen. xi. 26, 32, and xii. 4, it will appear that Terah lived 60 years after the removal of Abraham, and yet here he is said to have died before Abraham left Haran. Unless with some we suppose Abraham to have been the youngest of Terah's sons, and born when his father was 130 years old we must presume that Stephen followed some traditionary account of the transaction.—Overs. The Samaritan copy makes the age of Terah at his death to be 143, or 60 years less than the Hebrew text.

† 14. It states in Gen. xli. 26, "All the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his loins, besides Jacob's sons' wives, all the souls were three score and six." Stephen adds to this number nine of Jacob's sons' wives, which makes the number of seventy-five. These though not of his blood, were of his kindred, as Stephen expresses it, being related to him by marriage. † 16. In Gen. l. 13, it is stated, "that Jacob was buried in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre;" and in Josh. xxiv. 32, that Joseph was buried in Shechem; and here we have the authority of Stephen that the rest of the twelve patriarchs were interred in the same place. † 16. The best critics are of the opinion that Abraham, as found in the text, is spurious, and has been inserted by some officious transcriber. The word Jacob ought to be supplied.

CHAPTER V.

1 And a certain Man, Ananias by name with Sapphira his WIFE, sold an Estate,

2 and appropriated a part of the PRICE, his WIFE also knowing of it; and having brought a certain part, I laid it at the FEET of the APOSTLES.

3 But Peter said, "Ananias, why has the ADVERSARY filled thine HEART to deceive the HOLY SPIRIT, and to appropriate a part of the PRICE of the LAND?"

4 While remaining unsold was it not thine? and when sold, was it not at thine own disposal? Why is it that thou hast admitted this thing into thine HEART? Thou hast not lied to Men, but to GOD."

5 And ANANIAS, having heard these WORDS, fell down, and expired. And great Fear came on all those who HEARD these things.

6 Then the YOUNGER disciples arising, wrapped him up, and carrying him out, buried him.

7 And it occurred after an interval of about three Hours, his WIFE also came in, not knowing WHAT had been DONE.

8 And Peter answered her, "Tell me whether you sold the LAND for so much?" and SHE said, "Yes, for so much."

9 And Peter said to her, "Why have you agreed together to try the SPIRIT of the Lord? Behold, the FEET of those who have been BURYING thy HUSBAND are at the DOOR, and they will carry thee out."

CHAPTER VII.

1 Then the HIGH-PRIEST said, "Are these things so?"
 2 And he said, "Brethren and Fathers, hearken! The GLORIOUS GOD appeared † to our FATHER Abraham, when in MESOPOTAMIA, before he resided in Haran,
 3 and said to him, † 'Depart from thy COUNTRY, and from thy KINDEED, and come into *the LAND which I will show thee.'
 4 Then † going out from the Land of the Chaldeans, he dwelt in Haran; from thence also, † after the DEATH of his FATHER, he removed him into this LAND in which you now dwell;
 5 and gave him † no INHERITANCE in it, not even the breadth of his Foot; † but he promised to give it to him for a Possession, and to his SEED after him, though he had no Child.
 6 And GOD spoke thus, † 'That his SEED should be a Stranger in a foreign Land; and that they will enslave and oppress it † four hundred years;
 7 and the NATION to which they shall be enslaved; † I will judge,' said GOD, 'and after that, they shall come out and serve me in this PLACE.'
 8 † And he gave him a Covenant of Circumcision; † and thus he begot ISAAC, and circumcised him the * VATICAN MANUSCRIPT.—1. then—οὕτως. 2. the LAND.

† 2. It seems probable that Stephen here followed the Jewish tradition, (adopted by Philo,) that God appeared twice to Abraham,—1st, when living in Chaldea, and 2dly, when resident in Haran. He left Ur at the first call, and came to Haran with his father Terah, (Gen. xi. 31; he left Haran at the second call, and came into the promised land. In this way the account harmonizes with the call as narrated in Gen. xii. 1: "Now the Lord said unto Abraham," &c. † 4. By recurring to Gen. xi. 26, 32, and xii. 4, it will appear that Terah lived 60 years after the removal of Abraham, and yet here he is said to have died before Abraham left Haran. Unless with some we suppose Abraham to have been the youngest of Terah's sons, and born when his father was 130 years old we must presume that Stephen followed some traditionary account of the transaction.—Owen. The Samaritan copy makes the age of Terah at his death to be 145, or 60 years less than the Hebrew text.

 † 14. It states in Gen. xli. 26, "All the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his loins, besides Jacob's sons' wives, all the souls were three score and six." Stephen adds to this number nine of Jacob's sons' wives, which makes the number of seventy-five. These though not of his blood, were of his kindred, as Stephen expresses it, being related to him by marriage. † 16. In Gen. l. 13, it is stated, "that Jacob was buried in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre;" and in Josh. xxiv. 32, that Joseph was buried in Shechem; and here we have the authority of Stephen that the rest of the twelve patriarchs were interred in the same place. † 16. The best critics are of the opinion that Abraham, as found in the text, is spurious, and has been inserted by some officious transcriber. The word Jacob ought to be supplied.

11 Then they bribed Men to say, "We have heard him speak blasphemous Words against Moses and GOD."

12 And they excited the PEOPLE, and the ELDERS, and the SCRIBES; and com- ing suddenly, they seized him, and led him into the SANHEDRIM;

13 and introduced false Witnesses, saying, "This MAN is incessantly speak- ing against the HOLY PLACE, and the LAW;

14 † for we have heard him say, That this Jesus, the NAZARENE, † will des- troy this PLACE, and will change the CUSTOMS which Moses delivered to us."

15 And ALL those BEING SEATED in the SANHEDRIM, looking steadily at him, saw his FACE like the FACE of an Angel.

† 7. The number of the priests must have been quite large about this time, as it appears from Ezra ii. 36-39, that 4289 priests returned from the captivity. † 9. These persons seem to have been Jews, who having been carried captive to Rome, were freed by their masters, and thus became freed-men. Some think they received their name from the place where they lived.—Owen.

 2 And he said, † "Brethren and Fathers, hearken! The GLORIOUS GOD appeared † to our FATHER Abraham, when in MESOPOTAMIA, before he resided in Haran,

 7 and the NATION to which they shall be enslaved † I will judge," said GOD, "and after that, they shall come out and serve me in this PLACE."

* VATICAN MANUSCRIPT.—1. then—omit. 3. the LAND.

† 3. It seems probable that Stephen here followed the Jewish tradition, (adopted by Philo,) that God appeared twice to Abraham,—1st, when living in Chalde, and 2dly, when resident in Haran. He left it at the first call, and came to Haran with his father Terah, (Gen. xi. 31;) he left Haran at the second call, and came into the promised land. In this way the account harmonizes with the call as narrated in Gen. xii. 1: "Now the Lord had said unto Abraham," &c.
 † 4. By recurring to Gen. xi. 26, 32, and xii. 4, it will appear that Terah lived 91 years after the removal of Abraham, and yet here he is said to have died before Abraham left Haran. Unless with some we suppose Abraham to have been the youngest of Terah's sons, and born when his father was 130 years old we must presume that Stephen followed some traditional account of the transaction.—Owen. The Samaritan copy makes the age of Terah at his death to be 143, or 60 years less than the Hebrew text.

† 14. It states In Gen. xvi. 26, "All the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his loins, besides Jacob's sons' wives, all the souls were three score and six." Stephen adds to this number nine of Jacob's sons' wives, which makes the number of seventy-five. These though not of his blood, were of his kindred, as Stephen expresses it, being related to him by marriage. † 16. In Gen. 1. 13, it is stated, "that Jacob was buried in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre;" and in Josh. xxiv. 32, that Joseph was buried in Shechem; and here we have the authority of Stephen that the rest of the twelve patriarchs were interred in the same place. † 16. The best critics are of the opinion that Abraham, as found in the text, is a surplus, and has been inserted by some officious transcriber. The word Jacob ought to be supplied.

† 20. A difficulty occurs here which has very much puzzled Biblical chronologists. The date given here is at variance with the statement found in 1 Kings vi. 1. There have been many solutions offered, but only one which seems entirely satisfactory, i. e., that the text in 1 Kings vi. 1, has been corrupted, by substituting the Hebrew character daleth (ד) for lame (ל) which is very similar in form. This would make 580 years (instead of 480) from the exode to the building of the temple, and exactly agree with Paul's chronology.

† 28. The Common Version and Vatican MS. have been followed in the above rendering.
 Griesbach, and nearly all modern editors, read "Church of the Lord." The phrase ecclesia for Kyrios nowhere occurs in the New Testament, while ecclesia for theos occurs about ten times in Paul's epistles. There are no less than six different readings of this phrase in the MSS., which have probably arisen from a presumed difficulty in understanding it in connection with the latter part of the sentence—"purchased with his own blood." But read it as it stands in the original, and it still makes good sense, without rejecting the reading of the most ancient MS. and some of the oldest Pesbito Syriac copies. The reader can supply the elliptical word after own, whether it be Son, or Lamb, or Sacrifice. Thus, "feed the church of God, which he acquired by the blood of his own [Son].

 † 26. The title Kyrios, Lord, both Augustus and Tiberius had absolutely refused; and forbid, even by public edicts, the application of it to themselves. Tiberius himself was accustomed to say, that he was lord of his slaves, emperor of the troops, and prince of the senate. See Suetonius, in his life of this prince. The succeeding emperors were not so modest; they affected the title. Nero, the emperor, would have it; and Pliny the younger is continually giving it to Trajan, in his letters.—Clarke.

that to be him a father of all of those believing

1 What, then, shall we say of † Abraham, our * FATHER according to the Flesh?

2 For if Abraham was † justified by Works, he has a ground of boasting; but not before GOD;

3 For what says the SCRIPTURE? † "And Abraham believed GOD, and "it was accounted to him "for Righteousness."

4 † NOW to HIM who WORKS, the REWARD is not accounted as a Favor, but as a Debt;

5 but to HIM who does not WORK, but who believes on HIM who JUSTIFIES † the UNGODLY, his FAITH is accounted for Righteousness.

6 Even as David also speaks of the BLESSEDNESS of the MAN to whom GOD accounts Righteousness apart from Works,

7 saying: † "Happy are "they. Whose INIQUITIES "are forgiven, and Whose "sins are covered;

8 "happy is the Man "to whom the Lord will "not account Sin."

9 Is this BLESSEDNESS, THEN, on the CIRCUMCISION? or also on the UNCIRCUMCISION? for we affirm, FAITH was accounted to ABRAHAM for Righteousness,

10 How then was it accounted? When he was in Circumcision, or in Uncircumcision? Not in Circumcision, but in Uncircumcision:

11 And † he received the Symbol of Circumcision, as a Seal of the RIGHTEOUSNESS of THAT FAITH which he had while in UNCIRCUMCISION; in order that he might be the Father of All uncircum-

 ΚΕΦ. 6. Ὁ. <sup>1</sup> Τι οὖν ἐροῦμεν; ἐπιμενωμεν
 What then shall we say? ought we to continue τῆ ἁμαρτία, ἵνα ἡ χάρις πλεονασῆ; <sup>2</sup> Μη in the sin, so that the favor may abound? Not

15 But not as the FALL,
 so is the GRACIOUS GIFT.
 For if by the FALL of the ONE, the MANY died, much more the FAVOR of GOD, even THAT GRACIOUS GIFT
 by the ONE Man, Jesus Christ, abounded to the MANY.

16 And not as through
 One having sinned, is the FREE GIFT. For indeed the SENTENCE was from One to Condemnation; but the GRACIOUS GIFT is from Many Offences to Righteousness.

17 Besides, if by the FALL of the ONE, DEATH reigned through that ONE;
 much more will THOSE HAVING RECEIVED the ABUNDANCE of the FAVOR and the RIGHTEOUSNESS reign in Life through the ONE—the * Anointed Jesus.

18 Therefore, indeed, as through One Offence, sentence came on All Men to Condemnation; so also, through One Righteous act, sentence came on All Men to Justification of Life.

19 For as through the DISOBEDIENCE of ONE Man, the MANY were constituted Sinners, so even through the OBEEDIENCE of the ONE, the MANY will be constituted Righteous.

20 And Law supervened, so that the OFFENCE might abound; but where SIN abounded, FAVOR super-abounded;

21 that as SIN reigned by DEATH, so also FAVOR might reign through Righteousness for aionian Life, through the * Anointed Je-through THAT holy Spirit which has been GIVEN to us.

6 * Besides we being yet helpless, Christ at the prothe Ungodly.

7 Now scarcely on behalf of a Just person will any one die, though, possibly, on behalf of the GOOD, some one might even venture to die.

8 † But * GOD recommends HIS OWN Love to us, because we being yet Sinners, Christ died on our behalf.

9 By much more, then, having been now justified † by his BLOOD, we shall, through him, be saved from WRATH.

10 For if, being Enemies, † we were reconciled to GOD through the DEATH of his SON, by how much more, having become reconciled, shall we be saved † by his LIFE?

11 And not only so, but we even boast in GOD through our LORD Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received the RE-CONCILIATION;

12 for this reason,—as † through One Man SIN entered into the WORLD, (in whom all sinned,) and through SIN, † DEATH; so also, DEATH passed upon All Men.

13 For till the Law, Sin was in the World, but † Sin is not accounted where there is no Law.

14 DEATH, however, reigned from Adam till Moses, even over THOSE who had not SINNED in the

 in the sin, so that the favor may abound? Not

15 But not as the FALL, so is the GRACIOUS GIFT. For if by the FALL of the ONE, the MANY died, much more the FAVOR of GOD, even THAT GRACIOUS GIFT by the ONE Man, Jesus Christ, abounded to the MANY.

16 And not as through One having sinned, is the FREE GIFT. For indeed the SENTENCE was from One to Condemnation; but the GRACIOUS GIFT is from Many Offences to Righteousness.

17 Besides, if by the FALL of the ONE, DEATH reigned through that ONE; much more will THOSE HAVING RECEIVED the ABUNDANCE of the FAVOR and the RIGHTEOUSNESS reign in Life through the ONE—the * Anointed Jesus.

18 Therefore, indeed, as through One Offence, sentence came on All Men to Condemnation; so also, through One Righteous act, sentence came on All Men to Justification of Life.

19 For as through the DISOBEDIENCE of ONE Man, the MANY were constituted Sinners, so even through the OBEEDIENCE of the ONE, the MANY will be constituted Righteous.

20 And Law supervened, so that the OFFENCE might abound; but where SIN abounded; FAVOR superabounded;

4 We have therefore been entombed with him by the IMMERSION into that DEATH; that as Christ was raised from the Dead by the GLORY of the FATHER, so also for should walk in a New Life.

5 For if we have been planted together in the LIKENESS of his DEATH, certainly we shall be also in that of his RESURRECTION;

YOUR FRUIT in Sanctification, and the END eternal Life.
 23 For † the WAGES of SIN is Death; † but the GRACIOUS GIFT of GOD is eternal Life, by the Anoint-ed Jesus, our LORD.

CHAPTER VII.

1 Are you ignorant, Brethren, (for I am speaking to those who are acquainted with Law,) that the LAW controls a MAN for as long a Time as he lives?
 2 Hence † the MARRIED Woman is bound by LAW to the LIVING Husband;
 but if the HUSBAND die,
 she is released from the LAW of the HUSBAND.
 3 So then, † while the HUSBAND is living, she will be declared an Adulteress, if she belong to another Man; but if the HUSBAND die, she is free from the LAW; so that she is not an Adulteress, though she belong to another Man.
 4 Therefore, my Brethren, you also were † put to death by the LAW, through the BODY of the ANOINTED one, in order that you may BELONG to another,—to HIM who was RAISED from the Dead, that we should † bring forth fruit to GOD.
 5 For when we were in the FLESH, those SINFUL PASSIONS, which were through the LAW, † worked in OUR MEMBERS † to BRING FORTH FRUIT to DEATH.
 6 But now, having died,
 we are released from the LAW, by which we were held; so that we may serve † in Newness of Spirit, and not in Oldness of Letter.
 7 What then shall we say? Is the LAW Sin? By no means. Indeed, † I did not know sin except through Law; for even strong desire I had not known, if the LAW had not said, † "Thou shalt not covet."

8 But SIN having taken Opportunity, through the COMMANDMENT, worked in me All Strong desire. † Apart from Law, however, Sin is dead;

9 and I was formerly living apart from Law; but the COMMANDMENT having come, SIN lived again, and I died;

10 and THAT COMMANDMENT intended † for Life, the same was found by me for Death.

11 For SIN having taken Opportunity, through the COMMANDMENT, deceived me, and through it killed me.

12 And so the † LAW indeed is holy, and the COMMANDMENT holy, and just, and good.

13 That good thing, then, has become Death to me? By no means, but SIN has; that SIN might be manifest, through that good thing producing Death to me; so that SIN, through the COMMANDMENT, might become an exceedingly great Sinner.

14 Besides, we know That the LAW is spiritual; but I am fleshly, † having been sold under SIN.

15 For what I work out, I do not approve; since I do not practise † what I desire; but what I hate, this I do.

16 But if what I desire not, this I do, I assent to the LAW, That it is excellent;

So then, brethren, debtors we are not to the σαρκι, του κατα σαρκα ζην. <sup>13</sup> Εἰ γαρ

3 For [what was IM-POSSIBLE for the LAW, in that it was weak through the FLESH, † GOD, having sent his OWN Son in a Form of the Flesh of Sin, even [by an offering] for Sin, condemned SIN in the FLESH;

4 so that the RIGHT-EOUSNESS of the LAW may be fulfilled by us, who are WALKING, not according to FLESH, but according to Spirit.

5 For † THOSE who LIVE according to FLESH, are minding the THINGS of the FLESH; but THOSE who live according to Spirit, † the THINGS of the SPIRIT.

6 † For the MIND of the FLESH is Death; but the MIND of the SPIRIT is Life and Peace.

7 Because the MIND of the FLESH is † ENMITY to God; for to the LAW of GOD it is not subject;
 † nor, indeed, can it be.

8 THOSE, then, who ARE in a Sensual state, are unable to please God:

9 But you are not Sensual, but Spiritual, because † the Spirit of God dwells in you. But if any one possess not † the Spirit of Christ, he is not of Him.

10 And if Christ be in you, the BODY indeed is dead as to Sin: but the SPIRIT is Life as to Righteousness.

11 And if the SPIRIT of † HIM who RAISED Jesus from the Dead dwell in you, † HE who RAISED * Christ from the Dead, will also make alive your MORTAL Bodies, through the INDWELLING of his Spirit within you.

12 † So then, Brethren, we are not Debtors to the FLESH, to live according to the Flesh.

That the brute and inanimate creation is not here spoken of, but mankind, is evident from the hope of emancipation from the "SLAVERY of CORRUPTION" held out in the 21st verse, and the contrast introduced in the 23rd verse, between the ktisis and those "possessing the FIRST-FRUIT of the SPIRIT."

CHAPTER X.

1 Indeed, Brethren, the GOOD DESIRE OF MY HEART, and THAT PRAYER I offer
 to GOD on their behalf is,
 for their Salvation.

2 For I testify to them,
 That they possess † a Zeal
 for God, but not according to Knowledge.

3 For being ignorant of
 † the RIGHTEOUSNESS OF GOD, and seeking to establish † their own, they were not submissive to the
 RIGHTEOUSNESS OF GOD;

4 since † Christ is the End of the Law for Righteousness to every one BEL-IEVING.

5 For Moses writes of
 THAT RIGHTEOUSNESS
 which is from the * Law,
 † "That the MAN PER-FORMING these things
 shall live by them."

6 But the RIGHTEOUS-

 speaks;—"Say not in

 "ascend INTO HEAVEN?"
 that is, to bring Christ
 down;

7 or, † "Who shall de-

 that is, to bring LACK Christ from the Dead.

8 But what does it say?
 † "The word is near thee,

1 I say then, † Did God put away his own PEOPLE? By no means; for even † I am an Israelite of the Seed of Abraham, of the Tribe of Benjamin.

CHAPTER X.

1 Indeed, Brethren, the GOOD DESIRE of MY HEART, and THAT PRAYER I offer
 to GOD on their behalf is,
 for their Salvation.

2 For I testify to them,
 That they possess † a Zeal
 for God, but not according to Knowledge.

3 For being ignorant of
 † the RIGHTEOUSNESS of GOD, and seeking to establish † their own, they were not submissive to the
 RIGHTEOUSNESS of GOD;

4 since † Christ is the End of the Law for Righteousness to every one BEL-IEVING.

5 For Moses writes of
 THAT RIGHTEOUSNESS
 which is from the * Law,
 † "That the MAN PER-FORMING these things
 "shall live by them."

6 But the RIGHTEOUSness from Faith thus speaks;—"Say not in
 "thine HEART; † Who shall
 "ascend into HEAVEN?"
 that is, to bring Christ
 down;

7 or, † "Who shall descend into the ABYSS?"
 that is, to bring back
 Christ from the Dead.

8 But what does it say?
 † "The word is near thee,
 "in thy MOUTH, and in thy
 "HEART;" that is, the word of FAITH which we publish;

9 that, † if thou wilt * openly confess with thy MOUTH That Jesus is Lord, and wilt believe with thy HEART That GOD raised Him from the Dead, thou shalt be saved.

11 Hence the SCRIPTURE says, † "EVERY ONE " BELIEVING ON HIM SHALL " NOT BE ASHAMED."

12 ‡ For there is no Distinction either of Jew or of Greek; since the SAME Lord of all is rich towards ALL THOSE CALLING UPON HIM.

13 † For "every one " who may invoke the " NAME OF THE LORD SHALL " BE SAVED "

16 But all did not obey the GLAD TIDINGS; for Isaiah says, † "Lord, who " BELIEVED OUR REPORT?"

17 So then FAITH comes from a Report, and the REPORT through the Word of * God.

18 But I say, Did they not hear? Yes, indeed; † "their SOUND went out " INTO ALL THE LAND, and " their WORDS TO THE EX- " TREMITIES OF THE HABI- " TABLE."

† 5. The common version reads of Achaia; but the best MSS. have Asia. In 1 Cor. xvi. 15, the house of Stephanas is said to be "the first fruits of Achaia." Sharpe in his Notes on this passage says:—"This is an important change, as helping to prove that the persons here greeted dwelt in Ephesus, where the apostle had numerous friends, and not in Rome, where he was unknown. Thus Prisca and Aquilas in particular dwelt in Ephesus; and it seems not improbable that this chapter, together, perhaps, with xi. 1-xv. 7, formed part of an epistle to the Ephesians; which by a mistake of the editor has been added on at the end of the epistle to the Romans. This remark is not a little supported by those MSS. which say that the epistle now titled as to the Ephesians was written not to that church, but to the Laodiceans."

Christ, † that you all speak the SAME thing, and that there may be no Divisions among you; but that you may be knit together in the SAME Mind and in the SAME Sentiment.

11 For it has been declared to me, my Brethren, by THOSE of the family of Chloe, That there are Contentions among you.

12 And this I say, † Because each one of you says, "I, indeed, am of Paul," but, "I of † Apollus, and, "I of † Cephas," and, "I of Christ."

13 Has the ANOINTED one been divided? Was Paul crucified on your behalf? or were you immersed into the NAME of Paul?

20 Let each one remain in that VOCATION in which he was called.

21 Wast thou invited when a Slave? Let it not give thee concern; (but if, indeed, thou art able to become free, prefer it.)

22 For the Slave BEING CALLED by the Lord, is †the Lord's freedman; in like manner the FREEMAN being called is †Christ's Bond-servant.

23 †Have you been bought with a Price? Become not the Slaves of Men.

24 Brethren, †let each one remain with God in that vocation in which he was called.

25 And concerning the †VIRGINS, I have not †a Commandment of the Lord, but I give my Judgment, as †having received mercy from the Lord †to be faithful.

26 I declare this to be well, then, on account of the PRESENT Distress; Because it is well for a Man to be thus;—

27 Art thou bound to a Wife? seek not a Release. Art thou loosed from a Wife? seek not a Wife.

28 But even if thou shouldst marry, thou dost not sin; and if * a Virgin should marry, she does not sin; but Affliction in the FLESH SUCH will have;—however, † spare you.

However, there are different views entertained by critics on the whole of this difficult passage; some referring it to the power of fathers over their daughters; others to the young women dedicated to the service of God in the primitive church, who were called virgins; and others again to young men, who had renounced matrimony, and devoted themselves to the Lord. The latter view has been adopted in the text.

† 10. Benson, gives it as his opinion, that because the Hebrew word radid, (which comes from the word radad, to have power,) signifies a veil, the apostle uses the word exousia, authority, to denote a veil, because the Hebrew women veiled themselves in presence of the men, in token of their being under their power or authority. The veil used by the Eastern women was so large as to cover a great part of their body. Ruth's veil he'd six measures of barley. Ruth iii. 15. A veil of this sort, called a plaid, was worn not long ago by the women of Scotland.—Macknight. Power seems to have been the name of the head-dress; so called, perhaps, because, like a diadem or turban, it was sometimes a mark of rank.—Sharpe.

CHAPTER XV.

1 Now I make known to you, Brethren, the GLAD TIDINGS † which I evangelized to you, and which you received; in which also you have stood, † and through which you are being saved, if you retain a certain Word I evangelized to you; † unless, indeed, you believed inconsiderately.

 7 After that, he was seen by James; then, † by all the APOSTLES;
 8 and, † last of all, he was seen by me also, as if by the ONE PREMATURELY BORN;
 9 for I am † the LEAST of the APOSTLES, who am not worthy to be called an Apostle, † because I persecuted the CHURCH of GOD.

† 29. Clarke, after saying that this is the most difficult passage in the New Testament and quoting Matt. xx. 28; Mark x. 38; and Luke xli. 50, where sufferings and martyrdoms are represented by immersion, he sums up the apostle's meaning as follows:—"If there be no resurrection of the dead, those who, in becoming Christians, expose themselves to all manner of privations, crosses, severe sufferings, and a violent death, can have no reward, nor any motive sufficient to induce them to expose themselves to such miseries. But as they receive baptism as an emblem of death, in voluntarily going under water; so they receive it as an emblem of the resurrection unto eternal life, in coming up out of the water; thus they are baptized for the dead, in perfect faith of the resurrection. The three following verses seem to confirm this sense." † 31. Or, that Every Day I am exposed to death.

 may be for the of you want, so that may be pected, but they gave themselves first to the LORD, and to us, through the Will of God;

so that we DESIRED Titus, that as he had previously began so also he would finish this GIFT among you.

7 But as you abound in every thing,—in Faith, and in Word, and in Knowledge, and in All Earnestness, and in YOUR Love to us, see that you abound in THIS FREE GIFT also.

8 I do not speak this by Commandment, but through the EARNESTNESS of OTHERS, I am testing also the REALITY of YOUR Love.

9 For you know the FAVOR of our LORD Jesus, that being rich, yet on your account he was made poor, so that, by HIS Poverty, you might be enriched.

10 And in this I give an Opinion; for this is beneficial for you, who, previously began not only to DO, but also to be WILLING, since the last Year.

11 At present, therefore, finish the DOING also, that according to the PROMPTITUDE to WILL, so also may be the accomplishment, according to ABILITY.

12 If for if READINESS OF MIND be present, one is acceptable according to what he may have, and not according to what he has not.

13 Not, however, that to others may be relief, and to you distress.

15 even as it has been written, † " HE who had "MUCH, had no surplus; " and HE who had LITTLE, "had no deficiency."

16 But Thanks be to THAT GOD who has PUT into the HEART of Titus, the Same Earnestness on your behalf;

17 † because he received, indeed, the EXHORTATION; but being very earnest, he went away of his own accord to you.

18 And we sent with him † the BROTHER, whose PRAISE by the GLAD TIDINGS is throughout all of the CONGREGATIONS;

19 and not only so, but † also he has been voted by the CONGREGATIONS our Fellow-traveler with this GIFT, which is BEING DISPENSED by us for † the Glory of the LORD, and of our Earnestness;

21 † for we are purposing excellent things, not only in the presence of the Lord, but also in the presence of Men.

22 And we have sent with them our BROTHER, (whom we have often found diligent in many things, but now much more diligent) because of THAT great Confidence reposed in you.

23 And if any inquire respecting Titus, he is my Partner and Fellow-laborer for you; or concerning our Brethren, they are the Delegates of the CONGREGATIONS, and the † Glory of Christ.

CHAPTER IX.

<sup>1</sup> For, indeed, concerning † THAT SERVICE which is for the SAINTS it is superfluous for me to WRITE to you;

<sup>2</sup> for I know † your

<sup>5</sup> I thought it necessary, therefore, to exhort the BRETHREN, to go on before to you, and to first make ready this PREVI-OUSLY ANNOUNCED GIFT of yours, that thus it may be ready as a GIFT, and not as an Extortion.

<sup>6</sup> But thus I say, † HE who sows sparingly, will also reap sparingly; and HE who sows bountifully, will reap also bountifully;

<sup>7</sup> even as each one purposes in his HEART, † not from Grief, or from Necess-

CHAPTER XII.

1 Is it necessary to boast? it is not profitable indeed, but I will come even to Visions and Revelations of the Lord.

2 I know a Man, in Christ, who above fourteen Years since—(whether with a Body, I know not; or without a Body, I know not; God knows;)—such a one suddenly conveyed away to the Third Heaven.

3 And I know this very Man, (whether with a Body, or without the Body, I know not; God knows;)

4 That he was suddenly conveyed away into Paradise, and heard indescribable things spoken, which it is not possible for a Man to relate.

5 Respecting such a person I will boast; but respecting myself I will not boast, unless in my Weaknesses.

6 For if I should desire to boast, I shall not be Unwise; for I will speak the Truth; but I forbear, lest any one should impute to Me more than what he sees me to be, or what he hears from me.

7 And in order that I might not be unduly elated by the Transcendancy of the Revelations, a Thorn in the Flesh was given to me—I an Angel-adversary—that it might afflict me; so that I should not be too much exalted.

8 Concerning this, I entreated the Lord three times, that it might be removed from me;

9 but he said to me, "My Favor is sufficient for thee; for Power is perfected in Weakness." Most gladly, then, I will boast rather in Weaknesses, so that the Power of the Anointed may abide upon Me.

† 1. Some think that the time specified in this verse, was when the apostle went to Jerusalem about the question of circumcision, Acts xv. 4, &c. There is a difficulty in determining the exact chronology of this visit to Jerusalem, though this was probably the time, as the apostle says he went up by revelation, and therefore it must have been on important business. Some contend, however, that the journey alluded to was the one mentioned in Acts xi. 27, when the congregation at Antioch sent Barnabas and Saul with relief to the poor Christians in Judea, but this would not allow sufficient time for the fourteen years mentioned.

one; And to the seed of thee; who is Anointed.

17 Τουτο δε λεγω· διαθηκην προκεκυρωμενην
This but I say; a covenant previously ratified υπο του θεου * [εις Χριστον,] ο μετα τετρακοby the God [concerning Anointed,] that after four hun-null, so as the to have canceled the promise; if γαρ εκ νομου η κληρονομια, ουκετι εξ επαγγεfor by law the inheritance, no longer by promise;

λιας· τω δε Αβρααμ δι' επαγγελιας κεχαρισ-to the but Abraam through promise has freely

ται ο θεος. 19 Τι ουν ο νομος. Των παραβαthe seed, to whom it has been promised,) having been instituted δι' αγγελων, εν χειρι μεσιτου. 20· Ο δε by means of messengers, in hand of a mediator. The but μεσιτης ενος ουκ εστιν· ο δε θεος εις εστιν.

mediator of one not he is; the but God one is.

12 Now the LAW is not of Faith; but † "ΠΕ ΠΑΥ-
"ING DONE these things
"shall live by them."

15 † Christ has redeemed US from the CURSE of the LAW, having become a Curse on our behalf; (for it has been written, † "EVERY ONE who is HANGED on a Tree is ac"cursed;")

14 Iso that the BLESS-ING of ABRAHAM might be for the NATIONS, by Christ Jesus; and that through the FAITH we might receive the ANNUNCIATION of the SPIRIT.

15 Brethren, I speak according to man;—no one sets aside or superadds conditions to † a ratified Compact, though human.

16 Now to ABRAAM were the PROMISES spoken, even for his SEED. He does not say, "And to the SEEDS," as concerning many; but as concerning one; † "And to thy "SEED,"—who is Christ.

17 Now this I affirm, that a Covenant-engagement previously ratified by GOD, the LAW, † issued Four hundred and Thirty Years afterwards does not annul, † so as to INVALIDATE the PROMISE;

18 for if the INHERITANCE be by LAW, † it is no longer by Promise; but GOD graciously gave it to ABRAHAM by Promise.

19 Why then the LAW? It was appointed on account of TRANSGRESSIONS, till † the SEED should come to whom the promise related; † having been instituted by means of Angels, in the hand of † a Mediator.

20 Of one party, however, he is not the MEDIA-TOR; † but GOD is one.

† 23. Grotius says, Sinai is called Hagar or Agar synecdochically, because in that mountain there was a city which bore Hagar's name. By Phny, it is called Agar; and by Diodorus Siculus, Agara; and its inhabitants were called Hagarænes. Psa. lxxxiii. 6. The later Greek writers likewise call them Agareni. Waitby thinks the allusion is taken from the meaning of Hagar, which in the Hebrew language signifies a rock; for so Sinai is sometimes called. Exod. x-xviii. 22.—Macknight. In Arabic it means a rock, or rocky mountain, and as Sinai is remarkably such, it might be called to agar, the rock.—Bloomfield.

cession for the FLESH; but through LOVE be you subservient to each other.

14 For the WHOLE Law is fully set forth in this Single Precept;— "Thou shalt love thy NEIGHBOR as thyself."

15 But if you bite and devour each other, beware lest you be consumed by each other.

16 Now I say, Walk by the Spirit, and fulfil not the Desire of the Flesh.

17 For the FLESH desires the contrary of the SPIRIT, and the SPIRIT the contrary of the FLESH; * for these are opposed to each other; † so that you do not perform the THINGS which you wish.

18 But if you be led by Spirit, you are not under Law.

20 Idolatry, Sorcery, Enmities, Quarrels, * Jealousies, Resentments, Altercations, Factions, Sects,

21 Envyings, Inebrieties, Revellings, and THINGS SIMILAR to these; respecting which I tell you before, even as I previously told you, † That THOSE who PRACTISE SUCH THINGS shall not inherit God's Kingdom.

22 But the FRUIT of the SPIRIT is Love, Joy, Peace, Forbearance, † Kindness, † Goodness, Fidelity, Meekness, Self-control;

23 against SUCH LIKE THINGS there is no LAW.

Brethren, if, even should be surprised a man in any fault, you the spiritual ones do you reinstatethe such like with a spirit of meekness; watching thyself, lest also thou shouldst be tempted. Of each other the burdens bear you, and thus fulfil you the law of the Anointed. If for thinks any one to be something, nothing being, himself he deceives

the but work of himself let him try [each one,] and then in himself alone the boasting he will have, and not in the other; each one, for the his own burden will bear. Let him communicate but the one being taught the word, to the one teaching, in all good things. Not do you mistake; God not is to be mocked at.

That for if may sow a man, this also he will reap;

because the one sowing for the flesh of himself, from the flesh he will reap corruption; the but one sowing for the spirit, from of the spirit he will reap life age-lasting.

Therefore, we should not flay in Doing well; for we shall reap, at the proper season, if we do not relax.

So then, as we have Opportunity, we should with the PASSIONS and DESIRES.

<sup>25</sup> If we live by Spirit, we should also walk by Spirit.

<sup>26</sup> We should not become Vain-glorious, provoking each other, envying each other.

CHAPTER VI.

1 Brethren, if a Man should be surprised by some Fault, do you, the SPIRITUAL, reinstate SUCH person with a Spirit of Meekness; watching thyself, lest thou also shouldst be tempted.

2 Bear you each other's BURDENS, and thus fulfil the LAW of the ANOINTED ONE.

3 For if any one think he is something, being nothing, he deceives himself;

4 but let him try his own WORK, and then he will have BOASTING in himself alone, and not in ANOTHER;

5 for each one shall bear his own Burden.

6 Let the person BEING TAUGHT the WORD, communicate to the INSTRUCTOR in All Good things.

7 Do not mistake; God is not to be derided. For whatever a Man may sow, this also he will reap;

8 because the one sowing for his FLESH, will from the FLESH reap Corruption; but the one sowing for the SPIRIT, will from the SPIRIT reap aionian Life.

9 Therefore, we should not flay in Doing WELL; for we shall reap, at the proper season, if we do not relax.

† 13. The Grecian armor consisted of two sorts,—Defensive and Offensive armor. The apostle selects from these the following, which he calls the panoply, or complete armor of God:—1. The Girdle, or Military Belt, used to brace the armor tight to the body, and cover the two parts of the breastplate where they joined; and to support daggers, short swords, &c. 2. The Breastplate consisted of two parts,—one reaching from the neck to the navel, and the other hanging from thence to the knees. 3. The Greaves, made of gold, silver, brass, or iron, designed to defend the front of the legs and feet. 4. The Helmet, made of various metals, and used to protect the head. 5. The Shield, sometimes round and sometimes square, was made of strong thick leather or hides; sometimes of wood covered with brass or iron. 6. The Sword, as an offensive weapon. He who had these was completely armed for combat. † 18. As it was customary for the Grecians to offer prayers to their gods before engaging in battle, so the apostle exhorts Christian warriors to pray with all prayer, in every season, always depending on the Captain of their salvation.

To anastasi, dismissing again of the returning, being what Paul earnestly desired, could not be death or departure, as intimated by the word depart in the common version, because it seemed a matter of indifference to him, which of the two—life or death—he should choose; but he labored for the anastasi, which was a third thing, and very much to be preferred to either of the other two things alluded to. The word anastasi occurs in Luke xii. 36, and is there rendered return.—"Do you like men waiting for the master, when he will return," &c. Jesus had taught his disciples that he would come again, or return, John xiv. 3, 18; thus, also, the apostle said to them at his ascension, Acts i. 11. Paul believed this doctrine and taught it to others, and was looking for and waiting for the Savior from heaven, Phil. iii. 20; 1 Thess. i. 10; 1v. 16, 17, when his mortal body would put on immortality, and so he would "ever be with the Lord."

To analyze, the boasting again or the returning, being what Paul earnestly desired, would not be dash or diminution, as implied by the word depart in the common version, because it seemed a matter of indifference to him, which of the two—life or death—he should choose; but he looked for the analytical, which was a third thing, and very much to be preferred to either of the other two things alluded to. The word analytical occurs in Luke xii. 50, and is there rendered return.—"Ye men like men waiting for your master, when he will return," etc. Jesus had taught his disciples that he would come again, or return, John xiv. 2, 19; thus, also, the angels said to them at his ascension, Acts i. 11. Paul believed this doctrine and taught it to others, and was looking for and waiting for the Savior from heaven, Phil. iii. 20; 1 Thess. i. 10; iv. 16, 17, when his mortal body would put on immortality, and so he would "ever be with the Lord."

8 Thus yearning over you, we were content, not only to have imparted to you the GLAD TIDINGS of God, but also our own Lives, because you had become endeared to us.

9 For you remember, Brethren, our LABOR and FATIGUE; working Night and Day, so as not to BURDEN any one of you, we published to you the GLAD TIDINGS of God.

10 You and God are Witnesses, how piously, and righteously, and blamelessly, we were with you, the BELIEVERS;

11 as you know how we exhorted and comforted you, as a Father each One of his own Children,—

12 and warned you to WALK worthily of THAT GOD who is INVITING you into HIS OWN Glorious Kingdom..

13 * And on this account also, we give thanks to God unceasingly, Because receiving from us this DIVINE Message, you embraced not Men's Word but as it is truly, God's Word, and which works powerfully in you, the BELIEVERS.

14 For you, Brethren, became imitators of THESE CONGREGATIONS of GOD which ARE in JUDEA in Christ Jesus; Because you also suffered the Same things from your own Countrymen, even as they did from THOSE JEWS, .

15 who also killed the LORD Jesus and the PROPHETS, and persecuted Us; and who please not God, and are hostile to All Men;

8 Thus yearning over you, we were content, not only to have imparted to you the GLAD TIDINGS of God, but also to our own Lives, because you had become endeared to us.

9 For you remember, Brethren, our LABOR and FATIGUE; working Night and Day, so as not to burden any one of you, we published to you the GLAD TIDINGS of God.

10 You and God are Witnesses, how piously, and righteously, and blamelessly, we were with you, the BELIEVERS;

11 as you know how we exhorted and comforted you, as a Father each One of his own Children,—

12 and warned you to WALK worthily of THAT GOD who is INVITING you into his own Glorious Kingdom.

13 * And on this account also, we give thanks to God unceasingly, because receiving from us the DIVINE MESSAGE, you embraced that Men's Word, but as it is truly, God's Word, and which works powerfully in you, the BELIEVERS.

14 For you, Brethren, became imitators of THOSE CONGREGATIONS of GOD which ARE in JUDEA in Christ Jesus; because you also suffered the same things from your own Countrymen, even as they did from THOSE JEWS.

15 who also killed the LORD Jesus and the PROPHETS, and persecuted us; and who please not God, and are hostile to All Men;

1 But the SPIRIT † expressly says, That in subsequent Seasons, some will apostatize from the FAITH, giving heed to † deceitful Spirits, and † to Teachings of Demons;

* ALX. MS.—It is doubtful whether this word was originally ΟΣ who, or ΘΣ God.

† 16. This is according to the pointing of Griesbach. Nearly all the ancient MSS., and all the versions have "He who," instead of "God," in this passage. This has been adopted. The latter reading, however, is also according to the analogy of the faith, and well supported.

to exhort; by the sound instruction, and to confute the opposers.

10 For there are many unruly persons, foolish talkers and deceivers, especially those of the Circumcision;

11 whom it is necessary to silence; who overturn whole families, teaching for sordid gain what is not proper.

12 One of them, a prophet of their own, said, "Cretans always liars are, sayage beasts, with craving maw."

13 This testimony is true; therefore reprove them severely, so that they may be sound in the faith,

14 I not holding to Jewish fables, and precepts of men who turn away from the truth.

15 All things, indeed, are pure to those who are pure; but to those who are defiled and unfaithful, nothing is pure; but both their mind and conscience are defiled.

16 They profess to have known God, but by their works they renounce him, being abominable and disobedient, and as to every good work worthless.

CHAPTER II.

1 But do thou inculcate things proper for whole-some instruction;—

2 that aged men be vigilant, serious, prudent, sound in the faith, in love, in patience;

3 that aged women, in like manner, be in deportment as becomes sacred persons; not accusers, not enslaved by much wine, good instructors, having disregarded So great a Salvation? which beginning to be spoken by the LORD, was confirmed for Us by those who HEARD him;

4 God co-attesting both by Signs and Wonders and various Mighty works, and Distributions of holy Spirit, according to His Will?

5 For to Angels he did not subject the FUTURE HABITABLE, concerning which we speak.

6 But one somewhere testified, saying, "What is a Man That thou dost remember him? or a Son of Man, That thou dost regard him?"

7 Thou didst make him for a little while inferior to Angels; thou didst crown him with Glory and Honor;

8 "thou didst subject All things under his FEET;"—for in SUBJECTING ALL THINGS, he left Nothing unsubjected to Him; but, at present, we do not see that ALL things have actually been placed under Him.

9 But we behold JESUS, on account of the SUFFERING of DEATH crowned with Glory and Honor, HAVING BEEN MADE for a little while INFERIOR to Angels, so that, by God's Favor, he might taste of Death on behalf of every one.

10 For it was becoming him, on account of whom are ALL things, and through whom are ALL things, in conducting Many Sons to Glory, to perfect the PRINCE of their SALVATION through Sufferings.

 thoughts and of intentions of heart; and not is κτισις αφαιρης ενωπιον αυτου, παντα δε γυμνα a creature out of sight in presence of him, all things but naked done at the Foundation of the World.

 4 For it has been somewhere spoken concerning the SEVENTH day, thus,
 † "AND GOD rested on the SEVENTH day from all his works."
 5 And again, in this manner, "If they shall enter my REST."
 6 Since, then, it is left for some to enter, † and THOSE who formerly received glad tidings did not enter on account of Unbelief,—
 7 he again defines a certain Day, "To day," saying by David, after so long a Time, (as "it has been said before,) † "To-day, "if you will hear his VOICE, harden not your HEARTS."
 8 For if Joshua ceased to rest, he would not subsequently have spoken of Another Day.
 9 Therefore, a Sabbath-rest remains for the PEOPLE of GOD.
 10 FOR HE HAVING ENTERED his REST, will also himself rest from his works, like as GOD from HIS OWN.
 11 Let us earnestly endeavor, therefore, to enter THAT REST, that no one may fall † by the SAME Example of UNBELIEF.
 12 For the WORD of God is † living, and energetic, and † more cutting than Any † two-edged Sword, cutting through even to a Separation of Life and Breath, and of Joints and Marrow, † and able to judge the Thoughts and Intentions of the Heart;

CHAPTER XI.

<sup>3</sup> In Faith we perceive that the † AGES have been so thoroughly adjusted by God's Command, that not from THINGS then MANIFEST * the THINGS NOW SEEN have come to pass.

 † 35. THE RIGHTEOUS ONE. † 3. THAT WHICH IS SEEN DID NOT ARISE.

† † 5. The original word has been literally rendered, both in this place, and in Heb. i. 2, as being agreeing with the argument of the writer. In fact αιωνες, properly signifies, ages, or periods of time, and as justly observed by Wakefield, Sykes, Kneeland, and Improved Version, "there is no instance in the New Testament where more than this seems to be meant by the word," and therefore ought to be so rendered in this passage. Faith being defined in ver. 1, as "a basis of things hoped for, and a conviction of things unseen," must necessarily have a connection with God's word or promise to be fulfilled at some future period of time, and therefore precludes the idea contained in ver. 3 of the Common Version, that the Apostle was referring to the past creation of the worlds, or the material universe. To understand the works of creation does not belong to faith. Faith in this place refers to what was to be developed in future ages, or ages, in conformity to God's promises, and is amply illustrated in the remaining portion of the chapter.

† 21. Or, according to Sampson, this sentence may be translated—"and rendered worship (to God,) on account of the height of his (Joseph's) ensign." He contends that rabbos, a rod, a-so means ensign, because according to Lev. xvii, twelve rods were to be borne by the twelve princes of Israel with the names of the tribes written thereon, as ensigns. Akron means top, summit, height; and epi with an accusative he would render, on account of, or in respect to. The patriarch Jacob, then, "worshipped God on account of the height of Joseph's power," when he with prophetic vision saw the future greatness of Ephraim and Manasseh. The reader is left to choose which rendering he prefers.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Let † BROTHERLY-LOVE continue.

2 † Be not neglectful of HOSPITALITY; for through this † some unconsciously entertained Angels.

3 † Be mindful of the PRISONERS, as if bound with them; and of THOSE ILL-TREATED, as being yourselves also in the Body.

4 Let MARRIAGE be honorable among all, and the BED be unpolluted; † for Fornicators and Adulterers GOD will judge.

5 Be not of an avaricious DISPOSITION; † be satisfied with PRESENT THINGS, for he himself has said,—“ No, I will not leave Thee; no, no, I will not forsake Thee.”

6 So that, taking courage, we may say, † “ The Lord is My Helper, and I will not fear; what can Man do to me?”

7 † Remember your LEADERS,—those who spoke to you the WORD of GOD; and viewing attentively the RESULT of their CONDUCT, imitate their FAITH.

8 Jesus Christ, Yesterday and To-day is † the SAME, and for the AGES.

9 † Be not you therefore led away by various and of it fell off, and the beauty of the face

αυτου απωλετο· ουτω και ο πλουσιος εν ταις of it perished; thus also the rich man in the πορειαις αυτου μαρανθησεται. <sup>12</sup> Μακαριος ways of himself will fade away. Blessed

<sup>4</sup> But let PATIENCE have a perfect Work, so that you may be perfect and complete, deficient in Nothing.

<sup>5</sup> † And if any one of you be deficient in Wis- dom, let him † ask it from God, who IMPARTS liberally to all, and does not censure; and † it will be given to him.

<sup>6</sup> † But let him ask in Faith, not hesitating; for HE who HESITATES is like a Wave of the Sea, agitated and tossed by the wind.

<sup>10</sup> and the RICH in his HUMILIATION; Because † as a Flower of Grass, he will pass away.

<sup>11</sup> For the SUN rose with SCORCHING HEAT, and withered the GRASS, and its FLOWER fell off, and the BEAUTY of its AP- PEARANCE perished; thus also will the RICH man fade in his ways.

 creatures. Therefore, brethren of me beloved ones, εστω κας αθροωπις ταχυς εις το ακουσαι, let be every man quick in order that to have heard, βραδυς εις το λαλησαι, βραδυς εις οργην.

 slow in order that to have spoken, slow in order to wrath.

 lives of you. Become you but doers of word, and μη μονον ακροαται, παραλογιζομενοι εαυτους.

 not only hearers, deceiving yourselves.

12 † Happy the Man who endures Trial; Because having become an approved person, he will receive † the CROWN of LIFE, † which * the LORD promised to THOSE who LOVE him.

13 Let no one, when tempted, say, "I am tempted by God;" for God is incapable of being tempted by Evil things, and he tempts no one;

14 but each one is tempted by his OWN Inordinate desire, being drawn out and allured.

15 Then † INORDINATE DESIRE having conceived produces SIN; and SIN being perfected † brings forth Death.

16 Do not be led astray, my beloved Brethren.

17 † Every good Gift and Every perfect Gift is from above, coming down from the FATHER of LIGHTS, † with whom there is No Change, or the least Variation.

18 † Having willed it, he begot us by the Word of Truth, † in order that we might be a † First-fruit of HIS Creatures.

19 Therefore, my beloved Brethren, † let Every Man be quick to HEAR, slow to SPEAK, slow to ANGER;

20 For Man's ANGER does not work out God's Righteousness.

21 Therefore, † discarding All Impurity and Overflowing of Malice, embrace with Meekness THAT IMPLANTED Word † which is ABLE to save your SOULS.

22 But † become Doers of the Word, and not Hearers only, deceiving yourselves.

23 For if any one be a Hearer of the Word, and not a Doer, he resembles a Man Viewing his NATU-RAL FACE in a Mirror;

24 for he viewed himself, and went away, and immediately forgot what kind of person he was.

25 But † HE who LOOKS INTENTLY into THAT which is the perfect † Law of FREEDOM, and continues in it, not becoming a forgetful Hearer, but a Doer of its Work, † this man will be blessed in his DEED.

26 If any one think to be religious, who does not † restrain his Tongue, but deludes his own Heart, this man's RELIGION is vain.

27 Pure Religion and undefiled with the God and Father is this.—† To take the oversight of Orphans and Widows in their AFFLICTION, † and to keep Himself unspotted from the WORLD.

CHAPTER II.

1 My Brethren! do not

 Christ, our † glorious LORD, with † a Respect of persons.

2 For if a Man enter your SYNAGOGUE, having gold rings on his fingers, in a splendid Robe, and there enter also a Poor man in Dirty Clothing;

3 and you look on the one WEARING the SPLEN-DID ROBE, and say, "Sit thou here in an honorable place;" and say to the POOR man, "Stand * thou;
 or sit there on my FOOT-selves, and become Judges

Brother, or a Sister, be naked, and in want of DAILY FOOD.

16 and any one of you should say to them, "Go in Peace; be warmed and be filled;" but do not give them the THINGS NECESSARY for the BODY, what Advantage is it?

17 Thus also the FAITH, if it has not Works, being by itself, is dead.

18 But some one will say, "Thou hast Faith, and I have Works; show me thy Faith, without Works, and I will show * Thee my FAITH by Works.

19 Thou believest That there is * One God; thou doest; even the DEMONS also believe, and tremble.

21 Was not Abraham our FATHER justified by Works, when he brought up Isaac his SON to the ALTAR?

22 Thou seest that the FAITH co-operated with his WORKS; and that the FAITH was made complete by the WORKS;

23 and THAT SCRIPTURE was verified, which says, "And Abraham believed * God, and it was counted * to him for Righteousness;" and he was called * a Friend of God."

24 You see that a Man is justified by Works, and not by Faith alone.

25 And in like manner also * was not Rahab the HARLOT justified by Works, when she entertained the MESSENGERS, and sent them out by Another Road?

26 As the BODY without Breath is dead, so also the FAITH, without WORKS, is dead.

 Θεοῦ ἐστὶ. <sup>3</sup> Καὶ πᾶν πνεῦμα ὃ μὴ ὁμολογεῖ God is. And every spirit who not confesses τοῦ Ἰησοῦν, ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ οὐκ ἐστὶ· καὶ τούτο the Jesus, from the God not is; and this ἐστὶ τοῦ ἀντιχριστοῦ, ὃ ἀκηκοῦτε ὅτι ἐρχεis that of the antichrist, which you heard that it ται, καὶ νῦν ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ ἐστὶν ἤδη. <sup>4</sup> Ὑμεῖς come, and now in the world is already. You ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ ἐστε, τέκνια, καὶ νενικηκατέ of the God are, dear children, and have overcome αὐτούς· ὅτι μείζων ἐστὶν ὃ ἐν ὑμῖν, ἢ ὃ ἐν τῷ them; because greater is he in you, than he in the κόσμῳ. <sup>5</sup> Αὐτοὶ ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου εἰσι· διὰ world. They from the world are; on account of τούτου ἐκ τῶν κόσμου λαλοῦσι, καὶ ὁ κόσμος this of the world they speak, and the world αὐτῶν ἀκούει. <sup>6</sup> Ἡμεῖς ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ ἐσμεν· ὃ them hears. We of the God are; the γινώσκων τὸν θεόν, ἀκούει ἡμῶν· ὃς οὐκ ἐστὶν one knowing the God, hears us; who not is ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ, οὐκ ἀκούει ἡμῶν. Ἐκ τούτου of the God, not hears us. By this γινώσκωμεν τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς ἀληθείας καὶ τὸ we know the spirit of the truth and the πνεῦμα τῆς πλάνης.

<sup>7</sup> Ἀγαπῆτοι, ἀγαπῶμεν ἀλλήλους· ὅτι ἡ Beloved ones, we should love each other; because the ἀγάπη ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ ἐστὶ, καὶ πᾶς ὃ ἀγαπᾷ, love of the God is, and every one the loving,
 ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ γεγεννηται, καὶ γινώσκει τὸν θεόν·
 he who has been begotten, and knows the God, <sup>8</sup> ὃ μὴ ἀγαπᾷ, οὐκ ἐγνώ τὸν θεόν, ὅτι ὃ θεός he not loving, not knew the God, because the God ἀγαπᾷ ἐστὶν. <sup>9</sup> Ἐν τούτῳ ἐφανερωθῆ ἡ ἀγάπη love is. In this was manifested the love τοῦ θεοῦ ἐν ἡμῖν, ὅτι τὸν υἱὸν αὐτοῦ τὸν μονοof the God to us, because the son of himself the onlyγενῆ ἀπέσταλκεν ὁ θεός εἰς τὸν κόσμον, ἵνα begotten sent forth the God into the world, so that ζήσωμεν δι' αὐτοῦ. <sup>10</sup> Ἐν τούτῳ ἐστὶν ἡ ἀλλ' ὅτι αὐτὸς ἠγαπήσεν ἡμᾶς, καὶ ἀπέστειλε but that he loved us, and sent forth τὸν υἱὸν αὐτοῦ ἱλασμόν περὶ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν the son of himself a propitiation respecting the

 SPIRIT of God,—; Every Spirit which confesses Jesus Christ * to have come in the flesh, is from God;

<sup>3</sup> and † Every Spirit which does not confess Jesus, is not from God. And this is the [SPIRIT] of the Antichrist, which you heard That it is coming, and now it is in the WORLD already.

<sup>4</sup> † You are of God, Dear children! and have overcome them; Because greater is HE who is in you, than ‡ HE who is in

<sup>5</sup> † They are of the WORLD; on this account they speak of the WORLD, and the WORLD hears them.

<sup>6</sup> We are of God; † HE does not hear us. By this we know ‡ the SPIRIT of TRUTH and the SPIRIT of ERROR.

<sup>7</sup> † Beloved! we should love each other; Because LOVE is from GOD; and EVERY ONE who LOVES has been begotten by GOD, and knows GOD.

<sup>8</sup> HE who does not LOVE, † does not know God; Because ‡ GOD is Love.

<sup>9</sup> † By this the LOVE of GOD to us was manifested, that GOD sent forth his ONLY-BEGOTTEN SON into the WORLD, that ‡ we might live through him.

ἡμῶν. 11 Ἀγαπητοὶ, εἰ οὕτως ὁ θεὸς ἠγάπησεν of us. Beloved ones, if thus the God loved ἡμᾶς, καὶ ἡμεῖς οφείλομεν ἀλλήλους ἀγαπᾶν us, also we ought each other to love.
θεὸν οὐδεὶς πώποτε τεθεαται. 12 Ἐὰν ἀγαπώ-God no one at any time has seen. If we love μεν ἀλλήλους, ὁ θεὸς ἐν ἡμῖν μένει, καὶ ἡ each other, the God in us abides, and the ἀγάπη αὐτοῦ τετελειωμένη ἐστὶν ἐν ἡμῖν. 13 Ἐν love of him having been perfected it is in us. By τούτῳ γινώσκομεν, ὅτι ἐν αὐτῷ μένομεν, καὶ this we know, that in him we abide, and αὐτὸς ἐν ἡμῖν, ὅτι ἐκ τοῦ πνεύματος αὐτοῦ he in us, because out of the spirit of himself δεδώκεν ἡμῖν. 14 Καὶ ἡμεῖς τεθεαμάθα καὶ he has given us. And we have seen μαρτυροῦμεν, ὅτι ὁ πατὴρ ἀπέσταλκε τὸν υἱὸν we testify, that the father sent forth the son σωτῆρα τοῦ κόσμου. 15 Ὃς ἀνὸς ὁμολογήσῃ, ὅτι savior of the world. Whoever may confess, that Ἰησοῦς ἐστὶν ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ θεοῦ, ὁ θεὸς ἐν αὐτῷ Jesus is the son of the God, the God in him μένει, καὶ αὐτὸς ἐν τῷ θεῷ. 16 Καὶ ἡμεῖς ἐγabides, and he in the God. And we have νώκαμεν καὶ πεπιστεύκαμεν τὴν ἀγάπην, ἣν known and we have believed the love, which ἔχει ὁ θεὸς ἐν ἡμῖν. Ὁ θεὸς ἀγάπη ἐστὶ, καὶ has the God in us. The God love is, and ὁ μένων ἐν τῇ ἀγάπῃ, ἐν τῷ θεῷ μένει, καὶ ὁ the one abiding in the love, in the God abides, and the θεὸς ἐν αὐτῷ. 17 Ἐν τούτῳ τετελειώται ἡ God in him. By this has been perfected the ἀγάπη μεθ' ἡμῶν, ἵνα κτηρήσῃαν ἐχωμεν ἐν τῇ love with us, so that holders we may have in the ἡμέρᾳ τῆς κρίσεως, ὅτι καθὼς ἐκεῖνος ἐστὶ, καὶ day of the judgment, because as he is, also ἡμεῖς ἐσμεν ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ τούτῳ. 18 Φόβος οὐκ we are in the world this. Fear not ἐστὶν ἐν τῇ ἀγάπῃ, ἀλλ' ἡ τελεία ἀγάπη ἐξῶ is in the love, but the perfect love outside βαλλεῖ τὸν φόβον· ὅτι ὁ φόβος κολασίν ἔχει· casts the fear, because the fear a restraint has;
ὁ δὲ φοβούμενος οὐ τετελειώται ἐν τῇ ἀγάπῃ.
the but one fearing not has been perfected in the love.
19 Ἡμεῖς ἀγαπώμεν * [αὐτὸν,] ὅτι αὐτὸς πρῶτος
We love [him,] because he first ἠγάπησεν ἡμᾶς. 20 Ἐὰν τις εἴπῃ· Ὅτι ἀγαπῶ loved us. If any one may say; That I love τὸν θεόν, καὶ τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ μισῶ, ψεύσῃ
the God, and the brother of himself he may hate, τῆς ἐστίν· ὁ γὰρ μὴ ἀγαπῶν τὸν ἀδελφὸν his is; the for not loving the brother αὐτοῦ, ὃν ἑώρακε, τὸν θεόν, ὃν οὐκ ἑώρακε, of himself, whom he has seen, the God, whom not he has seen,

11 Beloved! if God so loved us, we also ought to love each other.

12 [Though] if no one has seen God at any time, [yet] if we love each other, God dwells in Us; and this love has been perfected in us.

13 By this we know that we abide in Him, and he in Us, Because he has imparted to us of his SPIRIT.

14 And we have seen and testify That the FATHER sent forth the SON as a Savior of the WORLD.

15 Who ever may confess That Jesus is the SON of God, God abides in Him, and he in God.

16 And we have known and believed the LOVE which God has for us. God is LOVE; and who abides in LOVE, abides in God, and God abides in Him.

17 By this has LOVE been perfected with us, that we may have Confidence in the DAY of JUDGMENT; Because as he is we also are in this WORLD.

18 There is no Fear in LOVE, but PERFECT Love casts out FEAR; Because FEAR has Restraint; and he who FEARS is not been perfected in LOVE.

19 We love, Because he first loved us.

20 If any one say, "I love God," and yet hate his BROTHER, he is a Liar; for he who does not LOVE his BROTHER, whom he has seen, is not able to † 7. The received text reads, "For there are three who bear witness in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit, and these three are one. And there are three that bear witness in earth." This text concerning the heavenly witnesses is not contained in any Greek manuscript which was written earlier than the fifth century. It is not cited by any of the Greek ecclesiastical writers; nor by any of the early Latin fathers, even when the subjects upon which they treat would naturally have led them to appeal to its authority. It is therefore evidently spurious; and was first cited (though not as it now reads) by Virgilius Tapsensis, a Latin writer of no credit, in the latter end of the fifth century; but by whom forged, is of no great moment, as its design must be obvious to all.—Improved Version.

10 (HE who BELIEVES into the SON of GOD, has the TESTIMONY in himself; HE who does not BELIEVE GOD, has made him a LIAR; Because he has not believed in the TESTIMONY which GOD has testified concerning his SON.)

11 And this is the TESTIMONY, That GOD has given to us eternal LIFE, and This LIFE is in his SON.

12 HE who HAS the SON has the LIFE; HE who has not the SON has not the LIFE.

13 These things I have written to you, that you who BELIEVE on the NAME of the SON of GOD may know that you have eternal LIFE.

14 And this is the CONFIDENCE which we have towards him, That if we ask ANY thing according to his WILL, he hears us.

15 And if we know That he hears us, whatever we ask, we know That we have the PETITIONS which we have asked from him.

16 If any one see his BROTHER sinning a Sin, not to Death, let him ask, and he will give him LIFE for THOSE who SIN not to Death. There is a Sin to Death; I do not say that he should ask concerning THAT.

Where these readings agree with the three oldest Uncial MSS. they are respectively marked as follows;—A.—Codex Alexandrinus, probably of the fifth century; B.—Codex Vaticanus, written about the end of the seventh century or beginning of the eighth; C.—Codex Ephraemi Rescriptus, No. 9, probably of the fifth century. A few corroborative Readings, otherwise marked D.—Codex Sinaiticus, will be given from the very ancient Uncial, discovered by Dr. Tischendorf, probably of the same date as V. M. S., 1209.

CHAPTER V.

1 And I saw on the RIGHT OF HIM SITTING ON the THRONE, a Scroll, having been written within and outside, firmly sealed with seven Seals.

2 And I saw a strong Angel publishing with a loud Voice, "Who is worthy to open the
 SCROLL, and to break its SEALS?"

3 And no one was able in the HEAVEN, nor on the EARTH, nor under the EARTH, to open the SCROLL, nor to see it.

4 And I wept much, Because no one was found worthy to open the
 SCROLL, nor to see it.

5 And one of the ELDERS says to me, "Do not weep; behold, that Lion has overcome which is of the TRIBE of Judah, the ROOT of David, he is also OPENING the SCROLL, and its SEVEN Seals."

6 And I saw in the MIDST of the THRONE, and of the FOUR living ones, and in the MIDST of the ELDERS, a little Lamb standing, as if killed, having seven Horns and seven Eyes, which are the SEVEN Spirits of God sent forth into ALL the EARTH.

7 And he came and took the SCROLL from the RIGHT HAND of the ONE SITTING on the THRONE.

8 And when he took the SCROLL, the FOUR living ones and the TWEN-TY-FOUR Elders fell down

OF THE

GEOGRAPHICAL AND PROPER NAMES, WEIGHTS, MEASURES, COINS, PRECIOUS STONES, APOSTOLIC WORDS AND PHRASES, &c., CONTAINED IN THE BOOKS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

- AARON, [a teacher, lofty,] the first high priest of the Jews; the son of Amram, of the tribe of Levi, and brother of Moses and Miriam; appointed by God, Heb. v. 4; vii. 11.
- AARON'S ROD that blossomed, Heb. ix. 4. See the account, Num. xvii.
- ABADDON, [the Destroyer,] king of the locusts, and angel of the abyss, Rev. ix. 11.
- ABEL, [youngst,] the second son of Adam and Eve. His history, Gen. iv. 2-11; his faith, Heb. xi. 4; his blood, Luke xi. 51; Heb. xii. 24; called "righteous" by Jesus, Matt. xxiii. 35.
- ABILENE, [the father of mourning,] a Province of Coelo-Syria, between Libanus and Anti-Libanus.
- ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION, (Matt. xxiv. 15; Dan. ix. 27; xii. 11,) probably refers to the eagles or banners of the Roman army, with the idolatrous, and, therefore, abominable images on them.
- ABRAHAM, [father of a multitude,] was the son of Terah, Gen. xi. 27; the tenth from Shem, in the line of Heber, and born at Ur, a city of Chaldaea, A. M. 2088. His history occupies a large portion of the book of Genesis, and is intimately connected with both the Jewish and Christian institutions. Called "the friend of God," James ii. 23; and "beloved of the world," Rom. iv. 13; and because he believed God, and received the promises, he has been constituted a father to all believers, whether Jew or Gentile. See Rom. iv. 11-16.
- ABRAHAM'S BOSOM.—An allusion to the posture in which the Jews and other eastern nations placed themselves at table. John reclined on the bosom of Jesus at supper; hence Abraham's bosom denotes both honor and felicity, Luke x. 17.
- ABYSS, a very deep pit, referring often to that vast body of water which in Jewish opinion was "laid up in some cavernous receptacle within the earth. It renews sometimes in the dark sepulchres of the east, which, hewn out in the rock, and descending far beneath the surface, formed a kind of under-world, Rom. x. 7. Also an Apocalyptic symbol of the shade and doom of those powers which are hostile to Christ and his church.
- ACELDAMA, [the field of blood,] a piece of ground south of Jerusalem, on the other side of the brook Kidron; also called the Potter's field, Matt. xxvii. 3; Acts i. 18, 19.
- ACHAIA, [grec, thracie,] a Province of Pelmoponnese; also, a Province including all the south part of Greece.
- ACHAICUS, a native of Achaea, 1 Cor. xvi. 17.
- ACTS OF APOSTLES—written by Luke as a continuation of his history of the life, &c., of Jesus; and relates chiefly the actions and sufferings of Peter, John, Paul and Barnabas, in connection with the history of the Church for about 20 years, or about A. D. 63. The chief design of the writer appears to have been to give an account of the introduction of Christianity to the Gentiles; hence we find the calling of the Gentiles, the conversion of Saul, and his labors as the apostle of the Gentiles, more minutely related than anything else. This book may be considered as a connecting link between the previous histories and the apostolic letters, and a key necessary for the right understanding of them. In this book we read how the Church was first formed and set in order, and how the true mode, after which every congregation ought to be constructed.
- ADAM, [earthly,] the first man, and father of the human race, Gen. i. 26. The name is sometimes given to man in general.
- ADAM, SECONDO—Christ so called, 1 Cor. xv. 22, 45-47.
- ADOPITION, or Synesis, from adoptionem, occurs only in Rom. viii. 15, 23; 1 Cor. i. 6; Gal. iv. 5; Heb. i. 4.
- ADRAMYTTIUM, [the court of death,] now Edremit, a seaport of Asia Minor, in Mysia, 70 miles north of Smyrna, Acts xviii. 2.
- ADRIA, a name of the Adriatic sea, or Gulf of Venice. See Acts xxvii. 17.
- ADVERSARY, (see Satan), one of the emphatical and distinguishing names of Satan; and so applied to his agents.
- ADVOCATE, one that pleads the cause of another. It is one of the official titles of Jesus Christ, the Righteous one, (1 John ii. 1) and its import may be learned from John xvii. Rom. viii. 34; Heb. vii. 25.
- AGABUS, [a Levite, a feast of a father,] a prophet who foretold a famine which came to pass in the fourth year of Claudius Cesar, A. D. 43; Acts xi. 28; and who met Paul at Cesarea, and warned him of what he would have to suffer, if he went to Jerusalem, Acts xxi. 10.
- AGE, aeon, an indefinite period of time, past, present or future. This is the proper translation of aeon, which in the common version is often improperly rendered world, always, and forever. The word occurs about 100 times, in its singular and plural forms. The adjective form of the same word, aeonios, is found about 75 times, and is applied to zeal, life, 45 times; to fire, 3 times; to glory, 3 times, &c. eternal or everlasting, as generally understood, is an improper translation of aeonios; in fact, we have no proper equivalent in the English language. Being an adjective and derived from the noun, aeon, aeon, it cannot properly go beyond its meaning.
- AGIPPAA, [receiving pain at his birth,] Egypt, and Tetrarch under Claudius Cesar, Acts xiv. 15-27; xxvi.
- ALL, or Armeniacus, frequently a symbol of government. See Eph. ii. 2; Rev. ix. 7; xel. 17.
- ALABASTER BOX, made of Alabaster bright white fossil, resembling marbl

- which precious perfumes are enclosed. Matt. xvi. 7. "Breaking of the box," is knocking off the seal and not breaking the vessel, Mark xiv. 3.
- ALEXANDER, [the helper of men,] one of that name mentioned in Mark xv. 21; Acts iv. 6; xix. 33; 1 Tim. i. 20; 2 Tim. iv. 14.
- ALEXANDRIA, a celebrated city and seaport of Egypt, founded by Alexander the Great, about B. C. 333, and situated between the Mediterranean Sea and Lake Mareotis. A library of 700,000 volumes was burned here by the Saracens in the seventh century. Acts vi. 9; xviii. 24; xxvii. 6.
- ALLEGORY, a symbolical discourse, nearly resembling a parable or fable, generally used among oriental nations to illustrate some principle or doctrine. See John x; xi; Gal. iv. 24.
- ALLELUIA, or HALLELUIAH, [Praise you the Lord,] A common exclamation of joy and praise in the Jewish worship. The saints sang at the fall of Antichrist, Rev. xix. 1—6.
- ALMIGHTY, able to do all things; an attribute of Deity; also of the glorified Jesus, Rev. i. 8; iv. 8, &c.
- ALPHA and OMEGA, the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet; both applied to Christ, Rev. i. 8; xxi. 6.
- ALPHEUS, [Hausand, chief,] the father of James and Jude, Matt. x. 8; Luke vi. 15; xxi. 18. Supposed to be Cleopas, John xix. 25; Acts i. 13.—The father of Levi, or Matthew, Mark ii. 14.
- ALTAR, a sort of elevated hearth on which to offer sacrifices to God. The Christian altar referred to, Heb. xiii. 10.
- AMBASSADOR, one who holds a commission and carries a message immediately from the person of a prince. Applied exclusively to the Apostles, 2 Cor. v. 20; Eph. vi. 20.
- AMETHYST.—See PURPURINE STONES.
- AMPHIPOLIS, now called Emboli; a city lying between Macedonia and Thrace, 43 miles E. by N. of Thessalonica, Acts xviii. 1.
- ANANIAS, [large,] an individual highly esteemed by Paul, Rom. xvi. 8.
- ANANIAS [the cloud of the Lord,] and SAPPHIRA, [that tells,] their sin and punishment, Acts v. 1—11.
- high priest, mentioned Acts xxiii. 1—5.
- a disciple of Jesus, Acts ix. 10—18.
- ANATHEMA MARANATHA, a Syriac exclamation, signifying, Accursed, our Lord comes. This language must not be regarded as an imprecation, but as a prediction of what would certainly come to pass. In devoting any person to destruction, or in pronouncing an anathema, they sometimes added, "The Lord will put this sentence in execution when he comes." Hence originated the Anathema Maranatha, "He will be accursed when the Lord comes."
- ANCHOR, "cast out at the stern." Acts xxvii. 29. This is not usual in modern navigation, but was done by the ancients, and is still done by the Egyptians.
- ANDREW, [a stout and strong man,] an apostle of Jesus Christ, a native of Bethsaida, and brother of Peter. John i. 40; Matt. iv. 18.
- ANDRONICUS, [a man excelling others,] Rom. xvi. 7.
- ANGEL. This word, both in the Greek and Hebrew languages, signifies a messenger. It denotes office, and not the nature of the agent. The word occurs 183 times in the New Testament, and is applied to celestial beings, to man, good and bad; to the winds, fire, pestilence, and every creature which God employs as his special agent; and also to the agents of every creature. The New Testament authors speak of angels of congregations, angels of little children, the angel of Peter, and an angel of Satan. In all versions the word angelos is occasionally rendered by the term messenger, and frequently by the word angel, which is, indeed, now naturalized and adopted into our language.
- ANNA, [gracious,] a prophetess and widow, of the tribe of Asher. Luke ii. 36—38.
- ANNAS, [one who answers,] an high priest of the Jews, Luke iii. 2; John xviii. 13, 24; Acts iv. 6.
- ANointed, Term—the English translation of the Greek term, ho Christos, and is given to Jesus, God's Son, on account of his being anointed with the Holy Spirit, to the sacred offices of Prophet, Priest, and King. See Psa. ii. 6; xlv. 7; lxxxix. 20; cx. 4; Isa. lxi. 1; Luke iii. 22; iv. 18; Acts x. 38.
- ANointing, a Jewish ceremony, by which persons and things under the law, were consecrated, or set apart for the service of God, anointing them with oil or ointment of a peculiar composition, prescribed in Exod. xxx. 23—25, the common use of which was expressly forbidden. Priests and kings were anointed with it, probably typical of the anointing of Messiah and his associates with the Holy Spirit. Samuel anointed Saul, (1 Sam. x. 1,) and David, (1 Sam. xvi. 13,) and on this account they were called the Lord's anointed ones; 1 Sam. xxiv. 6, 10; 2 Sam. xiii. 1. The reception of the Holy Spirit by believers is called an anointing, 1 Cor. i. 21; 1 John ii. 27.
- ANTIchrist, a word only found in John's epistles. It occurs five times, 1 John ii. 18, 22; iv. 3; 2 John 7. It signifies, against Christ, and is defined by John to be any one who denies the Father and the Son, or that Jesus Christ has not come in the flesh.
- ANTIOCH, [speciey as a chariot,] Two cities of this name are mentioned in Scripture: 1. The capital of Syria, on the river Orontes, 18 miles from its mouth. It was built by Seleucus Nicanor, about 300 years B. C., and named after his father Antiochus. It is now called Antachia. Here the disciples of Christ were first styled Christians, Acts xi. 26. 2. Antioch, now Akakehr, a town of Asia Minor, in Pisidia, 180 miles W. by N. of Tarsus.
- ANTIPAS, [against all,] Antipas Herod, the son of Herod the Great, who beheld John the Immerser, Matt. xiv. 8, 4; Mark vi. 17, 18; Luke iii. 19, 20, and who ridiculed Jesus, by enrobing him in mock royalty. Luke xiii. 11.—Also, the faithful martyr mentioned Rev. ii. 13.
- ANTIPATRIAS, [against the father,] a town of Palestine, 25 miles W. S. W. of Samaria, named in honor of Antipater, the father of Herod.
- APOLLONIA, [destruction,] a town of Macedonia, 80 miles E. by S. of Thessalonica. Acts xvii. 1.
- APOLLOS, [one who destroys,] a Jew of Alexandria, described as an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures. Acts xviii. 24.
- APOLLYON, [a destroyer,] answering to the Hebrew name Abaddon. Rev. ix. 11.
- APostle, apostolos, one sent by another. The word is found over 80 times in the New Testament. It is applied to Jesus, as God's Apostle, John xvii. 18; Heb. iii. 1; to the Twelve, the intimate companions of Jesus as his Apostles; and to those persons sent out by congregations, such as, Barnabas,

- Sylvanus, Timothy, &c., as Apostles of Churches.
- APPHIA, [that produces,] Philemon 2.
- APPII FORUM, a town of Italy, near the modern town of Piperno, on the road to Naples, about 40 miles S. E. of Rome. Acts 22:13-15.
- AQUILA, [the eagle,] a tent-maker, mentioned Acts xvii. 34, with whom Paul wrought and lodged.
- ARABIA, [arabias, arbi, and desert,] a country in Asia, lying east of the Red Sea, and south of Palestine and Syria, extending 1500 miles from north to south, and 1200 from east to west. It was divided into 1. Arabia Petraea, or the Haptes, in the south, which is very fertile; 2. Arabia Deserta, or the Deserts, in the north-west, including Idumea; and 3. Arabia Deserta, or the Desert in the north and north-west. The Jewish writers perceived this region. Mentioned historically, 1 Kings 11:1-4; 2 Chron. ix. 1-14; Gal. 1:17; prophecies, Isa. xli. 15; Jer. xxv. 24.
- ARABIAN, mentioned Acts ii. 11.
- ARCHANGEL, or the chief angel, alluded to 1 Thess. iv. 16; Jude 9.
- ARCHELAUS, [the prince of the people,] a king under Cesar, and son of Herod the Great. Matt. ii. 22.
- ARCHIPPUS, [governor of horses,] a minister or servant of the Lord, and mentioned Col. iv. 17; Philemon 3.
- AREOPAGITE, a title of the judges of the supreme tribunal of Athens, (Acts xvii. 34) and derived from
- AREOPAGUS, [the hill of Mars,] which signifies either the court of Athens itself, or the hill on which it was held. Acts xvii. 19.
- ARETAS, [one that pleases,] a king of Arabia. Acts 1:20; 2 Cor. xi. 32, 33.
- ARIMATHEA, [where dead to the Lord,] or RAMAN, a town of Judea, supposed to be the modern Ramla, a town about 20 miles N. W. of Jerusalem, on the road to Joppa.
- ARISTARCHUS, [a good prince,] Paul's companion and fellow-prisoner. Acts xix. 29; xx. 4; xxvii. 2; Col. iv. 10; Philemon 24.
- ARK, (Noah's) described, Gen. vi. 14-16; and alluded to, 1 Pet. iii. 21.
- ARK OF THE COVENANT, for the preservation of the tables of the law, &c., its history, Exod. xxv. 10-21; xxxvii. 1-9; Josh. iii. 15-17; 1 Sam. iv. 11; v. 8; vii. 1, 2; 2 Sam. vi. 1; xv. 24-29; 2 Chron. v. 2, 13, 14 alluded to, Heb. ix. 4. The Ark and its contents were lost by the Babylonish captivity.
- ARMAGEDDON, [mountain of destruction,] a place in Samaria, east of Cosarea; the mountain of Megiddon, or Megiddo, a city at the foot of Mount Carmel, and noted for scenes of carnage. The Canaanites and Philistines, Jews and Egyptians, Chaldeans and Persians, Greeks and Romans, Moslems and Christians, of almost every age and nation, have encamped around Megiddo, because of its commanding position, its abundant supply of water and rich pastures. In the Apocalypse this place is referred to, probably as a symbolical name for great slaughter, Rev. xvi. 16.
- ARMOR, weapons or instruments of defence. The Christian's armor described, Eph. vi. 13, &c.
- ARTEMAS, [whole sound,] a disciple sent by Paul into Crete, instead of Titus, Titus iii. 13.
- ASCENSION OF CHRIST, account of, Mark xvi. 19; Luke xxi. 50, 51; Acts i. 1-12.
- ASIA, [muddy, boggy,] in the New Testament, sometimes means Asia Minor, which includes the provinces of Bithynia, Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Cilicia, Pamphylia, Pisidia, Lycia, Phrygia, Mysia, Troas, Lydia, Lycia, and Caria; and sometimes only a district in the western portion of it, of which Ephesus was the chief city. Asia was not known to the ancients as one of the four grand divisions of the globe.
- ASSUS, [approaching,] a seaport of Asia Minor, in Mysia, 82 miles W. of Adramyttium, now called Bevram. Acts x. 13, 14.
- ASYNCRITES, [incomparable,] a disciple at Rome. Rom. xvi. 14.
- ATHENS, [without increase, of Minerva,] the principal city of ancient Greece, situated on the Saronic Gulf, 44 miles E. of Corinth, and 200 E. W. of Constantinople. It was for a long time the most celebrated school in the world for learning, arts, and sciences. Acts xvii. 15-34.
- ATONEMENT, from katallagee, reconciliation, is found once thus rendered in the Common Version, Rom. v. 11, and evidently has the original and old English sense of at-one-ment attached to it. The means by which two enemies were reconciled or made at-one, or their state of harmony, was an at-one-ment.
- ATALIA, [that increases,] a seaport of Asia Minor, in Pamphylia, on a Bay of the Mediterranean; now called Satalia.
- AUGUSTUS, [venerable,] the nephew and successor of Julius Cesar, and emperor of Rome at the time of our Savior's birth. He appointed the enrollment. Luke ii. 1.
- AZOR, [a helper,] the son of Eliakim, Matt. i. 12.
- AZOTUS, [pillage,] or Azodan, now Endoud, a town of Palestine, in the country of the Philistines, 20 miles S. by W. of Joppa.
- BABYLON, [confusion,] capital of Babylon, or Chaldea, situated on the Euphrates. It was one of the most renowned cities on the globe. Its walls were 60 miles in circuit, and were reckoned one of the seven wonders of the world. The ruins of this city are now seen about 60 miles south of Bagdad.
- BABYLON, (Mystical.) Rev. xiv. 8; xvi. 10; xvii. 18.
- BALAAAM, [the old age, or ancient of the people,] a prophet of the city of Bosor, on the Euphrates; his history, Num. xxii-xxiv; xxi. 2; Josh. xiii. 22; his sin mentioned, Dent. xxiii. 4; Jude 11; 2 Pet. ii. 15; Rev. ii. 14.
- BAPTIZE, bapto, baptizo. Bapto occurs 3 times, Luke xvi. 24; John xiii. 26; Rev. xix. 13, and is always translated dip in the common version. Baptizo occurs 79 times; of these, 77 times it is not translated at all, but transferred; and twice, via, Mark vii. 4; Luke xi. 32, it is translated wash, without regard to the manner in which it was done. All lexicographers translate it by the word immerse, dip, or plunge not one by sprinkle or pour. No translator has ever ventured to render these words by sprinkle or pour in any version. In the Septuagint version we have pour, dip, and sprinkle, occurring in Lev. xiv. 16, 18, "He shall pour the oil, he shall dip his finger in it, and he shall sprinkle the oil." Here we have pour, to pour; to sprinkle; and dip, to dip.
- BAPTISM, baptisma, baptizatio. These words are never translated sprinkling or pouring in any version. Baptisma occurs 22 times and baptizatio 4 times.

- BAPTISM BY FIRE. To be "immersed in fire" is an emblem of destruction. Cotzare Mal. iv. with Matt. iii. 19-22.
- IN THE HOLY SPIRIT. From-ised by Jesus, Acts i. 5; fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, Acts ii. 1; also in the house of Cornelius, Acts x. 16, 17. These supernatural gifts, both external and internal, and possessed by the Apostles and the best-fruits of both Jews and Gentiles, were so overwhelming, as to be figuratively called an immersion in the Holy Spirit.
- BARABBAR (son of shame, confusion), a noted criminal at Jerusalem. Matt. xxvii. 16-21; Mark xv. 6-11; Luke xxiii. 18-26; John xviii. 40.
- BARACHIAH, [who blesses God], the father of Zachariah, mentioned Matt. xxiii. 25.
- BAR-JESUS, (son of Jesus), in Arabic his name was Elymas. See Elymas.
- BAR-JONAH, [the son of a dove, or of Jonah], a Syriac designation of Peter. Matt. xvi.
 17; John i. 41; xii. 16-17. See Peter.
- BARNABAS, (son of exhortation), a disciple of Jesus, and Paul's companion in labors;
 mentioned Acts iv. 36, 37; xi. 22-30; xii.
 25; travels with Paul, Acts xiii-xx. 35; separates from him, Acts xv. 36-39; his error alluded to, Gal. ii. 1-13.
- BARCSABAS, (son of rest), Joseph Barsabas, surnamed Justus, one of the first disciples,
 Acts i. 23; xv. 22.
- BALTHOMEW, [a son that suspends the wife], one of the twelve apostles, probably the same as Nathaniel. Matt. x. 3; Mark iii. 18; Luke vi. 14; Acts i. 13.
- BAUTIMFUS, (son of the honorable), mentioned Matt. xx. 20-23; Mark x. 46-52.
- BEES. Mr. Hanway describes the beds of Persia as consisting "only of two cotton quilts, one of which is folded double and serves as a mattress, the other as a covering, with a large flat pillow for the head."
 Was not the bed of the paralytic of this description? Luke iv. 10; Mark ix. 4-11.
 "Arise, take up thy bed," that is, thy mattress—the quilt spread under thee. Bed is a symbol of great tribulation and anguish.
 Rev. ii. 22.
- BEEZLEBUB, or BAALREBUB, [god of the fly], an idol of the Ekronites. 2 Kings i. 3.
 In the Greek New Testament it is spelled Beelzeboul, which means dung-god; the change of sound being perhaps introduced by the Jews for the purpose of throwing contempt on heathen divinities. The chief or prince of demons is called thus in Matt.
 xii. 24; Luke xi. 15.
- BENJAMIN, [son of my right hand], Jacob's youngest son. The tribe of Benjamin continued steady in its attachment to Judah when the ten tribes revolted, and formed part of the kingdom. Paul was of this tribe, Phil. iii. 5.
- BEREA, [heary, mighty], a town of Macedonia now called Peres; Acts xvi. 10, 12.
- BERNICE, [one that brings victory], daughter of Agrippa, surnamed the Great, and sister to young Agrippa, king of the Jews.
 Acts xxv. 23.
- BETH-*— See PANORON STONES.
- BETHAIA, [house of passage], a town on the east side of the Jordan, where it was supposed to be fordable. John i. 28.
- BETHANY, [house of song, of affliction], a village situated at the foot of Mount Olivet, 2 miles E. of Jerusalem, on the road to Jerusalem.
- BETHESDA, [house of mercy], a pool of water E. of Jerusalem, and N. of the temple, mentioned John v. 7-16.
- BETHLEHEM, [house of bread], a town of Judah, 6 miles S. of Jerusalem. The story is noted on account of its being the birthplace of David and Jesus. It was called Bethlehem of Judah, or Bethlehem Ephratah,
 (Gen. x. 8) to distinguish it from another
Bethlehem in Zabulon, near Nazareth, Matt.
 vii. 32.
- BETHPAGE, [a place of sheep], a village in Mount Olivet, near Bethany, and nearly 3 miles E. of Jerusalem.
- BETHSaida, [a house of fishing], a town of Galilee, on the west coast of the lake of Tiberias, S. W. of Capernaum; the birthplace of Philip, and residence of Andrew and Peter, John i. 41; a man was pronounced lame by Jesus, Matt. x. 21, and it was one of the first places ravaged by the Romans.
- BETTERRIGHT, the particular privileges enjoyed in most countries by the first-born son. With the Hebrews he was peculiarly Theodor's, Gen. xxi. 20; had a double share of his father's inheritance, Gen. xxi.
 17; had dominion over his brethren, Gen.
 xxvii. 29; and succeeded his father in the kingdom of high priesthood. Isaac, said his birthright to Jacob, Gen. xxx. 25; Job.
 xii. 10, 17. Heuben forfeited his on account of his incest, Gen. xxx. 2, 3; so his tribe always remained in obscurity, while his younger brethren shared the privileges.
 Levi had the priesthood; Judah the royalty; and Joseph the double portion.
- BISHOP, episcopus, Overseer; synonymous with Elder, and Shepherd. See Elder.
- BITHYNIA, (insular precipitation), a country of Asia Minor, bounded on the north by the Euxine or Black Sea.
- BLACK, or BLACKNESS, in prophecy is generally symbolical of affliction, disease, and distress. See Job xii. 20; Jer. iv. 28; xvi.
 21; xlv. 2; Lam. iv. 8; v. 10; Joel ii. 6; Nahum ii. 10.
- BLASPHEMY, Blasphemie, speaking against, whether God or man be the object. The word occurs 19 times in the New Testament. Under the law blasphemy against God was punishable with death, Lev. xxiv.
 16, 17, 23; and Jesus declares blasphemy against the Holy Spirit unpardonable, Matt. xii. 31; Mark iii. 29; Luke xii. 10.
- BLASTUS, (that binds and looses earth), Chamberlain to Herod, Acts xii. 20.
- BLESSING, no animal having any was to be sacrificed, Lev. xiii. 10; Deut. xv. 21; xxv.
 1; Mal. i. 14. Christ without blessing, 1 Pet.
 i. 10; and Christians to be so, Eph. v. 27.
- BLESSINGS, 88 instances of, Gen. xii. 11; Gen. xii. 2 Kings vi. 19; Paul, Acts ix. 8-10;
 Elymas, Acts xiii. 41; hindrance verbo, Matt. ix.
 27; xvi. 22; xx. 30-34; MARK viii. 28; x.
 51; Luke iv. 15; vi. 12; John i. 7. A symbol of ignorance.
- BLOOD, not to be eaten, Gen. ix. 4; forbidden under the law, Lev. xii. 17; vii. 26;
 xiv. 10, 14; xii. 20; forbidden to Christians, Acts xv. 29. The blood is the life of the animal, and synonymous for food besides, the fat and blood were God's part of every sacrifice. Blood is frequently synonymous of war, carnage, and slaughter. Eccl.
 ix. 2, 3, 6, 7, 11, 12. Rev. vii. 16. To drink water into blood is to eternal dantioned war.
- BLOOD OF CHRIST, redemption through it, Eph. i. 7; Col. i. 14; 1 Pet. i. 9. sanctification through it, Heb. x. 29, cleansing, 1 John i. 7; life, i. 2; the wine of the Lord's Supper called his blood, and the blood of the New Covenant, Matt. xxv. 28;

Math. xiv. 24; Luke xiii. 29; 1 Cor. xii. 26; also called the blood of the everlasting covenant. Heb. x. 1, 20.

HOANSHOES, (hoan of thunder), is ascribed to James and John. Mark iii. 17.

BODY, either natural or spiritual, Man's body, in its present state, is called natural, in distinction from the spiritual body to be raised up at the resurrection. The term is used in Scripture to denote an organized system of any kind. We also read of the body of sin, which is to be put off when immersed into the death of Christ. This is to be remembered in order to understand much of the figurative language of Paul relative to Christian experiences and sanctification. The Christian's body is to be kept pure, Rom. xii. 1; 1 Cor. vi. 18; 1 Thess. iv. 4; to be changed at the resurrection, 1 Cor. xv. 42-54; Phil. iii. 21; 1 John iii. 2. The Christian Church is called the body of Christ, Rom. xii. 4, 5; 1 Cor. x. 17; xii. 12-27, &c. All Christians are members of this body; and to it belong all the Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, Teachers, gifts, miracles, and honors bestowed by its head after his glorification. Jesus is the head of the body, and as the head is glorified, so will all the members be glorified with him. In the Lord's Supper, the bread is called the body of Christ, that is, the representation of his body, which is broken in remembrance of him.

BOOK, in Hebrew, Sepher, in Greek, Biblos. Various materials were formerly used in making books. Plates of lead and copper, the barks of trees, bricks, stone, and wood, were the first materials employed to engrave such things and monuments upon as men were willing to have transmitted to posterity. Hebdol's works were written on lead; the Roman laws on brass; God's on stone; and Solomon's on planks of wood. When these were last used, they were generally covered with a thin coat of wax, for ease both in writing and in blotting out, which explains the expression of David when he prays that his sins may be blotted out as a cloud, that is, the record of them. Palm leaves, being more convenient as to bulk and portableness, were afterwards made into books, and are still so used in India. Then the thin inner bark of trees, especially the elm; hence the Latin word liber (the inner bark of a tree) means also a book. Afterwards the Papyrus, or "paper reed," was used. Isa. xli. 7. Parchment was afterwards invented in Pergamus. Books of these two last substances were rolled on sticks like cloth, and hence the word volume, from the Latin word, volvo, to roll. Books thus rolled might have several seals, so that a person might break one and read till he came to another; whereas, if one of our books had several seals, all would be broken if one was. See Rev. v.

"Book of Life,"—an allusion to the registers kept in ancient cities of all the names of regular citizens. Phil. iv. 3. Honorable persons, not citizens, were sometimes entered here, which was giving the freedom of the city. Vagabonds and disorderly persons had their names erased. Rev. iii. 5. See Exod. xxxii. 32; Rev. xiii. 8; xxi. 27; xii. 10.

BOOKS, mentioned, but now extant; of the wars of the Lord, Num. xxi. 14, of Jasper, Josh. x. 15; 2 Sam. i. 18; of Samuel concerning the height, 1 Sam. x. 25, of Autimon, 1 Kings iv. 32, 33, of the chronicles of Israel, 1 Chron. xxvii. 24, of the acts of Solomon,

1 Kings xi. 41; of Nathan, Samuel, and Asa, 1 Chron. xxix. 29; of Ahoab the Shilonite, 2 Chron. ix. 29; of the visions of Iddo, 2 Chron. ix. 29; of Achaziah, 2 Chron. xii. 15; of Jeho, 2 Chron. xx. 31; of the sayings of the Seers, 2 Chron. xxxiii. 18; Paul's epistle to the Laodiceans, Col. iv. 16.

BOBOL, (trading ass), the father of Balaam, 2 Pet. ii. 15; also called Beor, Num. xxii. 5.

BOTTLES were anciently made of leather. The skin of a goat, pulled off whoe, and the places where the legs were, being tied up, formed a convenient bottle. As these grew tender by using, new wine, which had not done fermenting, could not be safely put in them. Matt. ix. 17. See Josh. ix. 4.

BOWELS, a word used formerly, as we now use the word heart; that is to represent pity, compassion, &c. The Hebrews ascribed the viscera were the seat of the intellect and of the tenderest passions.

BREAD is a word used in Scripture for food in general. As bread was usually made by the Jews in thin cakes, it was not cut but broken, which gave rise to the phrase.—BREAKING OF BREAD, which sometimes means the partaking of a meal, as in Luke xxiv. 35; Acts ii. 42; xi. 11; xxvii. 25. Also, to what is emphatically styled, "the breaking of the loaf," in the Lord's Supper, as mentioned in Acts ii. 42. See also Matt. xxvi. 26; Mark xiv. 22; Luke xiii. 20; Acts x. 6; 1 Cor. x. 16; xi. 23.

BREASTPLATE. A part of the Christian armor. See Eph. vi. 14; 1 Thess. v. 8. Also, a part of the high-priest's holy apparel, consisting of a piece of golden embroidery, about ten inches square, which on special occasions he wore on his breast. It was set with twelve precious stones, each bearing the name of one of the tribes of Israel. See Exod. xii. 4; xxviii. 15-29; xxxix. 8-11. BRETHREN (in Christ) to forgive each other, Matt. v. 18, 24; xviii. 21, 22; Gal. vi. 1; 2 Thess. ii. 13-15; to confess their faults, and pray for each other, James v. 16; to love each other, Rom. xii. 10; 1 Thess. iv. 9, 10; Heb. xii. 1.

BRIDE, a newly married woman. The congregation of Christ is espoused to him now, and will become his bride in the future age, sharing his nature, royal dignity, and dominion. Psa. xlv. 10-15; 2 Cor. xi. 2; Rev. xix. 7-9. The heavenly Jerusalem so called, Rev. xxi. 9.

BRIDEGROOM, a newly married man. Christ so called, Matt. ix. 15; Luke v. 34. See also Matt. xii. 1-15.

BRIMSTONE AND GRASS, employed to execute God's wrath, Gen. xix. 24; Luke xvii. 29; Psa. xli. 6; Ezek. xxxiii. 22. A symbol of destruction, Deut. xxix. 23; Job xviii. 15; Rev. xix. 20, &c.

CATAPIHAS, (a searcher), a high-priest of the Jews, and son-in-law to Annas; mentioned John xi. 60, 69; xviii. 13, 14, 4.

CAIN, (possession), the first-born son of Adam; his history, Gen. iv.; alluded to, 1 John iii. 12; Jude 11.

CALL, to invite, from kaleso, to call, which occurs about 120 times, and proskaleto, to call to one, about 30 times.

CALLED, Allesho, derived from the above; occurs 11 times, and is applied to all who professedly obey Christ, but not to the chosen. "Many are called, but few chosen."

CALLING, Allesho, profession, occurs 14 times, and is used once to designate a common trade, 1 Cor. vii. 20, and in all the Christian's calling.

- of the Jordan; anciently called Paneas, now Banias. It was enlarged and embellished by Philip the tetrarch; and called Cesarea in honor of Tiberias Cesar; and the name of Philippi was added to distinguish it from Cesarea on the Mediterranean. Mentioned Matt. xvi. 13; Mark viii. 27.
- CHALCEDONY. See PARCHOUS STONES.
- CHARGE of Jesus to the apostles, Matt. x. 1. &c.; to the seventy, Luke x. 1-12; to Peter, John xvi. 13-19; to the apostles before his ascension, Matt. xxviii. 18-20; Mark xvi. 15-19; of Paul to the elders of Ephesus, Acts xx. 17-25.
- Charges with them,* Acts xxi. 24. It was meritorious among the Jews to contribute to the expenses of sacrifices and offerings, which those who had taken the vow of Nazaritism were to offer when the time of the vow was to be accomplished; whoever paid a part of these expenses were reputed to partake in the merits of him who fulfilled the vow.
- CHARIUM, or HARAN, now Heren, a town of Mesopotamia, 70 miles from the Euphrates, 100 miles N. E. of Antioch. Acts vii. 4.
- CHARITY, recommended, Gal. iii. 5; 1 Thess. iv. 5; 1 Tim. v. 2; Titus ii. 5; an example of it in Joseph, Gen. xxxix. 7; in Job, xxi. 1-11.
- CHERUBIM, plural Cheubim, first mentioned Gen. iii. 24; thought by some to be an order of celestial beings, but never clearly and certainly applied to angelic nature. They were probably symbolical representations of the redeemed, and often referred to in the Old Testament, and in the book of Revelation. The cherubim are represented as living creatures, Ezek. i. 2; Rev. iv. 1; or as images wrought in tapestry, gold, or wood, Exod. xxv. 34; xxvii. 7; Ezek. xli. 23; as having a plurality of faces, Exod. xxv. 20; Ezek. i. 14; xli. 18; and wings, 1 Kings vi. 27; Ezek. i. 6; Rev. iv. 8. A cherub presents the highest earthly forms and powers of creation in harmonious and perfect union, being a winged figure, like a man in form, full of eyes, and with a four-fold head—of a man, a lion, an ox, and an eagle. The cherub placed in the holy of holies, overshadowed the mercy-seat, and were made of the same mass of pure beaten gold, Exod. xxv. 19; Solomon's cherubs described, 2 Kings vi. 23-29; viii. 6. It is probable that the seraphim of Isaiah, (chap. vi.) the cherubim of Ezekiel, (chap. i.) and the living creatures of John, (Rev. iv.) are identical, only differing in name. It is thought by some that the Egyptian sphinxes and the winged bulls lately discovered by Layard at Ninevah, were imitations of the Hebrew cherubs.
- CHIEF CAPTAIN of the Band; an officer at the head of a detachment of soldiers belonging to the Roman legion, which was lodged in the adjacent castle, and stationed on feast days near the temple to prevent disorder. The Roman garrison was stationed in the castle of Antonia.
- CHILDREN, to be instructed, Gen. xviii. 10; Deut. iv. 9; vi. 6; xi. 18; Psal. lxxviii. 5; Eph. vi. 4; their duty, to parents, Lev. xix. 5; Prov. i. 8; vi. 20; xiii. 1; xv. 5; xxvii. 22; Eph. vi. 1; Col. iii. 20; example of Jesus, Luke ix. 51; to honor and maintain their parents, Exod. xx. 12; Deut. v. 16; Eph. vi. 2, 3; smiting of parents punishable with death, Exod. xxi. 15; Lev. xx. 9; Deut. xxi. 18; Jesus calls his disciples children, John xiii. 33; Christians called so by the apostles, Gal. iv. 19; 1 John ii. 1.
- CHILDREN "of the brideschamber." A select number of guests, who were the constant attendants on the bridesroom during the marriage feast. Matt. ix. 15.
- "of the promise." the seed of Abraham according to the faith, on whom the promised blessings would be bestowed, Rom. ix. 8; Gal. iv. 28.
- "of the prophets,"—their disciples, pupils, followers, Acts iii. 25.
- "of the resurrection," Luke xx. 26.
- A term equivalent to "the raised up."
- CHILNEROTH, Lake of, the same as Genesareth,—which see.
- CHIOS, (open or opening.) an island of the Aegean sea, over against Smyrna, now called Setis, Acts xx. 15.
- CHISEL, (green herb.) a Corinthian convert, mentioned 1 Cor. i. 11.
- CHORAZIN, (the secret.) a town of Galilee, at the north end of the Lake of Tiberias, a little to the east of Capernaum; one of the principal scenes of Christ's ministry. Matt. x. 21; Luke x. 13.
- CHOSEN, electus, elect, chosen. This word is found 23 times. It is translated in the common version, elect, 10 times, and chosen, 7 times. The passage, "For many are called, but few chosen," Matt. xx. 6, probably alludes to the choice of Roman soldiers, from the citizens of Rome. All were liable to serve, but some only were selected.
- CHRIST. (See Assisted.) A Greek word answering to the Hebrew word, Messiah, and signifying the anointed or consecrated one, the Messiah—three terms of similar import. John i. 41. The name Christ is an official title, and is not a mere appellation, to distinguish our Lord from other persons named Jesus. The force of many passages of Scripture is greatly weakened by overlooking this. In the apostolical epistles, however, Christ is sometimes used as a proper name instead of JESUS.
- Christ's False.* our Savior predicted that many false Messiahs would come, Matt. xxiv. 24, and his word has been abundantly fulfilled. One named Corintha lived in the second century, and had many followers, and occasioned the death of more than half a million of Jews. Others have continued to appear, even down to modern times.
- CHRISTIAN. Christianos, is found only 3 times in the New Testament—Acts xi. 26; xvi. 58; 1 Pet. iv. 16, and was a name given at Antioch to those who believed Jesus to be the Messiah.
- CHRYSOLITE. See PARCHOUS STONES.
- CHRYSOPHRASUS. "
- CHURCH. See CONGREGATION.
- CILICIA, (which rolls or overturns.) a country in the south of Asia Minor, at the east of the Mediterranean Sea; its capital was Tarsus, Acts xxi. 30.
- CIRCUMCISION, a cutting around, because in this rite the foreskin was cut away. This rite was given to Abraham as a sign of that covenant which God had entered into with him, that out of his loins should proceed the Messiah. To be spiritually circumcised, or to be the spiritual seed of Abraham, is to have the thing signified by that ceremony, and to perform all those duties which circumcision was designed to enforce,—namely, to believe in the Messiah, to put off the old man, and to serve him as new creatures, which is signified by out-circumcision of the ordinances of the gospel, and submission to them. Phil. iii. 3.
- CITY, Babylon, the Great City, Rev.

ALPHABETICAL APPENDIX.

- xiv. 8; xv. 19; xvii. 18; xviii. 10, 12, 10, 21: Jerusalem, the Great City, Rev. xxi. 10: the Holy City, Rev. xxi. 2; xxi. 3; xxii. 19. A city is the symbol of a corporate body, under one and the same police.
- CLAUDA, [a lamentable voice], a small island near the S. W. shore of Crete, approached by Paul in his voyage to Jerusalem, Acts xviii. 16. It is now called Gazo, and is occupied by about thirty families.
- CLAUDIA, [name], a Christian woman, probably a convert of Paul, 2 Tim. iv. 21.
- CLAUDIUS. See Cressa.
- LYSIAS, the Roman tribune, mentioned Acts xxi. 23; xxii. 24; xxiii. 26.
- CLEAN and UNCLEAN, terms used in a ceremonial sense; applied to certain animals, and to men in certain cases, by the law of Moses, Lev. xi; xv; Num. xix; Deut. xiv. A distinction between clean and unclean animals existed before the deluge, Gen. vii. 1. The Mosaic law was not merely arbitrary, but grounded on reasons connected with animal sacrifices, with health, with the separation of the Jews from other nations, and their practice of moral purity, Lev. xi. 43-45; xx. 24-26; Deut. xiv. 2, 8, 21. The ritual law was still observed in the time of Christ, but under the Gospel is annulled.
- CLEMENT, [mild, gold, mercurial], mentioned Phil. iv. 3.
- CLEOPAS, [the whole glory], the husband of Mary, John xix. 25, called also Alphaeus, which see. The one mentioned in Luke xxiv. 18, was probably a different person.
- CLOUD, an emblem of prosperity and glory. To ride on clouds, is to rule and conquer. When no storm accompanies, or no attribute is attached to it, a cloud is the emblem of majesty and glory. By Daniel it is said, "One like the son of man came with the clouds of heaven;" to which our Lord adds, as explanatory of the symbol, "with power and great glory," Matt. xxiv. 30. Clouds are symbolical of armies and multitudes, probably by their grand and majestic movements. They betokened the presence of Jehovah, as on mount Sinai, Exod. xix. 9; in the temple, 1 Kings viii. 10; in the cloudy pillar, and on the mount of transfiguration. They are found in many representations of the majesty of God, Psa. xviii. 11, 12; xxvii. 3; and of Christ, Rev. xiv. 14-16.
- "of witnesses," Heb. xii. 1; alludes to the spectators in the Olympic games, and transferred by a strong figure to patriarchs, prophets, worthies, God, and angels, the spectators of the Christian race.
- CLOVEN TONGUES, Acts ii. 3. An emblem of the various languages in which the apostles were to preach the gospel. They were like flames of fire parted, and these parted flames looked like tongues; so a flame of fire is, with the Jews, called a tongue of fire.
- CNIDUS, [dedicated to Venus], a city and promontory of Asia Minor, Acts xxvii. 7.
- COAL, usually in Scripture, charcoal, or the embers of fire. From recent disclosures, it is probable that mineral coal was used anciently in Syria. It is now procured in Lebanon, and a mine is worked at Cornale, eight miles from Beirut.
- COAT. The Jews wore two principal garments; the interior is called the coat, or tunic, Matt. v. 40. It was made of linen, and encircled the whole body, extending down to the knees. It reached up to the neck, with long or short sleeves. Over this was worn the mantle or cloak. The coat was sometimes woven like a stocking into its proper shape and size without any seam. Exod. xxxix. 27; Job xix. 23. Such coats are still worn by Arabs, and are considered of great value.
- COCK-CROWING. In Matt. xxvi. 24, our Lord is represented as saying, that "before the cock crow," Peter should deny him thrice; so Luke xxii. 34; John xiii. 28. But according to Mark xiv. 20, he says, "before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice." These passages may be reconciled by observing that ancient Greek and Latin authors mention two cock-crowings, one of which was soon after midnight, the other about three o'clock in the morning; and this latter, being most noticed by men as the signal of their approaching labors, was called by way of eminence, "the cock-crowing;" and to this alone, Matthew, giving the general sense of our Savior's warning to Peter refers; but Mark more accurately recording his very words, mentions the two cock-crowings.
- COHORT, a company of soldiers which guarded a Roman governor or magistrate, when he went into any province.
- COLLECTION for poor believers, Acts xi. 29; Rom. xv. 26-28; 1 Cor. xvi. 1; 2 Cor. viii. 1-4; ix. 1.
- COLOSSE, [punishment, correction], a city of Phrygia, situated on a hill near the junction of the Lycus with the Meander, and not far from the cities Hierapolis and Laodicea, Col. ii. 1; iv. 13, 15. With these cities it was destroyed by an earthquake in the tenth year of Nero, about A. D. 65, while Paul was yet living. It was soon rebuilt. It is now called Chonos.
- COLOSSIANS, Epistle to, written by Paul, from Rome, A. D. 62, during his imprisonment in that city, to the congregation at Colosse. This congregation was probably gathered by this apostle, as well as the one in Laodicea, though some ascribe it to Epaphras. See Acts xvi. 8; xviii. 23. Some think this epistle was written at the same time, and sent by the same bearer, as the one to the Ephesians. It is certainly devoted to the development of the same grand secret, — viz., the call of the Gentiles to a participation in the  joys of the glad tidings, and to guard the Colossians, whether Jews or Greeks, against Judaizing and philosophizing teachers. Whoever would understand this epistle and that to the Ephesians, must read them together.
- COLT, "the foul of an ass." The direction given by Jesus to two of his disciples in Matt. xxi. 2, 3, to bring him the colt they would find tied in the village, that he might ride thereon into Jerusalem, according to the prophet evidently implies a previous understanding or acquaintance with the owners of him; for he adds, "if any one ask why you loose him, you shall answer, Because the Master needs him," Luke xix. 31. Accordingly, "as they were loosing the colt, the owners said to them, Why loose you the colt? They answered, The Master needs him," (ver. 33, 34.) "AND THEY," (the owners,) "let them go," Mark xi. 6.
- COMFORTER, parakletos, advocate, monitor, helper, comforter. The original word only occurs five times; John xiv. 16, 26; xv. 26; xvi. 7; 1 John ii. 1. Comforter is the most remote meaning of the word, and does not adequately describe the office of the Paraclete; it was to help and direct as well as to console.
- COMMON, profane, ceremonially unclean.

The Greek term κοινος, properly signifies what belongs to all, but the Hellenists applied it to what was profane, i. e. not holy, and therefore of common or promiscuous use, Mark vii. 7, 5; Acts x. 14, 15; Rom. xiv. 14.

COMMON, "had all things common, Acts ii. 44. A community of goods was practised at all the Jewish feasts at Jerusalem, and no man's house was his own. So when the Spirit was poured out, on account of the detention at Jerusalem, there was a kind of community for the time being, that none might suffer from want; but the subsequent contributions of the saints show that there was not an equality of property, Acts xi. 29; 1 Cor. xvi. 1.

CONCISION, (cutting), a term of reproach, applied to certain Judaizing teachers at Philippi, as mere cutters of the flesh; in contrast with the true circumcision, those who were created anew in Christ Jesus unto righteousness and true holiness, Phil. iii. 2.

CONGREGATION, ekklesia, occurs 114 times, and is derived from ekkaléo, I call out. It is an assembly of the called. The whole community of professing Christians make the one body or congregation of the Lord, and those meeting in one place constitute the Christian congregation in that place.

CONSCIENCE, occurs in the common version 80 times, and once in the plural form, 2 Cor. v. 11, for which we have in the original, sumeidenas, compounded of sun, together, and eides, to see or know,—in Latin conscio; whence comes conscience, the power of judging ourselves, and the relations in which we stand to our Creator and to our fellow-creatures. The conscience is said to be weak when knowledge is limited, pure when free from accusation, and evil when polluted with guilt. We have a good conscience mentioned, 1 Tim. i. 5; 1 Pet. iii. 21; pure, 1 Tim. iii. 9; clear or void of offence, Acts xxiv. 16; weak, 1 Cor. viii. 7; defiled, Titus i. 16; Heb. x. 22; seared, 1 Tim. iv. 2.

CONTENTMENT recommended, Prov. xxv. 9; Heb. xiii. 5; 1 Tim. vi. 6; instances of, Gen. xxviii. 9; 2 Sam. xix. 35—37; 2 Kings iv. 13; Phil. iv. 11.

CONVERSATION, edifying, recommended, Matt. xii. 35; xiv. 14—32; Col. iii. 10; iv. 6; 1 Thess. iv. 18; v. 11; vain and sinful to be avoided, Matt. xii. 26; Eph. iv. 29; v. 3—7; Col. iii. 8, 9; 2 Pet. ii. 7, 5.

COOS, a small island in the Mediterranean, near the south-west point of Asia Minor. Acts xxi. 1. Hippocrates, the famous physician, and Appellus, the eminent painter, were natives of this island. It is now called Stanchio.

COPPER, a metal, known and wrought before the flood, Gen. iv. 22. Where the word brass occurs in the common version, it should be rendered copper.

CORBAN, a sacred gift, Matt. xv. 5; xlii. 18. The Pharisees taught that a man might escape all obligations to support his indigent parents, by saying of his property, "Be it corban." In this case, if he did not give his property at that time to the temple he was bound to do so at his death, though his parents should thus be left destitute. Thus did they "make void the law" of honoring their father and their mother, "through their traditions." Mark vii. 11—13.

CORINTH, (which is satisfied, beauty), a celebrated city of Greece, in the north part of the Peloponnese, on the isthmus of Corinth, 47 miles W. N. W. of Athens. It was celebrated for wealth, commerce, arts, and magnificence. Paul preached here for two years, Acts xviii. 1.

CORINTHIANS. The two epistles under this name were written by Paul to the Christians at Corinth, where he had preached with great success, Acts xviii. The first epistle written from Ephesus was in reply to intelligence received from Corinth, through the family of Chloe, 1 Cor. i. 11, and by a letter from the congregation, seeking advice, &c. i. 1. His chief design appears to have been to support his own authority, dignity, and reputation; to vindicate himself from the calumnies of the factious; and to diminish the credit and influence of their aspiring leaders, by exhibiting their errors. He reproves the congregation for certain immoralities found amongst them, but which were chargeable to their factious leaders. He then treats successively of lawsuits amongst Christians; on single and married life; on eating meats offered to idols; on his call, mission, right, and authority as an apostle, &c.; and meets several errors and sins prevalent in the congregation by timely instructions as to disputes among brethren, decorum in public assemblies, the Lord's Supper, spiritual gifts, the resurrection of believers; general exhortations for collections for the poor saints in Jerusalem, and closes with friendly exhortations and salutations.

Paul, having tested his power in Corinth by the first letter, and hearing of its success from Titus, he takes courage, writes a second letter, speaks more boldly of himself, and deals more severely and sharply with his opponents. In this he stuns at the externalization of the faction which he had attacked and weakened in his first letter. He makes good all his claims to the respect, veneration, and submission of the Corinthians; strips his antagonists of every pretext; and by the most pathetic recital of his own history, and attentions to unity and peace, closes his communications to this large and eminent congregation.

COUNCILS, (of a kind), a pious Roman-catholic, stationed at Concora in Palestine, to whom Peter was sent from Japan, a disciple of Apollon, to tell him "words whereby he might be saved," and on whom and his friends, the attractive gifts of the Spirit were poured out, in the establishment of Peter and his companions, Acts x. Cornelius, though a Gentile, was probably a convert to the Jewish religion at the time of Peter's vision.

CORNELIUS-STONE, a masonry stone, usually distinct from the foundation, Jer. li. 26; and so placed at the corner of the building as to bind together the two walls meeting upon it. Such a stone is found at Ibadah, twenty-eight feet long, six and a half feet wide, and four feet high.

COUNCIL, a tribunal frequently mentioned in the New Testament. The Great Council so called, did not consist of the 72 elders who were originally appointed to assist Moses in the civil administration of the government, but was instituted to the time of the Macchabees. It consisted of chief priests, elders, (who were, perhaps, the heads of the tribes or families,) and scribes, amounting by the whole to 72 persons, as is called by Jewish writers, the Sanhedrin.

- This council possessed extensive authority, taking cognizance not only of religious matters, but of appeals from inferior courts of justice, and of the general affairs of the kingdom. After Judea became a Roman province, the council was deprived of the power of inflicting capital punishments, for which reason they delivered our Savior to Pilate, demanding his death.
- COVENANT, diatheke, institution, arrangement, constitution, covenant, occurs in the New Testament 23 times. God's promise to Noah is called a covenant, Gen. ix. 9-17. God's covenant with Abraham, xvii. 2-9. The Mosaic law was another covenant, Deut. iv. 13. The new and better covenant, mentioned Heb. viii. 6, 8, 10.
- COVERTNESS, an eager, unreasonable desire of gain, a longing after the goods of this world. It is called covetousness, Col. iii. 5. Ephesians, vi. 12; Deut. v. 21; Rom. vii. 5; 1 Tim. i. 6; 1 Tim. ii. 9; 1 Tim. iii. 10; 1 Tim. vi. 10; 1 Tim. vi. 10; 1 Tim. vi. 10; 1 Tim. vi. 10; 1 Tim. vi. 10.
- CRUCIFIX, [crucifixus, crucifixus,] a person crucified. 1 Tim. ii. 16.
- CRISTANS, inhabitants of Crete, Titus i. 12.
- CRISTA, [crista,] an island at the mouth of the Aegean sea, between Rhodes and Peloponnesus. Acts xviii. 7. It is now called Candia.
- CRISTUS, [crucifixus,] the chief of the Jewish synagogue at Corinth, who was converted to Christianity by Paul, Acts xviii. 6; and baptized by him, 1 Cor. i. 14.
- CROSS, a kind of gibbet made of pieces of wood placed transversely, whether crossing at right angles, one at the top of the other, T, or below the top, +, or diagonally, X, on which criminals were executed. To be crucified was deemed the strongest mark of infamy, and was inflicted on the vilest slave, and the most atrocious transgressors. Deut. xxi. 23; Gal. iii. 13. It is used metonymically for the doctrine of the gospel, Gal. ii. 20; vi. 14. Trouble for the sake of religion, Mark viii. 34; Matt. xvi. 24.
- CROWN, a head ornament, worn in the East as a mark of dignity and honor. Those used in the games were made of parsley, pine, flowers, &c. 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8. Those for kings, of gold, adorned with gems. 2 Chron. xxiii. 11; 2 Sam. i. 10; xii. 30. Metaphorically, that is called a crown which gives glory or dignity. Thus Jehovah is said to be a crown of glory to Judah, Isa. lxxii. 8. Christ is said to have a "crown of gold," and "many crowns," Rev. xix. 12, meaning his future ineffable grandeur and sovereignty. Crown of life, a triumphant immortality, James i. 12; Rev. ii. 10; iii. 11; of righteousness, 2 Tim. iv. 8; of glory, 1 Pet. v. 4, also incorruptible, 1 Cor. ix. 25.
- CRUCIFY, to put to death by the cross. Figuratively, it means to subdue our evil propensities.
- CRUCIFIXION, HOUR OR.—Mark xv. 25, states it to be the third, and John xix. 14, the sixth hour. This apparent contradiction is supposed to have arisen from confounding the letter gamma with the letter sigma, which were used as numerals in ancient MSS. Therefore it ought to be the third hour which answers to our nine o'clock in the morning, Acts ii. 15. Of this opinion are Ortesbach, Semler, Rosenmuler, Joadridge, Whitty, Bengel, Erasmus, &c. Another method of solving the difficulty, and probably the best one, is, that John writing in Asia, adopted the Roman method of reckoning time, which was the same as ours.
- CRYSTAL, a hard, transparent, and colorless fossil, of a regularly angular form. The word translated crystal in Ezek. i. 27, is rendered fiat in Gen. xxxi. 40; Job xxxvii. 18, and Jer. xxxvi. 20; and ice in Job vi. 16, xxxviii. 29, and Isa. cxviii. 17. The word primarily denotes ice, and is given to this substance from its resemblance to it. The firmament above the cherubim, the sea of glass, the river of life, and the light of the new Jerusalem, are compared to crystal, for their purity, clearness and splendor. Ezek. i. 27; Rev. iv. 6; xxii. 1.
- CUBIT, a measure used among the ancients, about 18 inches long. A cubit was originally the distance from the elbow to the extremity of the middle finger, which is the fourth part of a well-proportioned man's stature. The sacred cubit was nearly 23 inches.
- CUMMIN, a plant of an oily and spicy quality, somewhat resembling fennel, Isa. xxviii. 25; Matt. xxiii. 23.
- CUP. This word is taken in Scripture both in a proper and in a figurative sense. In its proper sense, See Gen. xii. 15; xlii. 2; 1 Kings vii. 28. In a figurative sense, as an emblem of prosperity, See Psa. xli. 6; xvi. 5; xxiii. 5; and of Divine judgments and man's misery, Isa. li. 17, 23; Psa. lxxviii. 8; Rev. xiv. 9, 10, &c. "Cup of blessing," 1 Cor. x. 16; "Cup of salvation," Psa. cxvi. 13; a "cup of cold water,"—a valuable gift in a hot climate, where water is scarce. Matt. x. 42; Mark ix. 41.
- CURSE, after the fall, Gen. iii. 14-10; of Cain, iv. 11; subjoined to the law, Deut. xxvii. 18-20; of the Israelites, if disobedient, Lev. xxvi. 14-39; Deut. xxviii. 15, &c.; remarkable instances of cursing, Gen. ix. 25; 2 Kings ii. 23; Psa. cix. 6, &c.; Jer. xvii. 18; forbidden under the gospel dispensation, Matt. v. 44; Rom. xii. 14; James iii. 10. Learned commentators aver that wherever the Hebrew word so translated occurs in connection with the name of God it should be rendered bless. It is actually often so rendered in our Bible, as Gen. xxiii. 11; Judges i. 15; 1 Sam. xxv. 27; 2 Kings v. 15.
- CYPRUS, [fair, fairness,] a large and populous island in the Mediterranean, situated between Cilicia and Myria, and so called from the Cypress trees with which it abounded. Barnabas and Mnason were natives of it, Acts iv. 36; xxi. 16; the gospel preached there, Acts x. 10; visited by Paul and Barnabas, A. D. 44, Acts xiii. 4-13. See also Acts v. 39; xxvii. 4.
- CYRENE, [a wall, coldness,] a city of Lybia in Africa, west of Egypt. Matt. xxvii. 32; Acts ii. 1; xi. 10.
- CYRENIUS, [one who governs,] a governor of Syria. Luke ii. 2.
- DALMANUTHA, [bucket, branch,] a town of Palestine, on the S. E. part of the lake of Tiberias, near Magdala. Mark viii. 10.
- DALMATIA, [deceitful lamps,] the southern part of Illyricum, on the gulf of Venice. 2 Tim. iv. 10.
- DAMARIS, [little woman,] an Athenian lady, who was converted by Paul, Acts xvii. 34.
- DAMASCENES, [of Damascus,] 2 Cor. xi. 32.
- DAMASCUS, [similitude of burning,] the most ancient city on record, and long the capital of Syria: first mentioned in Gen.

xiv. 16; xv. 2: and now probably the oldest city on the globe. It is about 100 miles from Jerusalem, and contains at the present time some 80,000 inhabitants. A street is still found here called "Straight," running a mile or more into the city from the eastern gate. Acts ix. 11.

DANIEL, [Judgment of God,] called Belteshazzar by the Chaldeans, a prophet descended from the royal family of David, who was carried captive to Babylon when very young, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, B. C. 606. Daniel rose by his wisdom to eminence and honor, and served in the courts of Nebuchadnezzar, and Belshazzar, kings of Babylon, and afterwards under Darius the Mede, and Cyrus the Persian. His great influence may be inferred from Ezek. xiv. 13, 14; xxviii. 2, 8, as well as from consulting his own narrative. The book which bears his name, distinctly foretells the time of Messiah's first advent: and under the emblem of a great image, and of four beasts, the successive rise and fall of the four great universal monarchies of Babylon, Persia, Greece, and Rome, after which, the kingdom of Messiah, like the stone from the mountain, shall fill the whole earth, and have no successor. The prophecies contained in the latter part of the book extend from the days of Daniel to the resurrection of the dead. Christ testifies to the genuineness and authenticity of the book. Matt. xxiv. 15; of which there is the strongest evidence, both internal and external.

DARKNESS, supernatural, Exod. x. 21—23; Luke xxiii. 44, 45. Also, a symbol of ignorance and of affliction.

DAVID, [beloved,] king of Israel, prophet and psalmist. He was youngest son of Jesse, of the tribe of Judah, born in Bethlehem, B. C. 1055; and one of the most remarkable men in either sacred or secular history. His life is fully recorded in 1 Sam. xlv. to 1 Kings ii. The phrase, "a man after God's own heart," does not refer to either his private or personal moral conduct, but to his public official acts.

DAY. The sacred writers generally divide the day into twelve hours. The sixth hour always ends at noon throughout the year; and the twelfth hour is the last hour before sunset. But in summer, all the hours of the day were longer than in winter, while those of night were shorter. Day in prophetic style, "I have given you a day for a year," is the rule: one revolution of the earth on its axis for a revolution in its orbit. Day is also used for an appointed season, Isa. xxiv. 8: and for an enlightened state, 1 Thess. v. 5. "Last day," refers to the time of judgment: and "last days," to the time of Messiah's reign, Isa. ii. 2; Micah iv. 1.

DEACON, diakonos, minister, servant, occurs 31 times, and is applied to both males and females, whose business it was to serve the whole congregation in any capacity.

DEAD SEA, SEA OF SODOM, SALT SEA, OR LAKE ASPHALTITES, a salt lake in Palestine, 70 miles long, and 10 to 15 broad. It occupies the spot where the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah are supposed to have stood. The water is clear and limpid, but very salt and bitter, and of greater specific gravity than that of any other lake that is known.

DEAD PERSONS, insensible, and know not anything, Job iii. 18; xiv. 21; Psa. vi. 5; lxxxvii. 10—12; cxv. 17; cxlvi. 4; Eccl. i. 5; xiii. 7; Isa. xxxviii. 18; shall be raised,

Job xix. 26, 27; Psa. xlix. 50; John v. 25; Rev. xx. 12. Instances of the dead raised; by Elijah, 1 Kings xvii. 17—23; by Elisha, 2 Kings iv. 18—37; by his bones, xiii. 21; by Jesus, Matt. ix. 25; Mark v. 41, 42; Luke vii. 16; viii. 54, 55; John xi. 1—44; by Peter, Acts ix. 40, 41; by Paul, xx. 10—13.

DEATH, how it came into the world, Gen. ii. 17; iii. 19; Rom. v. 12; vi. 23; 1 Cor. xv. 21. Natural death is a ceasing to be, or a destruction of animal life, and is certain, Job xiv; Psa. xlix. 5—20; lxxxix. 48; Eccl. viii. 8; ix. 4; called a sleep to believers, John xi. 11—14; Acts vii. 60; xiii. 30; 1 Cor. xv. 18, 51; 1 Thess. iv. 13—16. Is expressive of alienation from God, and exposure to his wrath, John v. 24; Eph. ii. 1—6; Col. ii. 13; 1 John iii. 14; second death mentioned, Rev. ii. 11; x. 6, 14; xxi. 8.

DEBTS to be faithfully paid, Psa. xxxvii. 21; Prov. iii. 27, 28; to be avoided, Rom. Rom. xiii. 8; used figuratively for our sins, Matt. vi. 12; a parable on the subject, Matt. xviii. 21—35.

DECAPOLIS, [ten cities,] a district of country comprising ten cities, lying chiefly to the east of the Jordan, and the lake of Tiberias.

DELUGE. See FLOOD.

DEMAS, [popular,] a fellow-laborer with Paul at Thessalonica, who afterwards deserted him, Col. iv. 14; 2 Tim. iv. 10; Philemon 24.

DEMETRIUS, [belonging to coins,] a silver-smith of Ephesus, and an idolater for gain, Acts xix. 24. Also a disciple mentioned 8 John 12.

DEMON, from daimoon and daimonion, defined by lexicons to be a heathen god, deity, tutelary genius, evil spirit. Plato derives the word from daemones, knowing; Eusebius, from daimonios, to be terrified; and Proclus, from daimo, to distribute. By ancient heathen writers, the word demon, by itself, occurs usually in a good sense. Philo affirms that Moses calls those angels whom the philosophers call demons, and they are only different names that imply one and the same substance. In later times the word was used in a bad sense. Josephus and the New Testament writers use it in this manner. Some suppose demons to be fallen angels, others the spirits of bad men; both theories, however, are without foundation. The possessions of the New Testament are always attributed to them; never to the ho diabolos. The word demon occurs about 60 times in the New Testament. Whatever may be the correct idea with regard to the demons, as Dr. George Campbell well observes: "They are exhibited as the causes of the most dreadful calamities to the unhappy persons whom they possess—dumbness, deafness, madness, palsy, epilepsy, and the like. The descriptive titles given them always denote some ill quality or other." And again, "When I find mention made of the number of demons in particular possessions, their actions so particularly distinguished from the actions of the man possessed, conversations held by the former in regard to the disposal of them after their expulsion, and accounts given how they were actually disposed of—when I find desires and passions ascribed particularly to them, and similitudes from the conduct which they usually observe, it is impossible for me to deny their existence."

DEMONIACS, demonized persons, or †† who were supposed to have a dem

- demons, occupying them, suspending the faculties of their minds, and governing the members of their bodies, so that what was said and done by them was ascribed to the indwelling demon.
- DENARIUS, the principal silver coin of the Romans, and in value worth from 15 to 17 cents, according to the coinage. A denarius was the day-wages of a laborer in Palestine. Matt. xx. 2, 9.
- DELIBE, [casting], a small town of Lycaonia, in Asia Minor, to which Paul and Barnabas fled from Lystra, A. D. 41, Acts xiv. 20. It lay at the foot of the Taurus mountains on the north, 16 or 20 miles east of Lystra.
- DESERTS, applied to hilly regions, &c., thinly inhabited, Luke i. 80, Matt. iii. 1; and the word so translated in our Bible often means no more than the common uncultivated grounds in the neighborhood of towns on which the inhabitants grazed their domestic cattle.
- DEVIL, from diabolos, occurs some 30 times, and means a slanderer, traducer, false accuser. Paul uses the word in the plural number three times—1 Tim. iii. 11; 2 Tim. iii. 3; Titus ii. 3—and applies it to both males and females.
- DIADEM, a royal head dress, rather different from the crown, and worn by queens. A prince sometimes puts on several diadems. Ptolemy having conquered Syria, entered Antioch in triumph, with the diadems of Asia and Egypt on his head. John saw on Christ's head "many diadems," Rev. xii. 3; xiii. 1; xiv. 13.
- DIAMOND. See PASCIOUS STONES.
- DIANA, or ARTEMIS, [luminous, perfect], a celebrated goddess of the Romans and Greeks, and one of their twelve superior deities. She was like the Syrian goddess Ashtaroth, and appears to have been worshipped at Ephesus with impure rites and magical mysteries. Acts xix. 19. The temple of Diana was the pride and glory of Ephesus. It was 425 feet long, and 230 broad, and had 127 columns of white marble, each 60 feet high. It was 220 years in building, and was one of the seven wonders of the world.
- DIDYMUS, [a twin], the surname of Thomas. John xxi. 2.
- DIONYSIUS, [divinely touched], a member of the Areopagus at Athens, and a convert of Paul. Acts xvii. 34, and burnt as a martyr, A. D. 85. Being at Heliopolis in Egypt, at the time of Christ's death, on observing the supernatural darkness he exclaimed, "Either the God of nature suffers, or sympathizes with one who suffers."
- DIOSEPHES, [ourished of Jupiter], mentioned 3 John 9.
- DIP, to immerse. The people of the East eat with their fingers instead of knives and forks, and therefore dip their hand in the dish. For fluid substances they have spoons. John xii. 26.
- DISCIPLE, a learner, or follower of another, John ix. 28. It signifies in the New Testament, a follower of Christ, &c., or a convert to his gospel. John ix. 18; Acts vi. 1.
- DISPENSATION, oikonomia, economy, administration of affairs,—from oikos, a house, nomos, to administer—economy, the management of a family; hence arrangement, dispensation, or administration, a more general sense—occurs 19 times.
- DOG. To call a person a dog in the East, is expressive of the highest contempt. The term was applied by the Jews to Gentiles. It was not "proper to give the children's bread to dogs," Matt. xv. 26. The bad properties of dogs are obstinacy, barking, crassity, biting, insatiable gluttony, sluttiness in lust, vomiting and returning to their vomit. Hence the name is given to evil-doing, unprincipled teachers, Phil. iii. 2; and to such as are excluded from the holy city, Rev. xxi. 13.
- DOOR, the symbol of opportunity, way of access or introduction. John x. 7.
- DORCAS in Greek the same as Tabitha in Syrian, that is, gazella, the name of a pious and charitable woman at Joppa, whom Peter raised from the dead, Acts ix. 36—41.
- DRACHMA, a silver coin common among the Greeks, which was also current among the Jews, in value about 16 cents, or 6d.
- DRAGON, signifies either a large fish, as the whale, or a crocodile, or great serpent. In some places, it evidently means the deadly poisonous lizard called Geco by the East Indians. By the Egyptians, Persians, and Indians the dragon is regarded as the established emblem of a monarch. Sometimes it is used for monarchical despotism in general. The Roman government, both in its pagan and papal forms, as a persecuting power, is represented by this symbol.
- DRESS, injunctions concerning it, Deut. xxii. 5; Isa. iii. 16, &c.; 1 Tim. ii. 9; 1 Pet. iii. 3.
- DELINK, to swallow liquids. As the allotments of God's providence were often represented among the Jews by a cup, so to receive good or evil at the hand of God is represented by drinking its contents, John xvii. 11. To "eat the flesh and drink the blood of the son of man," is to imbibe, that is, cordially to receive and obey his precepts, John vi. 53; to partake of bread and wine, the symbols of his body and blood, in the ordinance of his own appointment, Matt. xxvi. 26; to become one with him in principle, feeling, and action. As a cordial desire and love of divine truth is often represented as thirsting, so drinking is used to express the actual reception of the Gospel and its benefits. John iv. 16; vii. 37.
- DRUNKENNESS, excludes from the kingdom of God, 1 Cor. vi. 10; Gal. v. 21; examples, Gen. ix. 21; xix. 33, 35; 1 Sam. 23, 35; 1 Kings xvi. 9; xx. 16.
- DRUSILLA, [watered by the dew], the third daughter of Agrippa the Great. She first married Azizus, king of the Emesenes, but soon left him, to marry Claudius Felix. Acts xxiv. 24.
- DUST. "To lick the dust," Ps. lxxii. 9, is expressive of profound submission; to throw "dust into the air," Acts xxii. 23, expresses contempt and malice, and is still an Arab practice; to "throw dust on the head" is a sign of grief and mourning, Rev. xviii. 19; and "to wipe off the dust," from one's feet was expressive of entire renunciation, Matt. x. 14; Acts xiii. 51.
- EARNEST, arraboon, a pledge; a small part of the price of a thing, paid in hand, to confirm an agreement. The word is used three times in the New Testament, but always in a figurative sense. In 2 Cor. i. 23 it is applied to the gifts of the Spirit, which God bestowed on the apostles; and in 2 Cor. v. 5; Eph. i. 13, 14, to believers generally, on whom after baptism, the apostles had laid their hands; which were an earnest of far superior blessings in the age to come. Jerome has well said, "If the earnest was so great, how great must be the possession."
- EARTH. The original word in both Hebrew

- and Greek is used to denote the earth as a whole, and a particular land. The expression "all the earth" is sometimes used symbolically for a portion of it. Sometimes used for the people who inhabit the world, etc. It is used also as the symbol of the great body of the people contrasted with the government; antichristian part of mankind, etc. There are in the political and in the moral worlds, as well as in the natural, heavens and earth, sun, moon, and stars, mountains, rivers, and seas.
- EARTHQUAKE, in the time of Elijah, 1 Kings xix. 11; of Uzziah, Amos i. 1; Zech. xiv. 9; at the crucifixion of Jesus, Matt. xxvii. 54. The established symbol of the political and moral revolutions and convulsions of society. See Hag. ii. 6, 7; Heb. xii. 26; Rev. vi. 12.
- EAST, towards the sun's rising, Arabia, Assyria, Chaldea, Mesopotamia, Persia, and other countries, lay eastward of Canaan; and Balaam, Cyrus, and the Magi were said therefore, to have come out of the East. Num. xxiii. 7; Isa. xlv. 11; Matt. ii. 1, 2.
- EAT. See DINE. The Babylonians and Persians used to recline or lie down on table-beds while eating, and the Jews adopted this custom, Amos vi. 4-7; Esth. i. 6; vil. 8; John xii. 3; xiii. 25.
- EDIFICATION, a building up. Saints are edified when they grow in holy knowledge and practice. 1 Cor. viii. 1. Mutual edification to be consulted, Rom. xiv. 19; xv. 2; 1 Cor. xiv. 12-26; 1 Thess. v. 11; Heb. x. 24.
- EGYPT, [that binds or oppresses,] bounded by the Mediterranean Sea on the north; Abyssinia on the south; and on the east and west by mountains, running parallel with the Nile. Egypt is now the base of kingdoms, as declared in prophecy, Isa. xxix. 15, and has been successively tributary to Babylon, Persia, Greece, Rome, Saracens, Mamelukes, and Turks, during 2000 years. Symbolical now for wickedness, Rev. xi. 8.
- ELDER, presbyteros, presbyter, whence the word presbytery. Anciently applied to those who presided over Israel, and applied by the Jews before the Christian era to a certain class of officers among them. Those of one synagogue were called the presbyterion, presbytery.
- Presbyterion*, occurs three times; in Luke xxii. 66, and Acts xiii. 6, it seems to apply to the Jewish Sanhedrim; and in 1 Tim. iv. 14 to the chief persons of a Christian congregation. The word is derived from Presbyteros, an Elder, which occurs 67 times, and is applied to seniors, or persons advanced in years, ancients, ancestors, fathers; or as an appellation of dignity, to chief men, heads of families, or of congregations. Apostles were sometimes called Elders, in the sense of a senior, or old man. See John 2nd and 3rd epistles, and 1 Pet. v. 1. Still we have the phrase "apostles and elders" contradistinguished several times. See Acts xv. 2, 4, 6, 23. Elder, as the name of an officer in the Christian congregation, is defined Acts xx. 17, 28; Titus i. 5, 7; 1 Pet. v. 1, 5; and is evidently synonymous with bishop, shepherd, ruler, &c., and the same duties of overseeing, ruling, teaching, &c., were attached to the office. See the qualifications of each, as given in 1 Tim. iii. 1-7; Titus i. 6-9.
- ELECTION, ekloges, choice, chosen, approved, beloved; it occurs only 7 times. See CROSS.
- ELIJAH, or [ELIAS, [God is my Lord,] a prophet of Israel, a native of the town of Tishbe, situated in the land of Gilead, beyond Jordan. See 1 Kings xvii-xix., xli. 17-29; 2 Kings i., ii. 1-14; ix. 26; x. 10, 17; 2 Chron. xxi. 12-15; Luke iv. 25, 26; Rom. xi. 1-8; James v. 17, 18. Promised to be sent again to Israel, Mal. iv. 5; partially fulfilled in John the Baptist, who appeared in the spirit and power of Elijah, Luke i. 17; but was not actually that prophet, John i. 21-24.
- ELISABETH, [oath of God,] the wife of Zacharias, mother of John the Baptist, Luke i. 5.
- ELISHA, [salvation of God,] a prophet of Israel, son of Shaphat, Elisha's successor, 1 Kings xix. 15-21; 2 Kings ii. 3, 11-17; iv-ix; Luke iv. 27.
- ELIUD, [God is my praise,] Matt. i. 14.
- ELMODAN, [God of measure,] Luke iii. 27.
- ELVIAN, [a magician,] or Bar-Jesus, struck blind for opposing Paul, Acts xiii. 8, 11.
- EMBALMING, an ancient art of preserving the body from decay. The Egyptians excelled in it, and the ancient Israelites imitated them. Mentioned Gen. i. 2, 3, 20; 2 Chron. xvi. 14; John xix. 38, 40.
- EMERALD. See PRECIOUS STONES.
- EMMAUS, [people despised,] a town of Judea, 7 miles north of Jerusalem, Luke xxiv. 13.
- ENEAS, [laudable,] Acts ix. 35.
- ENEMIES, laws concerning their treatment, Exod. xxiii. 4; Prov. xxiv. 17; xxxv. 21; Matt. v. 44; Luke vi. 27-30; Rom. xii. 14-21; examples, Job xxi. 29-31; 1 Sam. xxi; xxvi; Psa. xxv. 4-15; Luke xxiii. 34; Acts vii. 60.
- ENMITY, spoken of, Gen. iii. 15; Rom. viii. 7; James iv. 4.
- ENOCH, [dedicated, disciplined,] son of Jared, and father of Methuselah, who pleased God, and was translated, Gen. v. 18-24; Luke iii. 37; Heb. xi. 5; Jude 14, 15.
- ENON, [cloud, his fountain,] a place near Salim, west of the Jordan, where John baptized, John iii. 23.
- ENVY condemned, Psa. xxxvii. 1; Prov. iii. 31; Rom. xiii. 13; 1 Cor. xiii. 5; Gal. v. 21; James iii. 14; v. 9; 1 Pet. ii. 1.
- EP'APHRAS, [agreeable,] mentioned Col. i. 7; iv. 12.
- EPAPHRODITUS, [agreeable, handsome,] one sent by the Philippians with money to Paul when a prisoner at Rome, Phil. ii. 25; iv. 18.
- EPENETUS, [laudable,] Paul's disciple, whom he calls a first-fruit of Achaia, Rom. xii. 5.
- EPHESIANS, Epistle to, written by Paul to the congregation at Ephesus, during his imprisonment at Rome, A. D. 61. The apostle shows that the calling of the Gentiles was according to God's purpose, and was the development of the secret which had been hid from ages and generations. This grand secret he had opened by the preaching of Christ to the Gentiles, "the hope of glory," and on account of which he had become "a prisoner of the Lord," and "an ambassador in a chain." He exhorts both Gentiles and Jews, in consequence of this wall of separation being broken down, to maintain unity and peace. In the fourth chapter he gives sundry reasons why they should preserve unity, for all—whether Jews or Greeks, Barbarians, Scythians, bondmen or freemen,—were but one body, animated by one spirit, cheered by one hope, governed by one Lord, while one faith was mutually entertained and confessed, one immersion initiated both into the Anc-and others, and the father of all. Thus the world was a chaos, or formless mass of matter, in the beginning.

EPHRAIM, a tribe of Israel, descended on their mother Rachel's side from Jacob by E. Hebron, and chiefly settled in the mountains of Judah, westward of Jerusalem. They were the first to be converted to the Christian faith, and the first to be baptized. There the apostle Paul planted Christianity, and others. For accounts of their conversion, see the Acts, viii. 1 to xiv. 15, and xv. 1 to xv. 21.

EPHRAIM, a tribe of Palestine, in the country belonging to the tribe of Benjamin, Gen. xli. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

EPHRAIM, (see the passage) a sect of Epicureans who adhered to the doctrines of Epicurus, who flourished at Athens, B. C. 300. They maintained that the world was made by chance, that there is no providence, no resurrection, no immortality, and that pleasure is the chief good. Acts xvii. 18.

EPISTLE, or LETTER. Twenty-one of the books of the New Testament are epistles. Fourteen written by Paul, one by James, two by Peter, three by John, and one by Jude. The messages to the seven congregations, Rev. ii. and iii., are called epistles. For a proper understanding of the epistles it is necessary to consider the time, occasion, design, and parties addressed.

The arrangement of the epistles, as found in our Bible, is not the order of their date; but Lardner has given many reasons to prove that it is the best arrangement. The following order as to time is taken from "Horne's Introduction:"

EPISTLES OF PAUL.
	from Corinth,	A. D. 52
1 Thess.,	from Corinth,	52
2 Thess.,	" "	52
Galatians,	" "	52
1 Corinthians,	" Ephesus,	57
Romans,	" Corinth,	57
2 Corinthians,	" Philippi,	58
Ephesians,	" Rome,	61
Colossians,	" "	62
1 Timothy,	" Italy,	63
Titus,	" Macedonia,	66
2 Timothy,	" Rome,	68

The other epistles were written between the years 61 and 69; those of John being the latest. Critics and chronologists have not all agreed on these dates, and there is great difficulty in deciding as to some of them.

Epistles of "commendation" were much adopted in the primitive church; they were letters of introduction, and secured the warmest hospitality, 2 Cor. iii. 1.

EQUITY, the great or golden rule, Lev. xix. 18; Matt. vii. 12; xvii. 30; Rom. xiii. 8; James ii. 8.

ERASTUS, [lovely], a Christian converted by Paul, and treasurer of the city of Corinth. Acts xix. 22; Rom. xvi. 23; 2 Tim. iv. 20.

ESAU, [formed, finished], or according to some, covered with hair, eldest son of Isaac by Rebekah, Gen. xxv. 21-34; xxi. 34, 35; xxviii. xxviii. 6-9, &c.; Heb. xi. 9; xii. 16, 17.

ESAU, [near me], son of Naggo, one of the ancestors of Jesus, Luke iii. 25.

ESPOUSALS, the act or ceremony of marriage, Jer. ii. 2; but sometimes means only betrothing, or making a matrimonial engagement. Matt. i. 18; Luke i. 27; 2 Cor. xi. 2.

ESRON, [the dart of joy], mentioned Matt. i. 3.

ETERNAL, aiouaios, rendered in the common version eternal, and everlasting, is the adjective form of the word aioua, age, and must be related to it in meaning. There is no equivalent word in English by which aiouaios can be exactly rendered. See Age.

ETHIOPIA, (in Hebrew, Cush, blackness, in Greek, Aethi), a very extensive country of Africa, comprehending Abyssinia, Nubia, &c., lying south of Egypt, above Syene, the modern Assuan, Ezek. xlix. 20; xxx. 6; Acts viii. 27.

EUBULUS, [ prudent], mentioned 2 Tim. iv. 21.

EUNICE, [a good victory], the mother of Timothy, and a Jewess by birth, but married to a Greek, Timothy's father, Acts xv. 1; 2 Tim. i. 3.

EUNUCH, the name given to such officers as served in the inner courts, and chambers of kings. See Isa. lvi. 3-6; Matt. xix. 11, 12; Acts viii. 27.

EUPHRATES, one of the largest and most celebrated rivers of Asia, on which anciently it is frequently styled "the river." It rises in the mountains of Armenia, and after passing a course of 1500 miles flows into the Persian Gulf. Gen. ii. 14; xv. 10; Josh. i. 4; and prophecy vi. alluded to, Jer. xli. 1-4; Rev. ix. 14; xvi. 12.

EUROCHYDON, a violent and dangerous N. E. wind, common in the Mediterranean about the beginning of winter. Acts xxv. 14. It is called by sailors a Leranter.

EUTYCHUS, [fortunate], a young man at Troas, who fell from an open window of the third floor, while Paul was preaching, into the court below, Acts xvi. 9-12.

EVANGELIST, [a publisher of good tidings], a name which was given to those who went from place to place to preach the gospel. Philip, one of the seven deacons, is termed the Evangelist, Acts xxi. 8. Paul exhorts Timothy to "do the work of an Evangelist," 2 Tim. iv. 5. And in Eph. iv. 11. Evangelistas (Evangelists) are expressly distinguished from pastores and doctores, (pastors and teachers,) showing the former to be itinerant, the latter stationary.

EVE, [giving], the name of the first woman, and mother of the human race. Gen. i. 26-31; ii. 18-25; iii. 1; iv. 1, 3, 5; v. 2. mentioned by Paul, 2 Cor. xi. 3; 1 Tim. ii. 15, 16.

EVENING. The Jews had two evenings. The first was the after part of the day; the second was the hour or two immediately after dark. Where the word occurs in Exod. xii. 6; Num. ix. 3; Deut. xxi. 4, &c., it reads in the original "between the evenings," and means the twilight. This was the time the paschal lamb was to be sacrificed. Deut. xvi. 6.

EVIL, sometimes signifies punishment; in which sense, and in which only, God is said to create it, Isa. xiv. 7. Evil is also used synonymously with the word sin, in which sense God never creates it. For "God cannot be tempted with evil (sin), neither tempteth (causeth to sin) he any man," James i. 13. Ho potestas, the evil one, is a term in many places equivalent to ho diabolos, or ho Satanas. See Matt. v. 37, xi. 12, xiii. 10; Luke xi. 4; Eph. vi. 16; 2 Thess. iii. 3.

EXACTION censured, Deut. xv. 2; Matt. xviii. 25; Luke iii. 13.

EXAMINATION of self, expressly commanded, 2 Cor. xiii. 5; Gal. vi. 4. See also Matt. vi. 3; Luke xv. 17, 18; 1 Cor. xi. 28.

EXCLUDE, or Exkommunicare, is to separate or withdraw from an unworthy member of the congregation. An excluded person forfeits,—(1.) The fellowship of the church. Matt. xviii. 17. (2.) The common society of the members, except so far as civil relations require it, 2 Thess. iii. 6, 14; Rom. xvi. 17. (3.) All the privileges belonging to the people of God. The design of exclusion is, (1.) To purge the church. (2.) To warn other members. (3.) To reclaim the offender.

EXHORTATION, paraklesis, exhortation, consolation, comfort, occurs 39 times. A Christian duty. Acts xi. 23; xiii. 15; xv. 34; Rom. xii. 8; 1 Cor. xiv. 3.

EYE. In most languages this important organ is used by figurative application, as the symbol of a large number of objects and ideas. Hence we read of an "evil eye," Matt. xx. 16; "beautiful eye," Prov. xxii. 9. "haughty eyes," Prov. vi. 17; "wanton eyes," Isa. li. 16; "eyes of an adulteress," 2 Pet. ii. 14; "the lust of the eyes," 1 John ii. 16. As applied to the Almighty, eyes denote his infinite knowledge, Prov. xv. 3; Psa. xl. 4; watchful providence, Psa. xxxiii. 8; omnipresence, Heb. iv. 13; Heb. ii. 18; v. 6. As applied to man, they denote the understanding, Psa. cxix. 18; Eph. i. 18, &c. As in the Persian monarchy, the favorite ministers of state were called "the king's eyes," so the angels of the Lord may be "his eyes," sent forth to and fro the earth, to execute his judgments, and to watch and attend for his glory. The eyes are said to be opened, when the mind is savingly instructed in spiritual things, Acts xxi. 18; and sealed up, blinded, closed, or darkened, when the mind is destitute of spiritual knowledge, and so ignorant, obstinate, or blinded, that it cannot discern between good and evil. Isa. xlii. 18; Acts xxviii. 27; Rom. xi. 10.

FABLES, religious tales of human invention; the traditions of elders, the doctrines of men, not to be regarded, 1 Tim. i. 14; iv. 7; xi. 20; Matt. xv. 9; Titus i. 14.

FACE, in scripture, is often used to denote presence in the general sense, and there is no other word to denote presence in the Hebrew language. It is used as a token of God's favor, Psa. lxxii. 10; Lev. ix. 11; Dan. ix. 17. Often found in the plural number in the original, probably referring to the faces of the cherubim, the symbol of the divine presence.

FAIR HAVENS, an unsafe harbor in Crete, N. E. of Cape Levo, or Marala. It bears the same name to this day. Acts xxvii. 8.

FAITH, πίστις, belief, trust, confidence, occurs 244 times, and the verb πιστεύω, I believe, 246 times. The simple meaning of this term is, the conviction that the testimony is true. Hence Paul defines it to be "the confidence of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen," Hebr. xi. 1. "Without faith it is impossible to please God," Heb. xi. 6; that is, a belief of those things which he has made known for salvation. See Jude 3; Acts viii. 12; Mark xvi. 16, 10; Acts xxvi. 6, 18; xxviii. 22, 23.

FAN, an instrument for separating chaff from grain, formerly made in the shape of a shovel, with a long handle. With this the grain was tossed into the air when the wind blew, so that the chaff was driven away. Matt. iii. 12.

FATHER mentioned, Matt. ix. 14, 15; Mark ii. 20; Luke v. 25; 2 Cor. vi. 5; with prayer, 1 Cor. vii. 3; the kind accessible to God, Joel ii. 12, 13; Zech. vii. 5—14; Matt. vi. 17, 18. Moses fasted twice for forty days, Deut. ix. 9, 18; Jesus, Matt. iv. 2; Luke iv. 2. Fasting in all ages and among all nations, has been usual in times of distress; and though our Savior did not appoint any fast days, yet he gave reasons, why after his death, his disciples should fast. Partial, or total abstinence from food, occasionally, is beneficial to both body and mind.

FATHER. This word, besides its obvious and primary sense, bears, in Scripture, a number of other applications. Applied to God, to ancestors, near or remote; is also applied as a title of respect to any head, chief, ruler, or elder, especially to kings, prophets, and priests; and the author, source, or beginner, of anything is said to be the father of it, and in this sense it is very commonly used in the East at the present day. The authority of a father was very great in patriarchal times, and any outrage against a parent was made a capital crime. Lev. xx. 9.

FAULT, treatment of, in a brother, Matt. xviii. 15—17; Gal. vi. 1, 2; to be mutually confessed, James v. 16.

FELIX, (Agrippa;) the successor of Comanus in the government of Judea. History gives him a bad character, and he might well tremble at the words of Paul, Acts xxiv. 25.

FELLOWSHIP, Communion, or Joint Participation. There is a fellowship with the Father, and with the Son, and with each other, 1 John i. 3, 7, which is both honorable and commendable; but there is also a fellowship to be avoided, 1 Cor. x. 20; 2 Cor. vi. 14; Eph. v. 11. The word also means a communication of worldly substance for the benefit of others. See Acts ii. 45; Rom. xii. 13; xv. 27; 2 Cor. vii. 4; ix. 13; Gal. vi. 6; Phil. i. 5; iv. 15; Heb. xiii. 16.

FESTIVALS, occasions of public religious observances, recurring at certain set times, among the Hebrews. The festivals of divine appointment were: 1. The Sabbath, or seventh day of the week. 2. The Passover, which lasted eight days, beginning on the 15th of Nisan. Exod. xii. 14. 3. The Feast of Pentecost or of Weeks, fifty days after the Passover. 4. The Feast of Trumpets, held on the first and second days of Tisri, the commencement of the civil year. 5. The Day of Atonement, kept on the tenth of Tisri, or September. 6. The Feast of Ingathering or of Tabernacles, which lasted by a week. 7. The Sabbatical Year, during which the land was to lie fallow, and its spontaneous produce to be shared in common by servants, the poor, strangers, and cattle. It was the year of release from personal slavery, Exod. xxi. 2; and from debts, Deut. xv. 1, 2. 8. The Jubilee was a more solemn festival, held every seventh sabbatical year, that is, every fiftieth year. 9. The New Moon, at the beginning of the month. Other festivals were observed by the Jews, but of human origin: one of which is mentioned, John i. 22. The Feast of the Dedication, established by Judas Maccabeus, B. C. 170, to commemorate the cleansing of the temple, after its profanation by Antiochus,

- forehead the mark of the gods whose votaries they are. Some, however, think it an allusion to the custom of marking cattle, &c., with the sign of ownership.
- FOREKNOWLEDGE, prōgnōsis, occurs twice, Acts ii. 23; 1 Pet. i. 2; prōgnōsko, I foreknow, occurs five times, Acts xxvi. 5; Rom. viii. 29, xi. 2; 1 Pet. i. 20; 2 Pet. iii. 17. Know in the Hebrew idiom, signifies sometimes to approve, to acknowledge, and to make known. "The Lord knows (approves) them that are his." "The world knows (acknowledges) us not."
- FORGIVENESS promised, Isa. lv. 7; Luke i. 77; xlv. 47; Acts ii. 38, &c.; enjoined Matt. vi. 15; xviii. 21, Eph. iv. 32; Col. iii. 13; James ii. 13.
- FORNICATION means, 1. Criminal intercourse between unmarried persons, 1 Cor. vii. 2. Adultery, Matt. v. 32, 3. Idolatry, 2 Chron. xxi. 11 4. Heresy, Rev. xix. 2. The word occurs much more frequently in its metaphorical than in its ordinary sense. Jer. iii. 8, 9; Ezek. xvi. 26.
- FORTUNATUS, [lucky, fortunate], a disciple mentioned 1 Cor. xvi. 17, who visited Paul at Ephesus.
- FOX, a wild animal, probably a jackal, mentioned historically, Judges xv. 4, 5; 1 Sam. v. 18; comparatively, Matt. viii. 20; symbolically for a cunning and deceitful person, Ezek. xiii. 4; Luke xiii. 32.
- FRANKINCENSE, a sweet scented gum, used in the incense, which when placed on live coals, sends up a dense fragrant smoke. Luke i. 10; Rev. viii. 23.
- FROGS, plague of, Exod. viii. The frog was held sacred in Egypt, because it was the emblem of Orisis; and was produced by the Nile, which was also esteemed as peculiarly sacred; thus Jehovah used their very gods as a means to punish them.
- FRUGALITY recommended, Prov. xviii. 9; John vi. 13.
- FRUITS used figuratively for proofs, Matt. iii. 8; vii. 16; 2 Cor. ix. 10; Gal. v. 22, 23; Phil. i. 11; James iii. 17.
- FULNESS OF TIME, plerōma ton chronon, the fulness or completion of any period of time, Gal. iv. 4; Eph. i. 10. The completion of the period which was to precede the Messiah.
- FULNESS OF THE GENTILES. The completion of the salvation of the Gentiles, during the present dispensation.
- FURLONG, the eighth part of a mile, Luke xxiv. 13; John vi. 19; xi. 18.
- GABBATHA, [high, elevated, or the pavement], a large court or apartment, used as Pilate's judgment seat, John xix. 13. It was evidently outside of the pretorium.
- GABRIEL, [the mighty one of God], the angel, mentioned Luke i. 11, 26, who appeared at different times to Daniel, Zacharias, &c. Dan. viii. 16; ix. 21.
- GADARA, the chief city of Peræa, in Coelosyria, a few miles east of the Lake Tiberias. Mark v. 1.
- GADARENES, the inhabitants of Gadara. Luke viii. 26.
- GAIUS, [lord, earthly], the name of one or two eminent Christians, mentioned Acts ix. 29; xi. 4; 1 Cor. i. 14; 3 John 1.
- GALATIA, an extensive province of Asia Minor, bounded on the north by Bithynia and Paphlagonia, on the south by Lycæonia, on the east by Pontus and Cappadocia, and on the west by Phrygia and Bithynia. It took its name from the Gauls who settled there 280 years B. C.
- GALATIANS, Epistle to, written by Paul, probably from Ephesus, A. D. 53, and discusses much the same topics as that to the Romans, but a little fuller on one or two points. Having founded the congregation of Galatia, he speaks authoritatively as a teacher and an apostle. The principal topics discussed are,—his apostolic character, the gifts which the Holy Spirit conferred by his hands, the Abrahamic gospel and covenant, the promised inheritance of the land, the law of Sinai, and the contrast between the two covenants.
- GALILEE, [lake, sea], the northern part of Palestine, divided into Upper and Lower. Upper Galilee, the northern portion, was called "Galilee of the Gentiles," from its having a more mixed population, i. e. less purely Jewish than the others. This mixture of population corrupted the dialect; hence Peter was detected by his speech, Mark xiv. 70. The disciples were mostly from this country, and on this account were called Galileans. Luke xiii. 6; Acts ii. 7.
- See of. See GENESEARETH.
- GALLI, a general name for whatever is very bitter or noxious. Primarily it denotes the substance secreted in the gall-bladder of animals, commonly called bile. Metaphorically it means great trouble, Jer. viii. 14; exceeding wickedness, Amos vi. 12; abominable depravity, Acts viii. 26.
- GALLILO, [who lives on milk], proconsul of Achæia, A. D. 55, elder brother to Peneca, the famous moralist. The Jews dragged Paul before his tribunal. Acts xviii. 12.
- GAMALIEL, [ recompense of God], the distinguished Pharisee under whom Paul studied law, grandson of Hillel, the famous Rabbi.
- GARDEN, a place planted with beautiful plants and fruit-bearing and other trees, and generally hedged or walled. Several gardens are mentioned in the Scriptures as the garden of Eden, Ahab's garden of herbs, the royal garden near the fortress of Zion, the royal garden of the Persian kings at Susa, the garden of Joseph of Arimathea, and the garden of Gethsemane. See John xviii. 1; xix. 41.
- GARMENTS. To lay up stores of raiment, especially by the rich, was very common in the East, where the fashion of dress seldom changes. Sometimes thousands of garments were laid up. Hence Jesus rebukes men of the folly of laying up treasures which the moth may consume. Matt. vi. 19; Luke xii. 23; James v. 2. Princes, especially great kings and priests, generally wore white garments. White was also worn on occasions of great joy. In mourning men generally wore sackcloth or hair-cloth. Hence garment is used as a symbol of the condition or state a person is in. To be clothed in white, denotes prosperity or victory. To put on clean garments after washing signifies freedom from care and evil, together with honor and joy.
- GATE, the entrance to a residence or fortified place. Gates are put figuratively for public places of towns and palaces. The gates of a town are also put for the town itself. The gates of death is a metaphorical expression expressive of imminent danger of death. The gates of hell is used in a similar manner for councils, designs, or authority. Matt. xvi. 18.
- GAZA, [strong, or a post], a city of the Philistines. Referred to as "Gaza, which is desert," Acts viii. 26.

GEHENNA. the Greek word translated hell in the common version, occurs 12 times. It is the Grecian mode of spelling the Hebrew words which are translated, "The valley of Hinnoim." This valley was also called Tophet, a detestation, an abomination. Into this place were cast all kinds of filth, with the carcases of beasts, and the unburied bodies of criminals who had been executed. Continual fires were kept to consume these. Sennacherib's army of 185,000 men were slain here in one night. Here children were also burnt to death in sacrifice to Moloch. Geheena, then, as occurring in the New Testament, symbolizes death and eternal destruction, but in no place signifies a place of eternal torment.

GENEALOGY, a list of ancestors, set down both in their direct and collateral order. The Hebrews carefully preserved their family registers, through a period of more than 3500 years. Without these genealogies the priests could not exercise their sacred office. See Ezra ii. 62. It appears that the principal design of preserving accurate lists of the ancestry of God's ancient people, was, that it might be certainly known of what tribe and family the Messiah was born. The difference in the genealogies of Christ, as given by Matthew and Luke, arose from one giving the line of Joseph, and the other of Mary. The Jews lost their registers after the war with the Romans, and their final dispersion.

GENERATION, genea, occurs 40 times, and means sometimes a line of descent, as in Matt. i. 1; or persons existing at any particular period, Matt. i. 17. Some translate genea which occurs in Matt. xiv. 34, by the word race, which sense is scarcely admissible. Macknight says that see genea water, as it is found in that passage, means the generation or persons then living contemporary with Christ.

GENNESARETH, [garden of the prince,] a fine lake, 17 miles long, and 5 or 6 broad, situated about 50 miles north of Jerusalem. Its waters are very pure and sweet, and it abounds with fish. It is surrounded by fine scenery, and was much frequented by our Savior and his disciples. It is also called Chinnereth, Num. xxxiv. 11; the Sea of Galilee, Matt. iv. 18; and the Sea of Tiberias, John vi. 1. 23.

GENTILES, literally, the nations; and was applied by the Jews to all who were not of their religion, or who were ignorant of God.

GENTLENESS, though little admired by the world, compared with enterprise, bravery, &c., is in the sight of God, an imperative virtue, James iii. 17. Recommended, 2 Tim. ii. 24; Titus iii. 2. Christ an example, 2 Cor. x. 1; the apostles, 1 Thess. ii. 7.

GERGESENES, [those who come from pilgrimage,] a people mentioned Matt. viii. 28; probably the same as Gadarenes.

GETISEMANE, [a very fat valley,] a retired garden at the foot of Mount of Olives, Luke xxii. 39. The remains of its stone wall are yet seen, and eight ancient olive trees, Matt. xxi. 30-40.

GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT. This phrase occurs twice, Acts ii. 38; x. 45. It is called "the gift of God," Acts viii. 20, and "the same gift," xi. 17. Dorea and not charis, is the word used here for gift. Dorea is also found in John iv. 10; Rom. v. 15, 17; 2 Cor. ix. 15; Eph. iii. 7; Heb. vi. 4,—in all 11 times.

GLORY It is believed that the classical Greek writers never use dora, in the sense of light and splendor, though it is often found in the Scriptures with that meaning attached. See Exod. xvi. 7, 10; xxiv. 17; xl. 34, 35. The Sarkisak was a peculiar display of the glory of God, Exod. lii. 9-5; xiii. 21, 22; Lev. xvi. 2; 2 Chron. vii. 1, 2. The following passages will illustrate the New Testament use, Matt. vi. 20; 1 Cor. xv. 41; Heb. i. 3; Rom. i. 23; 2 Thess. i. 7; 1 Cor. xi. 7, &c.

GLUTTONY censured, Deut. xxi. 20: Prov. xiii. 1, 20; xiv. 10; 1 Pet. iv. 3.

GNASHING of teeth, rage, Psa. xxxv. 16;

AGONY, anguish, Psa. cxii. 10: Matt. viii. 12; xiii. 42, 50; xxii. 13.

GNAT, a small winged insect, very common in warm countries. Our Savior's allusion to the gnat is a kind of proverb, "Blind guides! who strain (or filter) out a gnat, and swallow a camel." This he applied to those who were superstitiously anxious in avoiding small faults, yet did not scruple to commit the greatest sins. The Jewish law reckoned both gnats and camels unclean.

GOD, the Supreme, Omnipotent, and Eternal one, of whom are all things. The two principal Hebrew names of the Supreme Being used in the Scriptures are Jehovah, (or Yahveh) and Elohim. Dr. Havercorn defines Jehovah to be the Existing One, and considers Elohim, though in the plural number, as the abstract expression for absolute Deity. Jehovah, however, he regards as the revealed Elohim, the Manifest. Only Personal, and Holy Elohim; Elohim is the Creator, Jehovah the Redeemer, &c. In a subordinate sense the term Elohim, or gods, is applied to angels, Psa. cxvii. 7; Heb. i. 6; to judges or great men, Exod. xii. 28; Psa. lxxiii. 1; John x. 31, 35; 1 Cor. viii. 5; and to idols, Deut. xxxii. 17.

GOD and MAGOG, mentioned Ezek. xxxviii; xxxix; Rev. xx. 8.

GOLD, employed as a comparison, Psa. xix. 10; as a simile, Job xxiii. 10; 1 Pet. i. 7; Rev. xxi. 18, 21.

GOLGOTHA, [a heap of skulls,] See CALVARY.

GOMORRAH, [rebellious people,] See SOPHOM.

GOSPEL, euangelion, good news, glad tidings. Gospel is a Saxon word, meaning, God's spell, or the Word of God, embracing "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Anointed," Acts viii. 12, and the joyful news that salvation and an inheritance in that kingdom may be obtained through faith and obedience. Euangelion occurs 70 times; euangelizo, to proclaim good news, 56 times; from which also euangelista, evangelists, one who tells glad tidings, Acts xxi. 8; Eph. iv. 11; 2 Tim. iv. 5.

GRACE, charis, favor, and occurs 156 times. The lexicons attach some fifteen meanings to it. Parkhurst observes, "While the miraculous influences of the Spirit are called gifts, or separately a gift; and though I firmly believe his blessed operations or influences in the hearts of ordinary believers in general; yet, that charis, is ever in the New Testament particularly used for these, is more than I dare, after attentive examination, assert."

GRASS, in the common version, generally signifies herbage, or all shrubs not included under the term tree. Matt. vi. 30; Rev. viii. 7. Grass "cast into the oven." Shaw tells us that myrtle, rosemary, and other plants, are used in Barbary to heat their ovens. GRAVE. See FOUN or SEPULCHRE.

- GREECE, in Hebrew Javan, Isa. lxvi. 10; a country in the S. E. of Europe, extending 400 miles from north to south, and 350 from east to west. Few countries are more favored by nature, as to soil, climate, and productions. Many of the most renowned men of antiquity had their birth here. Part of ancient Greece is now included in Albania and Roumelia in Turkey. Mentioned Dan. viii. 21-25; x. 20; xi. 2; Zech. ix. 13; Acts xx. 2.
- GRECIANS, Greeks, the inhabitants of Greece, Joel iii. 6. Sometimes this word means not Greeks, but Jews, using the Greek language, called Hellenists, Acts vi. 1; ix. 29; xi. 19-21; Greeks were so by nation or birth; sometimes the name was used for Gentiles in general, Acts xx. 21; Rom. i. 16; 1 Cor. I. 22-24.
- GUEST-CHAMBER, Mark xiv. 14; Luke xxii. 11. In the East, respectable householders have a room which they call the stranger's room, which is specially set apart for the use of guests.
- HABAKKUK, [a favorite,] a Jewish prophet who flourished about 610 B. C., and wrote the book which bears his name. His name does not occur in the New Testament, but a quotation is made from his prophecy by Paul, Acts xiii. 41.
- HADES, occurs 11 times in the Greek Testament, and is improperly translated in the common version 10 times by the word hell. It is the word used in the Septuagint as a translation of the Hebrew word sheol, denoting the abode or world of the dead, and means literally that which is in darkness, hidden, invisible, or obscure. As the word hades did not come to the Hebrews from any classical source, or with any classical meanings, but through the Septuagint, as a translation of their own word sheol, therefore in order to properly define its meaning recourse must be had to the various passages where it is found. The Hebrew word sheol is translated by hades, in the Septuagint, 60 times out of 63, and through sheol in many places, (such as, Gen. xxxv. 25; xiii. 28; 1 Sam. ii. 7; 1 Kings ii. 6; Job xiv. 13; xvii. 13, 16, &c.) may signify keber, the grave, as the common receptacle of the dead, yet it has the more general meaning of death; a state of death; the dominion of death. To translate hades by the word hell, as it is done ten times out of eleven in the New Testament, is very improper, unless it has the Saxon meaning of hellan, to cover, attached to it. The primitive signification of hell, only denoting what was secret or concealed, perfectly corresponds with the Greek term hades and its Hebrew equivalent sheol, but the theological definition given to it at the present day by no means expresses it.
- HAGAR, [a stranger,] a native of Egypt, and servant of Abraham, Gen. xii. 10; xvi. 1, &c. Gal. iv. 22-31.
- HAGGAI, [solemn feast,] the tenth of the minor prophets. His prophecy was given during the rebuilding of the temple, B. C. 520.
- HAIL, a symbol of violent enemies, Isa. xviii. 2, 3; xxx. 30, 31; xxxii. 19; Rev. viii. 7.
- HAIR, precepts regarding it, 1 Cor. xi. 14-16; 1 Tim. ii. 9; 1 Pet. iii. 2. "Cutting off the hair," was a sign of distress; "plucking off the hair," was one of the most disgraceful punishments; "hairs white like wool," was emblematic of majesty and wisdom.
- HALLELUJAH or ALLELUIA. See ALLELUIA. HAND, the organ of feeling, rightly denominated by Galen the instrument of instruments. It serves to distinguish man from other terrestrial beings, and no other animal has any member comparable with it. The right hand has a preference, hence the many allusions to it. The phrase "sitting at the right hand of God," as applied to the Messiah, is derived from the fact that a position at the right hand of the throne of earthly monarchs was accounted the chief place of honor, dignity, and power; so when Jesus declared before Calaphas, that "ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven," Matt. xxvi. 64; Mark xiv. 62, he obviously meant to say, that his present humiliation would be succeeded by glory, majesty, and power. To lay the hand on any one was a means of pointing him out, and consequently an emblem of setting any one apart for a particular office or dignity. Hence the ceremony of imposition of hands, was at an early period, observed on the appointment and consecration of persons to high and holy undertakings.
- HARLOT, or ΠΑΟΡΩΤΙΣΤΑ, frequently used figuratively for an idolatrous community. Cities were formerly represented under the types of virgins, wives, widows, and harlots, according to their various conditions; hence the true church is symbolized by a chaste bride, and an apostate or worldly religious community is depicted by a harlot. HARVEST, the time of gathering the fruits of the earth. In Palestine it began in March, and ended about the middle of May. It is symbolical of the season of future reward—particularly the punishment of the wicked, Matt. ix. xiii; John iv. 35.
- HATE. This word is often used in Scripture, as in common conversation, to signify an inferior degree of love, of attachment, or of liking; but not to detest or abhor. Thus it is written, "Jacob have I loved; but Esau have I hated," that is, loved in an inferior degree to Jacob. So Luke xiv. 26, is to be understood.
- HATRED condemned, Lev. xix. 17; Prov. x. 12, 18; xxvi. 24; 1 John ii. 9; iii. 15.
- HEAD, frequently denotes sovereignty, as it is the seat of the understanding or governing principle in man; hence the chief of a people, or the metropolis of a country. So Christ is called the head of his body, the church, Eph. v. 23; and of all things, Eph. i. 22; Col. ii. 10.
- HEAR, to receive the sounds by the ear. To hear the word of God, means, (1.) A mere listening, without laying to heart, Matt. xiii. 19; (2.) to yield a willing assent, with a firm purpose to believe and obey it. John viii. 47. God is said to hear prayer when he grants our requests.
- HEARING, to be with profit, Deut. iv. 9, 10; Matt. vii. 24; Rom. ii. 13; Heb. ii. 1; xii. 25; James i. 22.
- HEART, the centre of animal life, is used metaphorically for all the affections, and the whole faculties of man. Heart constantly occurs, where mind is to be understood, and would be used by a modern English writer. "Out of the heart" every evil is said to proceed, Matt. xv. 18; and as the great evil which corrupts and defiles the heart is unbelief, so the only purifier of the heart mentioned in Scripture is faith, Acts xv. 9.
- HEAVEN. The Jews spoke of three heavens;—(1.) The atmosphere, or lower re- gion of the air, in which birds and vapors fly, Job xxxv. 11; Matt. xvi. 1. (2.) The expanse above, in which the stars are disposed, and which they seem to have thought was a solid concave. Matt. xxiv. 29. (3.) The habitation of God, where his power and glory are more immediately and fully manifested. Heaven is always the symbol of government; the higher places in the political universe. The "kingdom of heaven," is the same as the kingdom of God, Matt. x. 7; Luke ix. 2; and is Messiah's reign on earth. See Psa. lxxii; Dan. vii. 14, 27; Matt. xxv. 31—34.

- HEBELI, [one that passes], the grandson of Shem, Luke iii. 35, and from whom it is supposed that Abraham and his posterity derived the name of Hebrews.
- HEBREWS, [descendants of Heber], the name by which a Jew desired to be known in the earliest and latest periods of his nation, 1 Cor. xi. 22. Abraham was known by that name on his arrival in Canaan. It signifies that he was the proper heir of Shem, the father of all the children of Heber. An "Hebrew of the Hebrews" is one, both of whose parents are Hebrews. Phil. iii. 5.
- Epistle to. It is generally conceded that Paul was the writer, because the style appears to be his. Probably written about A. D. 63—65. It was addressed to believing Hebrews irrespective of any particular place, and apparently designed to save them from the sin of apostasy, through the persecutions to which they were subjected by their unbelieving brethren. Hence the writer shows the superiority of Christianity to Judaism; that Christ was far superior to Moses; affords a more secure and complete salvation; and that in point of dignity, perpetuity, sufficiency, and suitableness, the Jewish priesthood and sacrifices were far inferior to those of Christ, who was the substance and reality, whilst these were but the type and shadow. These and similar comparisons and arguments are used, and the examples of ancient worthies adduced, to fortify the minds of those who were suffering persecution, and to induce them to hold fast the confession of the hope without wavering. The epistle is an admirable exposition and supplement to those to the Romans and Galatians.
- HEIR, one who is to succeed to an estate. Christians are heirs of God both by birth and by will; an important and delightful consideration.
- HELL, [ascending, climbing up], the father of Joseph, the husband of Mary. Luke iii. 23.
- HELL. See Hades and GEHENNA.
- HELLENIST, a name given to persons of Jewish extraction, who nevertheless talked Greek as their mother tongue. Acts vi. 1.
- HELMET, a cap of metal or strong leather for protecting a soldier's head. 1 Sam. xvii. 3. Salvation is God's helmet; the hope of it rendering Christians courageous in their spiritual warfare. Eph. vi. 17; 1 Thess. v. 8.
- HERESY, hairessa, occurs 9 times, and is translated both sect and heresy. In scripture usage it generally means a sect, or schism, rather than the opinions embraced by the sect. Christianity was called a sect, or heresy, by Tertullian and the profane Jews. Acts xxiv. 5, 14.
- HERETIC, airetikos, factionist, sectarian, occurs but once. Titus iii. 10. One who makes a party or faction.
- HERMAS and HERMES, [mercury, gain], two disciples mentioned Rom. xvi. 14.
- HERMOGONES, [begotten of Mercury], and PHYGELLUS, [a fugitive], disciples of Asia Minor, and probably companions in labor of Paul. They abandoned him during his imprisonment, 1 Tim. i. 15.
- HEROD, [the glory of the skin]. Four persons of this name are mentioned in the New Testament. (1.) Herod the Great, the son of Antipater, born B. C. 70. He ordered the destruction of the infants at Bethlehem. (2.) Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, tetrarch of Galilee and Peraea. He beheaded John, and arrayed Jesus in mock royalty, when sent to him by Pilate. (3.) Herod Agrippa, the son of Aristobulus, and grandson of Herod the Great, who caused the murder of James, the son of Zebedee, and desired to kill Peter also. See his awful death described, Acts xii. 23; and by Josephus, (Antiq. xix. 8.) in the 54th year of his age. (4.) Herod Agrippa II., son of the preceding—the one called Agrippa, before whom Paul made his defence, Acts xxvi.
- HERODIAN, [son of Juno], Paul's kinsman, Rom. xvi. 11.
- HERODIANS, a class of Jews that existed in the time of Jesus Christ, whether of a political or religious description it is not easy to say for want of materials to determine. Mentioned, Mark iii. 6; xii. 13; Matt. xxii. 10; Luke xx. 20.
- HERODIAS, sister of Herod Agrippa, and grand-daughter of Herod the Great, married to her uncle Philip, and afterwards sinfully connected with his brother Herod Antipas.
- HIRAPOLIS, [holy city], a city situated in Phrygia, near Colosse and Laodicea. It was destroyed by an earthquake in the times of the apostles. Its ruins indicate that it was one of the most glorious cities of the world. Col. iv. 13. It is now called Pambuk Kalai.
- HIRE, "no man has hired us," Matt. xx. 7. Morier, the traveler, says that he saw, in the east, laborers with spades, &c., in their hands, standing in the market-place, before sun-rise, in order to be hired for the day, to work in the surrounding fields.
- HIRELING, a man employed to take care of sheep, to whom wages were paid. Also indicates a pastor who cares more for the fleece than the good of the flock. John x. 12.
- HOLINESS, freedom from sin, and devotedness to God; without it none can see God. Heb. xii. 14.
- HOLY, persons, places, and things so-called, which are separated to the Lord, Esad. xii. 6; Lev. xvi. 33; Num. xxvi. 61; 1 Pet. ii. 9; while Jehovah is called "the Holy One of Israel," 2 Kings xix. 22; Psa. lxxii. 2, 3, 4; and the Spirit of God is frequently designated "the Holy Spirit."
- HONESTY enjoyed, Lev. xix. 15, 35; Deut. xxv. 13; Matt. vi. 5, 11; Mark x. 19.
- HONEY, one of the blessings of Canaan, Deut. xxxii. 13; Judges xiv. 5—18; 1 Sam. xiv; Matt. iii. 4.
- HONOR, time, occurs 43 times, and means price, reward, maintenance, as well as respect, veneration, &c. Double honor indicates greater liberality or support. 1 Tim. v. 17, 18.
- HOPE, the confident expectation of the things promised. See Rom. v. 4, 5; xv. 13; Heb. vi. 9—12. The hope of life in the age to come is founded on Christ. Rom. viii. 24; Col. i. 27; 1 Thess. i. 5; 2 Thess. ii. 16; Titus i. 2; 1 Pet. i. 13; and is a cause of joy, Rom. xii. 13; xv. 4, 13; Heb. xii. 6.

HORN, a symbol of strength, and a well-known symbol of a king.

HORSE, a symbol of war and conquest; the state, color, or equipage of a horse represents the condition of his rider. White denotes victory and prosperity; black represents distress and general calamity; red denotes war and fierce hostility; paie is the symbol of death and destruction.

HOSANNA, a form of acclamatory blessing or wishing well, signifying, Save now! Succor now! Be now! Ropitious! Matt. xxi. 9. This passage fairly construed would mean, "Lord, preserve this Son of David; heap favors and blessings on him!"

HUSLA, (a sermo), the first of the minor prophets, generally supposed to have been a native of the kingdom of Israel, and who prophesied for about 60 years, between 700 and 724 B. C. Paul quotes from his prophecy in Rom. ix. 25.

HOSPITALITY, the practice of receiving strangers into one's house and giving them suitable entertainment. Recommended, Rom. xii. 13; 1 Tim. iii. 2; Titus i. 5; Heb. xiii. 2; 1 Pet. iv. 9.

HOUR. The Jews in the time of Christ divided the day into twelve equal parts, which of course varied in length according to the different seasons. The earliest mention of hour is in Dan. iii. 15; iv. 10; v. 5. Very frequently hour is used for a fixed season or opportunity, and is an emblem of a very short period of time.

HUMILITY taught, Micah vi. 8; Matt. xviii. 4; xiii. 12; Luke xviii. 14; Rom. xii. 3, 10, 16; Rom. iii. 26.

HUNGER, an established symbol of affliction. To "Avenger and thirst no more," denotes a perpetual exemption from all affliction.

HUSBANDS, their duty, Gen. ii. 24; Mal. ii. 14, 15; 1 Cor. vii. 3; Eph. v. 25; Col. iii. 19; 1 Pet. iii. 7.

HYACINTH. See PANCREUS BROWN.

HYMENEUS, [septial, marriage], mentioned 1 Tim. i. 20; 2 Tim. ii. 17.

HYMNS or PSALMS, used as part of worship. The book of Psalms contained the "hymns and spiritual songs," commonly sung by the Jews and early Christians. The Psalms are called, in general, hymns, by Philo the Jew; and Josephus calls them "songs and hymns."

HYPOCRITE, one who feigns to be what he is not. Matt. xxiii. The original word properly signifies "players disguised," as the Grecian actors used to be, in masks.

ICONIUM, [Icosae], a town of Asia Minor, visited by the apostles. It was the capital of Lyconia, 126 miles W. N. W. of Tarsus. Acts xiii. 51; xiv. 1, 19; xvi. 2; 2 Tim. iii. 11.

IDLENESS censured, Rom. xii. 11; 1 Thess. iv. 11; 2 Thess. iii. 10, &c. "Idle word," Matt. xii. 30, in the Greek means false, slandering, pernicious word.

IDOL, IDOLATRY, not only applied to heathen deities and their worship, but to anything too much and smulfully indulged. 1 John v. 21.

IDUMEA, [red, earthy], a country lying in the north of Arabia, and south of Judæa. Mark iii. 18.

IGNORANCE, voluntary, censured, John iii. 19; 2 Pet. iii. 5; involuntary, excusable, John ix. 41; 1 Tim. i. 13, but not when there are means of information, John iii. 19; v. 40; Acts xviii. 1, 26; 2 Pet. iii. 5.

ILLYRIUM, [joy], a province lying N. W.

of Macedon, along the eastern coast of the Adriatic Gulf, and now called Scylaxonia. Rom. xv. 19.

IMMANUEL, [God with us], a name given to our Lord Jesus Christ, Isa. vii. 14; Matt. i. 23.

IMMORTAL, deathless; does not occur once in the original, and only once even in the common version, 1 Tim. i. 17, where it ought to be rendered incorruptible. It is applied to God.

IMMORTALITY, deathlessness, only occurs 3 times, 1 Cor. xv. 53, 54; 1 Tim. vi. 15—applied exclusively to God, and the glorified bodies of the saints. See INCORRUPTIBILITY and LIFE.

IMMUTABILITY, unchangeableness, ascribed to God, Psa. cii. 37; to his counsel, promise, and oath, Heb. vi. 17, 18; to Jesus Christ, Heb. xiii. 8.

IMPOSITION OF HANDS, or LAYING ON OF HANDS. This phrase, denoting the communication of some gift, benefit, power, or office, (for an office is a gift,) occurs, Matt. ix. 15; Mark vi. 5; Luke iv. 10; xiii. 15; Acts vi. 6; viii. 17; xiii. 3; xiv. 6; xxviii. 8. The phrase "laying on of hands," occurs, 1 Tim. iv. 14; Heb. vi. 2. The persons who laid on hands were Jesus, the Apostles, Prophets, Teachers, Elders, or the Presbytery. The persons on whom hands were laid, were the sick, and such as desired to receive spiritual gifts, and those designated for public trusts and offices in or for the congregation.

IMPUTE, logical, occurs 41 times; and its primary and radical import is to reckon or account, being a word used in arithmetical calculations. It is used passively in Rom. iv. 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 10; 2 Tim. iv. 16, &c.

INCENSE, a compound of aromatics procured from trees, chiefly in Arabia, having when burnt, a most fragrant smell. It was not lawful to use it any place but the temple. Exod. xxx. 7, 8, 24; Luke i. 9.

INCORRUPTIBLE, God is, Rom. i. 23; 1 Tim. i. 17; so also his word, 1 Pet. i. 23; the bodies of the saints will be, 1 Cor. xv. 52; also, the inheritance, 1 Pet. i. 4. The Christian's crown will be incorruptible, 1 Cor. ix. 25.

INCORRUPTIBILITY, to be sought after, Rom. ii. 7; brought to view and illustrated in the gospel, 2 Tim. i. 10; corruptible natures must put it on in order to inherit the kingdom of God, 1 Cor. xv. 42, 50, 53, 54.

INFIRMITIES. (1.) Bodily weaknesses, Matt. viii. 17; Isa. lxx. 4. (2.) Weakness of human nature, Gal. iv. 13; Rom. viii. 26. Mere infirmities are not sins, except so far as we bring them on ourselves. Christians are bound to pay a tender regard to the infirmities of others. Rom. xv. 1.

INGRATITUDE censured, Psa. vii. 4; cvi. 7; Prov. xvii. 13; 2 Tim. iii. 2; instances of, Gen. xl. 23; Judges viii. 24; 1 Sam. xviii. 6—30.

INN, in our Bible, generally means a caravansera. Usually they are simply places of rest, near a fountain, if possible; others have an attendant, who merely waits on travelers; and others have a family, which sell provisions. They are found in every part of the East. In the stable of such a place, the better parts being all occupied, Jesus was born. Luke ii. 7.

INSCRIPTION or SUPERSCRIPTION, writing on coins, pillars, &c. Much of the history of nations may be learnt from them, Matt. xx. 20. The history of Greece for 1318 years, is inscribed on the Arundel marbles.

- Parts of the law of Moses were inscribed on the altar at Hbal. Deut. xliii. 8.
- INFLUSSION of Christ for us, Rom. viii. 34; Heb. vii. 25; 1 John ii. 1; to be made by us for others, Rom. xv. 30; 2 Cor. i. 11; Eph. i. 16; vi. 18, 19; Col. iv. 8, &c.; instances, Gen. xviii. 23-33, &c.
- IRON, a well known, strong, and useful metal, and known very anciently, Gen. iv. 22. Moses speaks of its hardness, Lev. xxvi. 19; of the iron mines, Deut. viii. 9; and of the furnace in which it was made, Deut. iv. 20. The bedstead of Og, king of Bashan was of iron, Deut. iii. 11.
- IRONY or SARCASM, when a person means the contrary of what he says; examples of, Lev. xxvi. 34, 35; 2 Sam. vi. 20; 1 Kings xviii. 27; 2 Kings xviii. 25; Job xxvi. 2, 3; Mark vii. 0.
- ISAAC, (laughter.) the promised son of Abraham, born A. M. 2107, Gen. xvii. 10, 11; xli. 6-8. The command to "take Isaac and offer him as a burnt-offering," Gen. xxii. 2, was as the result unequivocally shows, merely to prove or test Abraham, in order that his faith, love, and obedience, might be manifest; and not, in fact, that he should offer up his son. Moreover, the whole transaction was symbolical of the real sacrifice of the Son of God.
- ISAIAH, (the salvation of the Lord.) the prophet, the son of Amoz, prophesied about 60 years, during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. The Book of Isaiah is remarkable for the elegance and sublimity of its language, and the many and wonderful predictions contained in it. Passages are quoted from it by Zephaniah, Ezekiel, and Habakkuk, as well as by the New Testament writers.
- ISCARIOT, [a man of murder.] the name of the disciple who betrayed Christ, Matt. x. 4.
- ISRAEL, [who prevails with God.] a name given to Jacob, Gen. xxxii. 28; also the common name of the Hebrew people and country.
- ISRAELITES, the descendants of Jacob, Exod. ix. 7. Were one nation until the reign of Rehoboam, when ten tribes revolted under Jeroboam, and had their capital at Samaria; while Judah and Benjamin remained steadfast to the house of David. The ten tribes were carried captive into Assyria, B. C. 722, and nationally have never yet been restored. Their rejection and dispersion were plainly foretold, Lev. xxvi. 28-34; Deut. ix. 27, 28; xxxiii. 15-68; Hosea ix. 17; and their restoration also foretold, Deut. xxx. 1-9; Isa. i. 26; iv. 2-6; xl. 1; xiv. 1-3; xviii. 2, &c.; Jer. xvi. 14, 15; xxxiii. 8; xxxi. &c.; Hosea iii. 5; Amos ix. 14, &c.; &c.; the same represented by the revival of dead bones, Ezek. xxxviii.; by the olive tree, Rom. xi.; their future prosperity in the last days, Isa. li. ix. 1-7; xvi. 6; xxvi., &c.
- ISACHAR, [price, reward.] the fifth son of Jacob and Leah, Gen. xlii. 14-18; born A. M. 2157.
- ITALY, a celebrated country in the south of Europe, comprising a peninsula, in a form resembling that of a boot, Acts xviii. 2.
- ITUREA, [which is guarded.] a province in Syria, mentioned Luke iii. 1.
- JACINTH. See PANCIOUS STONES.
- JACOB, [As that supplants.] the youngest son of Isaac and Rebecca, born A. M. 2107, Gen. xxv. 26.
- JACOB'S WELL, a fountain of water about one mile and a half from Sychar, on the road to Jerusalem.
- JAIKUS, [diffuser of light.] chief of the synagogue at Capernaum, Mark v. 22-43; Luke viii. 41-56.
- JAMBRES, [the sea wark poverty.] a magician in Egypt who withstood Moses, 2 Tim. iii. 8.
- JAMES, (the same in meaning as Jacob,) one of the twelve apostles; the brother of John and son of Zebedee, Matt. iv. 21. Murdered by Herod, about A. D. 44. Acts xii. 2. — the Less, an apostle, and the kinsman of our Lord, Gal. i. 19. He was the son of Cleopas or Alphaeus and Mary, sister to Mary the mother of Jesus; consequently cousin to Jesus Christ, according to the flesh, 1 Cor. xv. 7; and generally esteemed as the writer of the Epistle which bears his name.
- Epistle of, addressed to the twelve tribes of the dispersion, to those of them who professed faith in the Messiah. It is evident that at the time it was written, the brethren were suffering persecutions, and that the destruction of the Jewish polity was very near. The letter is most pathetic and instructive, and contains an admirable summary of practical duties incumbent on all believers.
- JANNA, [who speaks.] the father of Melchizedek, Luke iii. 24.
- JANNES, [who speaks.] an Egyptian magician who withstood Moses, 2 Tim. iii. 8.
- JARED, [he who descends.] one of the antediluvian patriarchs, Gen. v. 15-20; Luke iii. 37.
- JASON, [As that cures.] a kinsman of Paul at Thessalonica, mentioned Acts xvii. 5-9; Rom. xvi. 21.
- JASPEL. See PANCIOUS STONES.
- JEPHTHAH, [he that opens.] his history, Judges xi.; xii. 1-7; Mentioned Heb. xi. 33. The original of Judges xi. 30, when properly translated, reads thus:—"And it shall be, that whoever comes forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, shall surely be Jehovah's, and I will offer to him a burnt offering." The vow contains two parts: 1. That person who met him on his return, should be Jehovah's, and be dedicated forever to his service, as Hannah devoted Samuel before he was born, 1 Sam. i. 11. 2. That Jephthah himself would offer a burnt offering to Jehovah. Human sacrifices were prohibited by the law, Deut. xii. 30; and the priests would not offer them. Such a vow would have been impious, and could not have been performed. It may be safely concluded that Jephthah's daughter was devoted to perpetual virginity; and with this idea agrees the statements, that "she went to bewail her virginity;" that the women went four times in every year to mourn or talk with (not for) her; that Jephthah "did with her according to his vow;" and that "she knew no man."
- JEREMIAH, (exaltation of the Lord.) the prophet, was a priest of the tribe of Benjamin, son of Hilkinah, a native of Anathoth, Jer. i. 1. He began to prophesy in the reign of Josiah, A. M. 3375, and prophesied about 41 years. He predicted the punishment and captivity of the idolatrous Jews, and their restoration, together with the blessings of the reign of Messiah.
- JERICHO, [his moon.] a city of Judah; 10 miles west of the Jordan, and 17 miles N. E. of Jerusalem. It was noted for palm - trees, and was once a large city, but now a mere village.

- JERUSALEM, [vision of peace,] a celebrated city of Asia, capital of ancient Judea, and of modern Palestine. It is memorable for its ancient temple, for the death and resurrection of our Savior, and for its signal destruction by Titus. It was built on four hills—Zion, Acra, Moriah, and Bezetha. The name Zion was often applied to the whole city. Modern Jerusalem is built on Mount Moriah, and is chiefly noted for pilgrimage. It contains about 20,000 inhabitants.
- JESSE, [to be, or who is,] the son of Obed, and father of David. Ruth iv. 22; 1 Sam. xvi.; Luke iv. 32.
- JESTING, not to be used, Eph. v. 4.
- JESUS, [a savior,] the Son of God, the Messiah, the Savior of the world. This name is composed of Yan, or Jan, I shall be; and Sava, Powerful.—"I shall be the powerful." Hence he is "mighty to save, and strong to deliver," and will "save his people from their sins." Eusebius says, "The name Jesus means the salvation of God. For Jesus among the Hebrews is salvation, and among them the son of Nun is called Joshua; and Jesus is the salvation of God. For Jesus is the salvation of God." The "name of Jesus, i. e. salvation of God." The "name of Jesus," (Phil. ii. 1) is not the name Jesus, but "the name above every name," nomine in superius vocato, ver. 9; viz. the supreme dignity and authority with which the Father has invested Jesus Christ, as the reward of his disinterested exertion in the cause of the divine glory and human happiness.
- JEW, a name formed from that of Judah, and applied in its first use to one belonging to the tribe or country of Judah, or rather perhaps to a subject of the separate kingdom of Judah, 2 Kings xvi. 6; xxv. 5. During the captivity the term seems to have been extended to all the people of the Hebrew language and country without distinction. Esther iii. 6, 9; Dan. iii. 8, 12; and this loose application of the name was preserved after the restoration to Palestine, when it came to denote not only every descendant of Abraham in the largest possible sense, but even proselytes who had no blood-relation to the Hebrews. Acts ii. 8, 10.
- JOANNA, [grace or gift of the Lord,] the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward; who after being cured by our Savior followed him, Luke viii. 3. Also the son of Rhese, Luke iii. 17.
- JOB, [he that weeps,] a patriarch celebrated for his patience under complicated and severe trials, and the constancy of his piety and virtue. His book is of very great antiquity; its style, &c., harmonizes with the Pentateuch. The scene is laid in Idumea, a part of Arabia Petraea. Supposed to have been contemporary with Moses. See Ezek. xiv. 14, 20; James v. 11.
- JOEL, [that which commands,] one of the twelve minor prophets, the son of Pethuel. He was contemporary with Isaiah and Amos, and delivered his predictions in the reign of Uzziah, between 800 and 750 B. C. His prophecy is quoted from by Peter on the day of Pentecost, Acts ii. 16.
- JOHN, [the gift or favor of God,] THE APOSTLE brother of James, and the son of Zebedee, a native of Bethsaida in Galilee. He was the disciple whom the Savior loved, and supposed to have been the youngest. He received Mary into his house after the death of Jesus, which seems to have been situated at Jerusalem. It is probable that he lived there till the death of Mary, and then went to Ephesus, and labored in Asia Minor. He suffered much for his religion, and was banished by the Roman emperor, to the Isle of Patmos, where according to Irenaeus and Eusebius he beheld and wrote the visions of the Apocalypse, about the close of the reign of Domitian, A. D. 96. When Nerva became emperor, he was recalled and lived to write his Gospel and three Epistles. He died at Ephesus at the age of 100 years, in the third year of Trajan.

JOHN, Gospel of. This book was not written, as some suppose, to supply omissions made by the other three Gospel historians; but as they had written chiefly of the life and actions of their Master, John wrote chiefly of his person and office, and in refutation of errors which had sprung up.

— Epistles of. These letters appear to have been written to establish the truths concerning the person and offices of Christ, and to condemn the errors then prevailing, contrary to these truths; also to repress the lewd practices, for the sake of which these errors were embraced. The spirit of love, sanctification, and renunciation of the world are very prominent, and earnestly inculcated.

— THE BAPTIST, the forerunner of the Lord, the son of Zachariah and Elisabeth. He said he was "the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Isaiah," John i. 23. At about 30 years of age he entered on the work of announcing the near approach of the Messiah and his kingdom, and calling on the people to reform and be immersed for the remission of their sins. Many of the people flocked to his baptism, and he was held in esteem by them as a prophet; but it is said that "the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, not being baptized of him," Luke vii. 30. He baptized Jesus in the river Jordan, and pointed him out as "the Lamb of God which takes away the sin of the world," John i. 29. After the Messiah had entered on his work of proclaiming the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, John was beheaded by Herod Antipas, because he had reproved him for the sin of adultery, Matt. xiv. 3—12.

— named Mark, the companion of Paul and Barnabas, Acts xii. 12. He wrote the Gospel which bears his surname.

— a member of the Sanhedrim, and a relative of the high-priest, Acts ix. 6.

JONAH, one of the minor prophets, who probably lived in the reign of Jehu, B. C. 854 to 856, 2 Kings xiv. 26. He was sent on a mission to Nineveh. See the book itself for the account. Referred to, Matt. xii. 39—41; xvi. 4; Luke xi. 29, 30.

JOPPA, [beauty, comeliness,] a seaport of Palestine, of very ancient date, though possessing an inferior harbor. It is now called Jaffa. Mentioned Acts ix. 36—43; x. 6—8, 23.

JORDAN, a river of Palestine, the only considerable one in the country. It rises in Mount Hermon, formed by the union of two springs—one "Jor," and the other "Dan," hence its name—and passes through lakes Merom and Gennesareth, and after a course of 150 miles, flows into the Dead Sea. Before entering it, its ordinary breadth, according to Shaw, is 20 yards, and its ordinary depth 13 feet. The "country beyond

west of the Jordan

- the Jordan," comprised Pera, Batanes, Trachonitis, Iturea, Galanaditis, Gaulonitis, and Decapolis.
- JOSAPHAT, (increase, addition), the son of Jacob and Rachel, and brother to Benjamin, Gen. xix. 21-24. See his history in the latter part of Genesis—which is one of the most beautiful and attractive that ever was written.
- "the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ," Matt. i. 16. Being the nearest of kin to He. i., the father of Mary, he was espoused to her according to law. He was the natural, that is, by birth, son of Jacob, and the legal son of He. i.; or, as we call it, son-in-law; hence called by Luke, the son of He. i., in virtue of his being Mary's husband.
- of Arimathea, a senator, and privately a disciple of Christ, John xix. 38; Luke xxiii. 54, 61.
- called Barabas, one of the two persons nominated by the primitive Church, to supply the place of Judas Iscariot, Acts i. 23.
- or JOSAS, a son of Mary and Cleopas, and brother of James the Less, of Simon, and of Jude, and consequently one of those who are called the brethren of our Lord, Matt. xiii. 55; xvii. 56; Mark vi. 3; xv. 40, 47.
- or JOSAS, surnamed Barabas, Acts iv. 36.
- JOSHUA, [the lord, the savior], the successor of Moses as leader of Israel. He was the son of Nun, of the tribe of Ephraim, and born A. M. 2458. The book of Joshua comprises the history of about 20 years, and forms a continuation and completion to the Pentateuch. It describes the conquest of Canaan; its partition among the tribes; and the death and burial of Joshua. Three other persons of this name are mentioned, 1 Sam. vi. 14, 18; 3 Kings xxiii. 8; Zech. iii. 1, 6, vi. 11.
- JOURNEY, a passage from place to place. A "Sabbath day's journey" was about a mile; a common day's journey was about 20 miles, Acts i. 11.
- JOY, when to be shown, Luke x. 30; Rom. xii. 13; 2 Cor. xiii. 11; Phil. i. 4, 18; iv. 4; 1 Thess. iv. 16-18, &c.
- JUBILEE, an extraordinary festival held every seventh sabbatical year. Ordered, Lev. xxv. 8; probably alluded to in Isa. lxi. 1, 2; Luke iv. 18, 19.
- JUDAH, or JUDEA, [confessing, praise], that district of Canaan belonging to the tribe of Judah. Sometimes it denoted the whole of Palestine west of the Jordan. Under the Romans Palestine was divided in three portions—Galilee in the north, Samaria in the middle, and Judea in the south. The conquest of this country is commemorated by coins or medals, representing on one side the head of the emperor Vespasian, and on the other the daughter of Zion, sitting on a heap of warlike weapons, under a palm tree, in a mournful attitude. Compare Isa. iii. 24 and xlvii. 1.
- JUDAS (the same meaning as Judah,) Iscariot, the traitor, one of the twelve apostles; the disciple who was entrusted with the donations presented to our Lord, and who at length betrayed his Master.
- or JUDAS; called also Thaddeus, or Lebbeus, and Zelotes, probably one of the Twelve. He was the author of the Epistle bearing his name, which was intended chiefly to guard believers against false teachers.
- JUDAS of Galilee, mentioned Acts v. 37. — surnamed Barabab, a Christian teacher sent from Jerusalem to Antioch, along with Paul and Barnabas, Acts xv. 22, 27, 33.
- a Jew of Damascus with whom Paul lodged, Acts ix. 11.
- JUDGES, Extraordinary men raised up by Jehovah, to deliver Israel from oppression, before the times of the kings. Fifteen such persons presided over the Israelites during the 430 years which elapsed from the death of Joshua to the accession of Saul. Acts xlii. 20.
- JUDGMENT, the name of an inferior Jewish court, established in every city, and which consisted of 23 members, who punished criminals by strangling or beheading, Matt. v. 21, 22. Also, the solemn action and trial at the great and last day. Eccl. xii. 14; Jude 6. The place of the administration of justice, under the Roman governor, was called the judgment hall, John xviii. 33; xix. 9; and the tribunal, or place of pronouncing sentence, the judgment-seat, Matt. xxvii. 19.
- JULIA, [downy], one whom Paul salutes, Rom. xvi. 15.
- JULIUS, [downy], the centurion to whom Paul was committed, to be conveyed to Rome, Acts xxvii. 1.
- JUNIA, [young], a female relative of Paul's, Rom. xvi. 7.
- JUPITER, [the father who helps], the most powerful of the heathen deities, Acts xiv. 12, 13; xix. 35.
- JUSTIFICATION. This word occurs only three times in the common version—Rom. iv. 24; v. 16, 18. Justify occurs in reference to God, Rom. iii. 20; Gal. iii. 8. Believers are said to be justified by Christ, Acts xiii. 39; by favor, Rom. iii. 24; by faith, Rom. iii. 28; by his blood, Rom. v. 9; by the name of the Lord Jesus, 1 Cor. vi. 11; by works, James ii. 24. The original words translated "justification" in the common version, are dikaiosis and dikaion, signifying acquittal, forgiveness, absolution, deliverance from the consequences of sin.
- JUSTUS, [just, upright], mentioned Acts xviii. 7; Col. iv. 11.
- KEDRON, [the turbid], a brook or winter torrent which flows through the valley of Jehoshaphat, mentioned John xviii. 1.
- KEY. A symbol of power and authority, Rev. i. 18; Isa. xlii. 22. Authority to explain the law and the prophets was given by the delivery of a key. When Rabbi Samuel died, they put his key and his tablets into his coffin.
- KEYS "of the kingdom of heaven," Matt. xvi. 19. These were given to Peter, who had the authority, power, and honor of first opening the door of the Gospel to both Jews and Gentiles, Acts ii. 14-42; x.
- KING, a title applied in the Scriptures to men, Luke xii. 25; 1 Tim. ii. 1, 2; 1 Pet. ii. 13-17; to God, 1 Tim. i. 17; vi. 15, 16; and to Christ, Matt. xxvii. 11; Luke xix. 33; John i. 49; vi. 15; xviii. 32-37; to men as invested with regal authority by their fellows; to God as the sole proper sovereign and ruler of the universe; and to Christ as the Son of God, the King of the Jews, the sole Head and Governor of his Church.
- KINGDOM. (1.) The territories of a king. (2.) Royal power and dominion. Where the word occurs in the New Testament, according to Dr Geo. Campbell, it is generally synonymous with reign. Basileia, with

- the Greeks, denoted either Reign or Kingdom. The Royalty or Kingdom of God, or of Heaven, was announced by Daniel, chap. 11. 44; xii. 9, 22; by John the Baptist, and by Jesus, Matt. iii. 2; (v. 17; x. 7; xii. 28, &c.); to be prayed for, Matt. vi. 10; Luke xi. 2; to be sought after, Matt. vi. 33; Luke xii. 31; qualifications for it, Matt. vii. 21; Luke ix. 61; John iii. 5, 8; Acts xiv. 22; 1 Cor. vi. 9; xv. 50; 2 Thess. i. 4, 5.
- KISS, a natural symbol of affection and reverence, of very ancient date. Early Christians conformed to custom, and kissed each other during or at the close of public worship. According to some this was generally given by men apart and women apart, before receiving the Lord's supper, to testify peace and brotherly affection. 1 Thess. v. 20; 1 Pet. v. 14.
- KNEELING, a posture for prayer, Psa. xcv. 6; Eph. iii. 14; examples of it, 1 Kings viii. 54; Dan. vi. 10; Luke xiii. 41; Acts ix. 40; xx. 36; xxi. 5.
- KNOW, has in the Bible frequently the import of approve or recognize. As Hosea viii. 4. "They have set up princes, and I knew it not." Matt. vii. 23, "Then will I declare unto them, Depart from me, I never knew you."
- KNOWLEDGE, wherein it consists, 1 John ii. 3; iii. 6; iv. 6; the measure of our obedience, and by which we must be judged, Luke xii. 47; John xv. 22; Rom. i. 21; ii. 21; James iv. 17; must be communicated, 1 Pet. iv. 10; often the occasion of vanity, 1 Cor. viii. 1; worldly, of little value, 1 Cor. i. 19; iii. 19; 2 Cor. i. 12.
- LABOR, the steady and constant effort of the bodily frame which man undertakes for his own benefit, and, in particular, in order to procure the means of subsistence. The lot of all men. Gen. iii. 19; recommended, Acts xx. 35; Eph. iv. 28; 1 Thess. ii. 9; iv. 11, &c.
- LAMB, the well-known type and symbol of the Messiah. See Gen. xiii. 7, 8; Exod. xii. 3-5; Isa. lii. 7; John i. 29; 1 J. i. 19; Rev. v. 6-13, &c.
- LAMECH, [poor, made lame], one of the antediluvian patriarchs, the son of Methuselah, and father of Noah, Gen. v. 28-31; Luke iii. 38. Also, one who was a descendant of Cain, mentioned Gen. iv. 18, 21.
- LAMPS. The lamps of the ancients were of various kinds. Those used at wedding processions consisted of old rags, squeezed hard against one another in a round figure, like a great sausage. Those who hold them have in the other hand a pitcher with a very narrow neck, full of oil, of which they pour out from time to time on the flame. This explains Christ's declaration, that he will not "quench the smoking flax," Matt. xii. 20; and shows why the foolish virgins needed "oil in their vessels," Matt. xxv. 4. Laws concerning them in the tabernacle, Num. viii. 1-4.
- LANGUAGES or TONGUES, gift of, at the day of Pentecost, Acts ii. 1-13; conferred by the apostles, Acts viii. 17; x. 46; xii. 6; 1 Cor. xii. 10.
- LAODICEA, [just people], a city of Phrygia, in Asia Minor, 42 miles east of Ephesus. A Christian church was early planted in this place, Rev. i. 11. It is now an extensive ruin. Christ's message to the Church there, Rev. iii. 14-22.
- LASCIVIOUSNESS censured, Rom. xiii. 13; 2 Cor. xii. 21; Gal. v. 19; Eph. iv. 19, &c.
- LABEA, [a rocky country], a city near Fair Havens, in the island of Crete, Acts xvii. 8.
- LAW, means a rule of conduct enforced by an authority superior to that of the moral beings to whom it is given. As found in the Scriptures it is variously applied, and must be taken in the connection in which it stands to be properly understood. Law sometimes means the whole revealed will of God, contained in his word, Psa. i. 2; xix. 7; xl. 8, &c.; sometimes doctrine, Prov. xiii. 14; the Mosaic economy, John i. 17; xiii. 35; ceremonial observances, Luke ii. 27; Acts xv. 8, 24, &c.; judicial or civil law, John vii. 51; xviii. 31; Acts xix. 38, &c.; also, the moral law, or Decalogue, Exod. xx. 5-17; Rom. vii. 7, 12, 14, &c.
- LAWSUITS among Christians, to be avoided, Matt. v. 38-42; 1 Cor. vi. 1-7.
- LAWYERS, persons versed in the laws. These are mentioned only after the decline of the Mosaic institutions had considerably advanced. As the Jews had no written laws, except those contained in the Old Testament, a lawyer among them was a person familiar with scripture, and whose business it was to expound them. Lawyers and Scribes censured, Luke vii. 30; xi. 46-52.
- LAZARUS, [the helper of God], an inhabitant of Bethany, brother of Mary and Martha, who was honored with the friendship of Jesus, by whom he was raised from the dead after he had been four days in the tomb, John xi. Also, the name of a beggar mentioned in a parable, Luke xvi. 20.
- LEAVEN. The usual levain in the East is dough kept till it becomes sour, and which is kept from one day to another for the purpose of preserving leaven in readiness. Chemically speaking, ferment or yeast is the same as leaven; but leaven is more correctly applied to solids, ferment both to liquids and solids. According to chemists, "ferment or yeast is a substance in a state of putrefaction, the atoms of which are in a continual motion." It is used figuratively for whatever produces a change in the mass with which it mixes, whether for the better or for the worse, Matt. xiii. 33; xvi. 6, 12; 1 Cor. v. 6.
- LEBBEUS, [strong-hearted], a surname of the apostle Jude.
- LEGION, a division of the Roman army. In the time of Pontius, a Roman legion contained 5000 infantry, and 200 cavalry. About the time of Christ, it contained 600 foot soldiers, and 200 horse, Mark v. 9; Luke vii. 39; Matt. xvi. 53.
- LEPER. Since the Leper, Matt. xvi. 6, so called from his having been a leper; it was unlawful to eat with persons who had the leprosy.
- LEVI, [separated], the third son of Jacob and Leah, born in Mesopotamia, B. C. 1766; Gen. xxix. 34. Also the name of Matthew, Mark ii. 14.
- LEVITES, the descendants of Levi, appointed to assist the priests in their services; to see that the temple was kept clean, to prepare oil, wine, &c. for God's house; to take care of the sacred revenues.
- LIBERTINES. Jews who were free citizens or burgesses of Rome, Acts vi. 9.
- LIBYA, [the heart of the sea], a province in Africa, westward of Egypt, famous for its armed chariots and horses, 2 Chron. xix. 8; Acts ii. 10.
- LIFE, properly existence, either animal or rational. Natural life, valuable, Psa. xlii. 7-9; short and uncertain, Job vii. 16; xlv.

- 7-9; short and uncertain, Job vii. 17; xiv. 7-10; Psa. xxix. 5; xv. 5, 8, 9, 10; 1 Pet. i. 24; not to be preferred to our duty, Matt. x. 39; xvi. 25; Mark viii. 35; Luke ix. 24; xvii. 32; John xii. 24; future and eternal life described, Luke xx. 30; 1 Cor. xv. 12-57; Phil. iii. 10, 21, &c.
- LIGHT created, Gen. i. 3-5, 14-10. Applied to God, 1 John i. 5; to Christ, John i. 9; to God's Word, Psa. cxix. 105; 2 Pet. i. 10; to the apostles, Matt. v. 14, 16; to Christians, Eph. v. 8. It is the well-known symbol of knowledge.
- LIGHTNING, the flash of the electric fluid, as it passes from one cloud to another. The power and wrath of God are often represented by thunder and lightnings, Job xxxvii. 3-5; Psa. xviii. 12, &c.
- LILY, a beautiful flower common in Palestine, of which there are several varieties. The lily referred to by our Saviour in Matt. vi. 28, was probably the amaryllis lutea, whose golden flowers in autumn afford one of the most brilliant and gorgeous objects in nature.
- LINEN, cloth made of flax, well-known at a very early period. In some passages the word so rendered probably means cotton. Specimens of cotton cloth are found on the oldest mummies.
- LINUS, [acts], a person mentioned by Paul, 2 Tim. iv. 21.
- LION "of the tribe of Judah." A lion being the ensign of the tribe of Judah, the phrase is applied to Christ, who sprang from that tribe; and is symbolical of his great strength, Rev. v. 5.
- LOAF. The Eastern loaf was a large cake, Exod. xxix. 23; 1 Chron. xvi. 3; Mark viii. 14.
- LOCUSTS, an insect resembling a grasshopper, only much larger in size. The prophetic writings of the Old Testament abound with allusions to this insect as one of God's most dreadful scourges. Moses mentions them as lawful food, Lev. xi. 22; and it is said that John the Baptist ate locusts while in the desert of Judæa, Mark i. 6. But whether these were the insects so called, or the sweet pulpy pods of a tree, is still eaten in the East both by rich and poor. Symbolically locusts represent great and terrible armies, Rev. ix. 3.
- LOINS, the lower region of the back. The orientals who wear long robes, are obliged, when they apply themselves, to any business, to use a girdle. Hence, to have the "loins girded" is the same as to be in readiness for action. Luke xii. 28; Eph. vi. 14.
- LOIS, [better], Timothy's grandmother, 2 Tim. i. 5.
- LONG HAIR. Chardon says, "The eastern women are remarkable for the great length and the number of the tresses of their hair. Their hair hangs at full length behind, divided in tresses braided with ribbon or pearl. Lady Montague counted one hundred and ten tresses, all natural, on the head of one lady. The men wear but very little on their heads. Young men who wear their hair in the East, are regarded as effeminate and infamous."
- LORD, [proprietor], a Saxon word signifying ruler or governor. When the word represents the dread name of Jehovah, or Yahweh, it is printed LoRD, in small capitals, in the authorized version. The word is applied to Jesus Christ, to angels, to princes, to masters, to husbands, &c.
- LORD'S DAY, Rev. i. 10, is thought by some to be the same as the first day of the week, when Christians assembled for worship; but it is considered by others as merely synonymous with "the day of the Lord," 1 Thess. v. 7. The expression standing alone, and being unaccompanied by any other words which tend to explain its meaning, it is difficult to decide which view is correct. The earliest authentic instance in which the name of "the Lord's day" is applied, (after the passage in the Apocalypse,) is not till Tertullian uses it, about A. D. 200; and perhaps a little later, the term is made use of by Dionysius of Corinth, as quoted by Eusebius.
- LOT, [wrapped up] the son of Haran, and nephew of Abraham. After the death of his father, he accompanied his uncle from Ur to Haran, and thence to Canaan, Gen. xiii. 8, 9. Mentioned 2 Pet. ii. 7.
- LOTS, things cast or drawn in order to determine a point in debate. Lev. xvi. 8; Job. vii.; Prov. xvi. 33; xviii. 18; Acts i. 26; Matt. xxvii. 35.
- LOVE of God, its nature, John iii. 16; xvii. 23; Rom. v. 8; viii. 39; 1 John iii. 1, 2, &c.; of Christ, John xiii. 1; xv. 13, 13; Rom. viii. 35, &c. Love to God required, Deut. vi. 5; x. 14; rendered by his children, Phil. i. 9; 1 John ii. 5; iv. 19; how shown, 1 John iv. 10, 21; v. 1-3; to Christ, its nature, Matt. x. 37-43; John xv. 15, 21, 23, &c.; brotherly love enjoined, John xiii. 34; xv. 12, 17; Rom. xii. 9, 10; xiii. 8; 1 Cor. xiii. &c.; of the world, forbidden, Matt. v. 34; xiii. 22; James i. 27; iv. 4; 1 John ii. 15.
- LUCIUS, [luminous], a prophet in the congregation at Antioch, Acts xiii. 1. Probably the same Lucius who is mentioned in Rom. xvi. 21, as Paul's relative.
- LUCRE, worldly wealth, the love of forbidden, Matt. vi. 24; 1 Tim. iii. 3; 1 Pet. v. 2.
- LUKE, [luminous], a native of Antioch, and a physician. He was Paul's companion and assistant, Philemon 23, 24; 2 Tim. iv. 11. He was the writer of the history bearing his name, and of the Acts of the Apostles.
- The Book of Luke's Gospel appears to have been written to correct numerous erroneous narratives of the life of Jesus. The style both in this and in the Acts, is pure and elevated, and many facts are given which are not contained in the other Evangelists.
- LUKEWARMNESS censured, Matt. viii. 21; Luke ix. 57-61; Acts xvi. 29; Rev. iii. 15.
- LUNATICS, persons affected by some disorder, and supposed to be influenced by the moon, such as epilepsy, melancholy, insanity, &c. See DEMONIACS.
- LYCAONIA, [the wolf], a province of Asia Minor, west of Cappadocia, where Paul and Barnabas planted congregations, Acts xiv. 6-10.
- LYDDA, [nativity], a town about 14 miles from Joppa, 32 miles west from Jerusalem. Acts ix. 32, 35.
- LYDIA, [magnet], a woman of Thyatira, "a seller of purple," who dwelt in Philippi in Macedonia, Acts xvi. 14, 15. Also a province in the west of Asia Minor.
- LYING, forbidden, Eph. iv. 25; Col. iii. 9; will be punished, Psa. v. 6; iii. 1-7; Rev. xxi. 8, 27; examples, 2 Kings v. 25; Acts v. 1-11.
- LYSANIAS, [that drives away sorrow], tetrarch of Abilene, when John began his mission as the harbinger of the Messiah, Luke iii. 1.

LYSIA or LYCIA, [dissolving,] a province of Asia Minor, Acts xvii. 5.

LYSIAS, [dissolving,] chiliarch and commander of the Roman troops who kept guard at the temple of Jerusalem, Acts xxi. 31-40; xlii. 28-30; xliii. 15-20.

LYSTRA, [that dissolves or disperses,] a city of Lycania in Asia Minor, about 12 miles south of Iconium, where Paul and Barnabas had fled, and were taken for gods by those who heard them, Acts xiv. 6-22.

MACEDONIA, [salvation,] a country north of Greece, the original kingdom of Philip and Alexander, and the rise of which is described by Daniel under the emblem of a goat with one horn. Coins still exist in which that country is represented under the figure of a one-horned goat. To this country the apostle Paul was summoned to preach the gospel, and planted churches at Thessalonica and Philippi, &c., Acts xvi. 9-xvii. 14; and visited Amphipolis, Neapolis, Apollonia, and Berea, towns of the same province. Much of ancient Macedonia is now the western part of Roumelia.

MAGDALA, [magdalen,] a town mentioned in Matt. xv. 32, and the probable birthplace of Mary Magdalene, i. e. Mary of Magdala.

MAGI or WISDOM MEN, Matt. ii. 1-12. Sages eminent for their knowledge of astronomy, natural philosophy, and theology. They were probably descendants of Israhel, and from Arabia, a country east of Judaea.

MAGICIANS, learned men of the East, who professed the knowledge of future events by astrology, Dan. ii. 3; iv. 7, 9, &c.

MAGISTRATES to be obeyed by Christians, Rom. xiii. 1-7; Titus iii. 1; 1 Pet. ii. 13-17.

MALICE forbidden, 1 Cor. v. 8; xiv. 8; Eph. iv. 31; Col. iii. 8, &c.

MALACHI, [messenger,] the last of the minor prophets. His prophecy connects well with the Gospel histories, to which allusion is made in Luke i. 77; vii. 27.

MALACHIUS, [Aug.] the servant of the high-priest Caiaphas, whose right ear Peter cut off, but which was healed by Jesus, John xviii. 10.

MALÉ nor FEMALE, Gal. iii. 28. Females were not admitted to all the Heathen rites, and the privileges of Jewish females were also limited.

MAMMON, a Syriac word signifying wealth, and used by our Savior as a personification of the god of riches, Matt. vi. 24; Luke xvi. 13.

MAN, his creation and primeval dignity, Gen. i. 26, 27; ii. 7; Psa. viii. 5; Eccl. vii. 29; his fall, Gen. iii. 17; corruption of his nature, Rom. iii. 10-23; Gal. v. 17; Eph. ii. 1-3; his mortality, Gen. iii. 19; Job vii. 10-14; Psa. lxxv. 9; Gal. i. 8; Eccl. xii. 7; 1 Cor. xv. 22; 1 Pet. i. 24; his life and dignity restored by Christ, John iii. 14, 15, 36; iv. 14; v. 26; v. 29, 40; x. 27, 28; xi. 25; 1 Cor. xv. 23, &c. The "old man" denotes the natural, un sanctified disposition, the "new man" the new disposition created and cherished by the gospel. "Natural" or animal man, a person unenowned; "the inward man," or the "hidden man of the heart," the regenerate principle within, as opposed to the "outward man,"—that which is external and visible in the conduct.

MANAEN, [a comforter,] a teacher in the congregation at Antioch, who had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, Acts xiii. 1.

MANNA, the food which God gave the children of Israel in the wilderness. Described, Exod. xvi. 1; Num. xi. 7-9; Psa. lxxviii. 25-28; referred to, John vi. 21, 43, 64; Heb. ix. 4; Rev. ii. 17.

MARANATHA. See AKATHENA.

MARK, [ipso, strong,] According to ecclesiastical testimonies the evangelist Mark is the same person who in the Acts is called by the Jewish name John, whose Roman name was Marcus, Acts xii. 17. Peter calls him his son, 1 Pet. v. 13, and he traveled with Paul and Barnabas as an assistant, Acts xii. 25; xiii. 5.

The Book of Mark was evidently written for Gentile converts, probably about 20 years after the death of Christ. Some have supposed that Mark did little more than abridge Matthew's Gospel, but it has been shown by Weiss, Wolk, Bauer, Michaelis, and others that he could not even have seen the book. He probably drew his facts from Peter, (as stated by John the Presbyter and Papias, according to Eusebius,) who, equally with Matthew, was an eye-witness of our Lord's life.

— or CHARICER, "mark on their foreheads," and on "the right hand," Ezek. ix. 4; Rev. xiii. 5; xlii. 10; xiv. 9; xx. 4; an open profession of allegiance to those whose name or character they bear. Both servants and soldiers, in ancient times, were marked on the forehead, and hands, with some hieroglyphic, or with the name expressed in vulgar letters, or disguised in numerical letters, according to the fancy of the imposer.

MARKS "of the Lord Jesus," Gal. vi. 17. The scars resulted from stripes and chains, alluding to an Egyptian custom, according to which any man's servant who fled to the temple of Hercules, and had the sacred brands or marks of that deity impressed upon him, was supposed to be under his immediate care, and privileged from all harsh treatment. So Paul claims exemption from reflections on his character, or disputes about the necessity of circumcision, for he valued far more the scars he bore than these marks enforced by Judaizing teachers.

MARK, his institution, Gen. ii. 21-24; his nature, Matt. xix. 4-9; 1 Cor. vi. 16; vii. 19, 31; Eph. v. 31; lawful for all Christians, 1 Cor. vii. 28; 1 Tim. v. 14; Heb. xiii. 4; ancient mode of celebrating it, Gen. xlix. 22; seen by our Lord's parables, Matt. xiii. 7-12; xiv. 1-10; sanctified by his presence, John ii. 1-10; none in the resurrection-state, Matt. xxii. 30; Mark xiii. 25; Luke x. 28. The "marriage of the Lamb," Rev. xix. 7, is expressive of the union of Christ and his Church.

MAUS HILLS. See ABRACABAS.

MARYIA, [she becomes bitter,] the sister of Lazarus and Mary, Luke x. 38-42; John xi. 1-42; xvi. 2.

MARYR, properly means a witness, and is applied in the New Testament;—1. To judicial witnesses, Matt. xxiii. 10; xxvi. 65, &c. 2. To one who testifies by what he has seen, heard, or known, Luke xxiv. 48; Acts i. 8, 22; Rom. i. 9, &c. 3. And most rarely to one who by his death bears witness to the truth, which now is the most usual meaning of the word. In this sense we only find it in Acts xiii. 20; Heb. ii. 13; xvii. 7.

MARY, [exalted,] Six persons of this name are mentioned in the New Testament;—1. The mother of Jesus. She was the daugh- ter of Eli, of the royal family of David, Matt. i. 16; Luke i. 27; 11. 5. 2. The sister of Lazarus, Luke x. 39; John xi. 1, &c. 3. Mary Magdalene, a resident of Magdala, Luke viii. 2; John xiv. 25. Out of her Jesus cast seven demons. She is not that female sinner mentioned Luke vii. 37. 4. The wife of Cleopas, John xi. 25, and mother of James, Jude, Joseph, Simon, and Salome, called the brethren of our Lord; from which it has been thought that Cleopas, and Joseph, the husband of the virgin Mary were brothers. 5. The mother of Mark, Acts xii. 12. 6. A resident at Home, Rom. xvi. 6.

- MASTERS, their duty, Eph. vi. 1; Col. iv. 1; James v. 4; examples, Gen. xviii. 19; Matt. vii. 5-10; Luke vii. 2-10; Acts x. 2.
- MATATHA, [gift] son of Nathan, an ancestor of Jesus Christ, Luke iii. 31.
- MATTATHIAS, [the gift of the Lord] two persons of that name, ancestors of Jesus, Luke iii. 25, 26.
- MATTHAN, [the reins] son of Eleazar, father of Jacob, and grandfather of Joseph, the husband of the virgin Mary, Matt. i. 15, 16.
- MATTHAT, [gift, he that gives] son of Levi, and father of Heli, Luke iii. 24.
- MATTHEW, [given, a reward] also named Levi, an apostle and evangelist, son of Alphaeus, by birth a Galilean, and by profession a tax-gatherer, Mark ii. 14; Luke v. 27. His narrative was probably written both in Hebrew and Greek.
- The Book of Matthew was the first written of all the Gospels, and contains a full account of the birth, life, actions, death, and resurrection of Christ. The style is very plain and perspicuous. Probably written about A. D. 38-41, in Hebrew, and shortly after in Greek. About A. D. 154 a Greek copy was found in the East Indies, and in the year 483 another Greek copy was found at Cyprus, written on wood, and esteemed very ancient.
- MATTILIAS, [the gift of the Lord] one of the seventy disciples who was chosen by lot, in preference to Joseph Barsabas, into the number of the apostles, to supply the place of Judas Iscariot, Acts i. 23-26. Nothing is known of his subsequent career.
- MEASURING into the Bosom. The eastern garments being long and folded and girded with girdles, admitted of carrying much corn and fruits of that kind in the bosom. Luke vi. 28.
- MEDIATOR, Medites, occurs Gal. iii. 10, 20, applied to Moses. Jesus is called the One Mediator, viz. of the Christian Institution, 1 Tim. ii. 5, and the Mediator of a new and better covenant, Heb. vii. 6: ix. 15; xii. 24. It occurs 6 times. One that negotiates between two parties—God and man. Therefore, Jesus unites both in his own person. He mediates a new institution between God and man, and is Immanuel, God with us.
- MEEKNESS, that quiet temper of mind which is not soon provoked to anger, but suffers injuries without desire of revenge, and submits to the will of God, Col. iii. 12; and is ready to receive the truth, James i. 21; it is of unspeakable value, 1 Pet. iii. 4; shone conspicuously in Christ, 2 Cor. x. 1; Matt. xi. 29; Christians exhorted to it, Eph. iv. 2; 1 Tim. vi. 11; Titus iii. 2.
- MELCHIZEDEK, [king of righteousness] king of Salem, and a priest of the most high God, though not a Jew, and to him Abraham gave tithes, Gen. xiv. 18; Psa. cx. 4; Heb. vii. 1, 2. Of his nation, parentage, age, &c., nothing is recorded: hence he is said to be "without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life." He was an eminent type of Christ.
- MELITA, [offspring Aoney] an island in the Mediterranean Sea, now called Malta, between Africa and Sicily. It is about 10 miles long, and 12 broad. Here Paul was shipwrecked, Acts xxviii. 1.
- MERCURY, [to buy, or sell] one of the fabulous deities of the heathen, son of Jupiter and Maia, and messenger to the rest. He was worshipped as the patron of learning, eloquence, and trade. The fluency of Paul made the people of Lystra suppose Paul was Mercury, Acts xiv. 12.
- MERCY, an attribute of God, 2 Sam. xiv. 14; Isa. i. 18; Eph. ii. 4; Titus iii. 5; 1 Pet. i. 3; the duty of man, Luke vi. 36; x. 30-37; Rom. xii. 8; its reward, Psa. xxvii. 27; Matt. v. 7; Luke vi. 35; James ii. 13.
- MERCY-SEAT or PROFITTOAV, the covering of the ark, or the lid of the ark of the covenant, round which was the crown or border of gold, and on which the cherubim were represented as looking. Before this the high-priest stood to ask counsel of the Lord, and there he received blessings for the people. Christ is our mercy-seat, Rom. iii. 25, and by him we have access to the Father.
- MESOPOTAMIA, [between two rivers] the famous province between the Tigris and Euphrates, called in the Old Testament Padan-aram, Gen. xxviii. 2. It is much celebrated in Scripture as being the first dwelling of man, both before and after the Deluge. This country, according to Ptolemy, was very populous, and had 70 important cities. It is now called Diasbetar and Algeria.
- MESSIAH. See ANointed and CHRIST.
- MICAH, a prophet of the tribe of Judah, who lived in the latter days of Isaiah and Hosea, and in the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah. His prophecy is one of the most important in the Old Testament. He gives the name of the very city where the Messiah was to be born, in chap. v. 2, which is quoted in Matt. ii. 5, 6, as well as many important circumstances connected with his millennial kingdom and glory.
- MICHAEL, [who is God] the name given to one of the chief angels, who, in Dan. x. 13-21, is described as having special charge of the Israelites as a nation, Dan. xii. 1; Jude 9; Rev. xii. 7-9.
- MILE. The Roman mile, mentioned Matt. v. 41, was 1000 paces of 5 feet each, and reckoning each foot at 11.61 inches, the mile would be little more than 1614 yards, or 146 yards less than ours. It was equal to 8 Greek stadia.
- MILETUS, [red, scarlet] a seaport town of Asia Minor, 36 miles south of Ephesus. Mentioned Acts xx. 15-33.
- MILL. The mill for grinding corn had not wholly superseded the mortar for pounding it in the time of Moses. The mortar and the mill are named together in Num. xi. 5. Fine meal is mentioned as early as the time of Abraham, Gen. xviii. 6. The mill common among the Hebrews differed little from that which is in use to this day throughout Western Asia and Northern Africa. It consisted of two circular stones two feet in diameter and six inches thick. The upper side of the "nether millstone" was concave, and the lower side of the upper one convex. The lower stone was fixed, and the upper one was made to turn round upon it. The hole for receiving the grain was in the upper millstone, and which was moved by women, who sat opposite to each other. Matt. xxiv. 41.

MIND, put for the will, renewed, Rom. viii. 6, 7; unrenewed, Rom. i. 23; viii. 6, 7; Col. ii. 18; James i. 8.

MINISTER, Diakonos. See DZACON. One who acts as the less (from minus or minor) or inferior agent, in obedience or subservience to another, or who serves, officiates, &c., as distinguished from the master, magister, (from magis), or superior.

MINSTRELS, lute-players, and singers at funerals, Jer. ix. 17-21; Matt. ix. 23. The custom was borrowed by the Jews from the Greeks.

MIRACLE, that which is above the regular operation of the established laws of nature. Every institution of God began with miracles, or works beyond the power of natural law. The first man was an adult, and never an infant, as reason, experience, and revelation assert. The Jewish institution began in miracle. So did the Christian commence with a glorious display of miraculous powers. This was "the demonstration of the Spirit," and this "the power of God," on which the faith of Christians rests.

MIRROR. The oldest mirrors were made of metal. It was from such, contributed by the women, that the brazen laver was made, Exod. xxxviii. 8. The word in that place is improperly translated "looking-glasses." The art of making glass was then unknown. On the discovery of America, the Mexicans were found to possess mirrors made of black vitrified lava, highly polished. The North Americans were found with mirrors of copper and silver.

MILE or LERON, the smallest Jewish coin, equal to about two mills, or one-fifth of a cent. Luke xii. 69.

MITYLENE, [purity], the capital of Lesbos, an island of the Grecian Archipelago, N. W. of Smyrna. It is now called Castro, and sometimes Metilin, Acts x. 14.

MNASON, [a diligent seeker], mentioned Acts xxi. 10.

MODERATION enjoined, 1 Cor. vii. 20, 31; Phil. iv. 5.

MODESTY recommended, Eph. v. 3, 4; 1 Tim. ii. 9.

MONEY, in ancient times was dealt out by weight, and still is in Turkey, Syria, Egypt, China, Birmah, &c.; coins being generally weighed by the merchant. The coin mentioned Matt. xvii. 27 was probably a shekel, or half an ounce of silver, in value, about 60 cents. A pound was equal to 60 shekels. A penney or didrachma, one-fourth of a shekel, &c.

MONEY-CHANGERS, were persons who at a certain rate of profit, exchanged foreign coins, especially Roman, for those current among the Jews, Matt. xxi. 12; John ii. 14, 15. These money-changers would, of course, charge a commission upon all their transactions, and who from our Savior's words it may be inferred were not distinguished for honesty and fair dealing—"It is written, my house shall be called the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves," ver. 13.

MONTH, a space of time, which, if measured by the moon, (whence its name,) is called lunar; and if by the sun, is called solar. The Hebrew months commonly answer to two or four months, and take part of both. The following table shows the earliest beginning of each sacred month, according to Thurman's Astronomical Chronology:—

Name of Month.	Beginning	Days.
Abib—Exod. xiii. 4.	1mo.	March 22nd. 31
Zif—1 Kings vi. 1.	2mo.	April 21st. 30
Sivan—Ester viii. 9.	3mo.	May 20th. 31
Tammuz—Esek. viii. 14.	4mo.	June 19th. 30
Ab.	5mo.	July 18th. 31
Elul—Nehemiah vi. 15.	6mo.	August 17th. 31
Ethanim—1 Kings viii. 2.	7mo.	September 15th. 30
Bul—1 Kings vi. 38.	8mo.	October 15th. 31
Chisleu—Zech. vii. 1.	9mo.	November 13th. 30
Tebeth—Ester ii 10.	10mo.	December 13th. 31
Sebat—Zechariah i. 7.	11mo.	January 11th. 31
Adar—Ester iii. 7.	12mo.	February 10th. 28
Nisan—Ester iii. 7.	1mo.	March 11th. 31

Michaëls, however, has given some very good reasons to show that the first, "the month of ears," or Nisan, did not begin before the new moon of our April, which would, of course, fix the commencement of all the other months one whole month later than is commonly done.

MOON, a secondary planet, always attendant on our earth. The moon was formed to give light in and to rule the night, and to distinguish times and seasons, Gen. i. 14. "Numbering by months or moons is appropriate to the works of darkness; because the moon is the governess of night; numbering by the course of the sun, is appropriate to the works of righteousness, and this is in correspondence with the use of those symbols in the Apocalypse. The continuance of the feast, and the preparation of the holy city by the Gentiles, are reckoned by weeks; but the prophecy of the Witnesses by days: the phrase of the woman in the wilderness by days, and by time, times, and half a time; three solar years and a half."

MOSER, (drawn out of the water) the nephew of Israel, brought to the side of Levi, and was the son of Amram and Juched, Exod. vi. 29. He was the writer of the Pentateuch. After leading forth the Israelites from Egypt, and through the desert forty years, and conducting them to the borders of the promised land, he died at the age of 130 years in the full vigor of both mind and body. He was the most wonderful and imposing character of the Old Testament, and was well fitted to personate the great Prophet of the New.

MOTHER, the female parent. Being "without father and without mother," Heb. vii. 3, means that the parents of Melchizedek were not entered in the genealogies which the Jews so sedulously kept. The law of Moses required no less reverence for the mother than the father; and thus shone out in beautiful superiority of other Eastern systems, in which women stand degraded. Mother is applied metaphorically to a variety of objects, such as the earth; queens as protectors; to a prophetess; to metropolitan cities; to the church of God; and to antichrist.

MOUNTAIN, The principal mountains mentioned in Scripture, are Seir, Horeb, Sinai, Hor, Gilboa, Nebo, Tabor, Engedi, Lebanon, Ebal, Amalek, Gerizim, Gilead, Moriah, Paran, Gahash, Olivet, Pisgab, Hermon, and Carmel. A mountain is the symbol of a kingdom, or of a capital city with its domains, or of a king, which is the same. See Isa. xxx. 7; Isa. li. 2; xl. 9; Jer. iii. 23; ii. 25; Zech. iv. 7; Rev. vi. 14; xvi. 20. "Flee to the mountains," Luke xxi. 23. The mountains of Palestine have many caves, affording a safe retreat from enemies.

Many of the noble Jews departed out of the city, and vast numbers fled to the mountains; and ancient writers tell us, that at that juncture, all who believed in Christ left Jerusalem, and removed to places beyond; and so escaped the general ravages of their country, that not one is stated to have perished in that devoted city.

MOURNING for sin, the evidence of repentance, Ps. 22: vii. 9; ii. 31; Matt. v. 4; I Cor. v. 3; James iv. 9; for the dead, law concerning, Deut. xiv. 1; instances of, Gen. 1. 3; Matt. ix. 23.

MOUTH, as the organ of speech, signifies the words which proceed out of it, which in the sacred style, are the same as commands and actions. "According to the commandment of Pharaoh," Gen. xiv. 17, is in the original, according to the mouth of Pharaoh's hand, for a person or thing coming out of the mouth of another is to be considered as emanated from another agent in nature under a superior power; thus is frequent in the Apocrypha. The Hebrew mouth is not only applied to a speech or action, but also to the speaker, Exod. 17. 16; Deut. 28. 12, in which sense it has a near equivalent in our expression "mouth-piece."

3) MURDER forbidden, Exod. 21. 12; Deut. v. 17; laws respecting it, Gen. 9. 6; Lev. 24. 17; Exodus 21. 12; 2 Sam. 1. 11; 1 Chr. 15. 12.

3) MURDERERS mentioned, I Cor. 5. 10; Thim. 1. 10; Jude 11; instances among the Apostles, Exod. 9. 12; 1 Chr. 11. 27; Ps. 24. 1; 2 Sam. 1. 1; 1 Chr. 1. 2; 2 Chr. 4. 1; 1 Chr. 7.

MUSTARD TREE, or Mustard, probably a tree found near Jerusalem, but most abundantly on the banks of the Jordan, and round the sea of Tiberias, the seed of which was compared as a substitute for mustard. Indeed, the genuine Arabic name for this shrub, which signifies mustard. Its berries, or seed, are much smaller than a grain of black pepper, having a strong aromatic smell, and a taste much like that of green onions. Its historic name is Trichostema Persicum. Matt. xiii. 31.

3) MYRRA, a favorite perfume, a gum obtained from the myrrh tree, John xiv. 29.

MYRIA, (Myria), a province occupying the S. W. angle of Asia Minor, south of Syria. Acts xvi. 7, 8.

MYSTERY, Mysterion, secret, hidden meaning, occurs 26 times. The secrets of the Kingdom of God so called, Matt. xiii. 35; Mark iv. 11; Luke viii. 10. The calling of the Gentiles is called a mystery, Col. i. 26, 27. The first and leading sense of mysterion is arcanum, a secret, anything not disclosed, not published to the world, though perhaps communicated to a select number. And the other meaning is so nearly allied to it that it may properly be reckoned only a particular application of the same meaning. The word is sometimes employed to denote the figurative sense, as distinguished from the literal, which is conveyed under any table, parable, allegory, or symbolical action, representation, dream, or vision. The word is, as it were, open to the senses; the other requires penetration and reflection.

3) MYRISTICUM, (Myristicum) mentioned Luke 12. 24.

NAIN, (Nain) a town of Palestine, situated about 5 miles S. E. of Nazareth. Luke vi. 11-16.

NAKED. This word is often used in a modified sense, to describe a person only partly clothed. Micah i. 8; John xxi. 7. All orientals wear a mere cloth round their hips, when at labor, and are then called "naked." It is from not knowing this that some have supposed that persons were formerly baptized in a state of literal nakedness; whereas they only laid aside the loose outer garment. The word is used figuratively, in various senses.

NAME, when applied to God, often means his nature and attributes, that is, God himself. Ps. xx. 1; Prov. xviii. 10. His name to be revered, Exod. xx. 7; Lev. xix. 12; Ps. cxi. 9; Matt. vi. 9; also the name of Jesus, Phil. ii. 10; Christians baptized in the name of Jesus, Matt. xxviii. 19; Acts ii. 38; xix. 5; Rom. vi. 8; Gal. iii. 27; prayer to be offered to Jehovah in his name, John xvi. 23.

NAPHTALI, (Naphtali, Naphtali) the sixth son of Jacob, and his second by Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid, born B. C. 1747, in Padan-aram. The limits of the territory of the tribe of Naphtali are described in Josh. xix. 31-39. Alluded to Matt. iv. 13-16.

NARCISUS, (Narcissus) a Christian at Rome, calumniated by Paul, 1 Tim. xvi. 11.

NATHAN, (Nathan) the son of David and Bethsheba, the father of Mattathias, Luke iii. 31. Also, a prophet in the time of David, 2 Sam. vii. 3, &c.

NATHANIEL, (Nathaniel, Nathaniel) honorably mentioned, John i. 45-51. Probably the same as Bartholomew, one of the twelve apostles.

NAZARENE, (Nazarene, Nazarene) an epithet constituting a part of one of the names given to our Lord. It was a contemptuous designation and a term of reproach, and as such, as well as a mere epithet of description, it is used in the New Testament.

NAZARETH, (Nazareth, Nazareth) a small city in the tribe of Zebulun, in Lower Galilee, about 70 miles north of Jerusalem, and 6 W. N. W. from Mount Tabor, situated on a hill, and overlooking a superb and spacious valley. It is now called Nessara. Here Jesus dwelt from his childhood up, for nearly 30 years. Luke ii. 51; iv. 16-19.

NAZARITE, (Nazarite) a Jew who made a vow to observe uncommon devotion, either for a given period or for life, Num. vi. 1-21.

NEAPOLIS, (Neapolis) a maritime city of Macedonia, near the borders of Thrace, now called Napoli. Acts xvi. 11.

NEW TESTAMENT, or NEW COVENANT. See COVENANT.

NICHOLAS, (Nicholas, Nicholas) a proselyte of Antioch, and one of the seven deacons, Acts vi. 5.

NICODEMUS, (Nicodemus, Nicodemus) a Pharisee and member of the Sanhedrim, who came to Jesus by night, to make inquiry into the truth of the report he had heard concerning him. John iii; further mentioned, John vii. 50; xix. 39.

NICOLAITANS, (Nicolaitans, Nicolaitans) This word only occurs twice, Rev. ii. 6, 15, and it is not known from whom the name is derived, Irenaeus, the earliest Christian author who mentions them, says simply, "It very clearly appears from the Apocalypse, that the Nicolaitans held fornication, and the eating of idol-sacrifices, to be things indifferent, and therefore permitted to Christians." Their practices were not only opposed to the whole spirit and morality of the Gospel, but a violation of an express decree of the Apostles and Elders, Acts xv.

NICOPOLIS, (Nicopolis ad ripam), a city of Thracia, now Nicopol, on the river Nessus, now Karmon, which was here the boundary between Thrace and Macedonia, Titus iii 12.

NIGER, (Nigellus), the surname of Simon, one of the teachers in the church at Antioch, Acts xiii 1.

NIGHT, the time between evening and morning, and is a symbol of ignorance, Rom. xiii 12; death, John ix 4; and the season in which anything comes suddenly and unexpectedly upon us, 1 Thess. v 2; Isa. lv 1. Luke xii 20.

NINEVEH, the capital of Assyria, founded by Ashur, the son of Shem, Gen. x 11, and became one of the largest cities of the world. It was situated on the banks of the Tigris. In the 7th year of the reign of Josiah, B. C. 675, it was utterly overthrown by the Medes. Matt. xii 41.

NINEVITES, the inhabitants of Nineveh, Luke xi 30.

NOAH (Nephes), the second father of the human race, was the son of Lamech, the grandson of Methuselah, and the tenth from Adam, born A. M. 1050. Amidst the general corruption of the human race, he alone was found righteous, Gen. ix 9, and was saved with his family in the ark, when the rest of mankind were destroyed, Gen. v 28-31; vi-ix, honorably mentioned, Ezek. xiv 14 20; Heb. xi 7.

NUMBERS, Two—a few, Isa. vii 21; 1 Kings xvii 12. Three—a few. Greatness, excellency, and perfection. Four—Universality of the matters comprised therein. The four corners of the earth denote all parts of it, Jer. xlii 22. Seven—a large and complete, but uncertain and indefinite number. In its Hebrew etymology it signifies fulness and perfection. Ten—Many, as well as that precise number, Gen. xiii 7 41.

OATH, a solemn affirmation, accompanied by an appeal to Jehovah in attestation of the truth of what is said. An oath should never be taken but in matters of importance, nor sworn by the name of any but the true God, as it is an act of solemn worship; nor irreverently, without godly fear and awe of the Most High, Josh. xxii 7; James v 12, Dent. vi 13, Matt. v 34 35. Jer. v 7. Indeed it is held by some that oaths ought not to be taken at all. Justin, Irenæus, Basil, Chrysostom, Augustine, &c., held oaths to be unchristian.

OBEDIENCE, must be complete, James ii 10 11; better than sacrifice, 1 Sam. xv 22; Psal. i 8 13; Il. 19; Isa. i 11-13. Matt. ix 13; xii 7.

OFFEND, OFFENCE. Terms which respect all kinds of transgressions of the laws of God. The original words, which are used metaphorically allude to a stone or stumbling-block in a person's way, by which he sustains serious injury, and is retarded in his progress to a desirable object. See Matt. v. 20 29; xvi. 23, xviii. 6, 7; Rom. xiv. 13, &c. When the Lord Jesus is denominated "a stone of stumbling, a rock of offence," the effect is evidently put for the cause, 1 Pet. ii. 8; Matt. xxi. 44. Offences not to be given, 1 Cor. viii. 9; ix. 16-27, x. 32, 33; how to be taken, Matt. xvii. 12-19.

OFFERINGS, properly presents, and obviously solemn in the religious ritual to all things solemnly brought to the sacred tent or temple to be devoted to Jehovah. According to ability, 1 Chron. xxi. 13-17; Ezra ii. 68, 69; Mark xii. 43, 44; 2 Cor. viii. 12; 1 Tim. vi. 17-19. Under the law, they were either obligatory, as the sin-offering, the trespass-offering, the burnt-offering, the meat-offering; or were voluntary, as free-will or peace-offerings of animals or fruits.

OIL, obtained from olives, such as we now call sweet oil, was abundant in Palestine, and at present is generally used throughout Western Asia. It is thought by Orientals to be more agreeable at meals than butter and animal fat; and Europeans soon acquire the same preference. The Hebrews used olive oil in their meat-offerings, in their sacred lamps, and in their common use. Oil for the use of the sanctuary, mentioned Exod. xxvii. 20; Lev. xxiv. 1-4; anointing, Exod. xxx. 22-25; xxxvii. 29. See LAMPS.

OINTMENT, oil perfumed, used to anoint the head, &c., Psal. cxxxiii. 2; Eccl. i. 6; Isa. i. 6.

OLD AGE, to be respected, Lev. xix. 32; 1 Tim. v. 1, 2; what renders it venerable, Prov. xvi. 31; xx. 29; the infirmities of it, Eccl. xii; the duty required of it, Titus ii. 7, 8.

OLIVE-TREE, a tree very common in Palestine. It has spreading branches like an apple tree, and remains green in the winter. It flourishes about 200 years. There are two kinds, the wild and the cultivated. The fruit which is about the size of a small plum, is very wholesome and nourishing, and is the chief resource of the orientals for oil. It ripens from August to September. The olive tree, remarkable for its verdure, soundness, and useful oil, is the symbol of the most illustrious and useful men. Moses and Aaron were two olive-trees. So were Zerubbabel and Joshua, Isa. li. 5; Jer. xi. 10. It is also an emblem of peace and mercy. The dove carried an olive-branch to Noah in the ark; and the original word, olama, mercy, is derived from oleis, an olive.

OLIVET, or MOUNT OF OLIVES, a mountain or ridge lying to the east of Jerusalem, some 625 paces, from which it is separated by the valley of Jehoshaphat and the brook Kedron. From its summit there is a fine view of Jerusalem, and of the Dead Sea. Our Saviour often withdrew with his disciples to this mountain, and here he beheld the city, and wept over its approaching destruction; and from this spot he ascended to heaven in the presence of his apostles. Luke xii. 41-44; xxv. 30, 31.

OLYMPIC GAMES, allusions to them, 1 Cor. ix. 24-27; Phil. iii. 12-14; 1 Tim. vi. 12; 2 Tim. ii. 5; iv. 7, 8; Heb. xii. 1-2.

OMEGA, the last letter of the Greek alphabet, proverbially applied to express the end. See ALPHA.

ONESIMUS, [profitable, useful], mentioned Col. iv. 9; Philimon 10-21.

ONESIPHORUS, [profit-destroyer], a Christian highly commended by Paul, for his benevolence toward him while he was a prisoner at Rome, 2 Tim. i. 16, 17.

ONYX. See PEARLS AND STONES.

ORACLE, something delivered by supernatural wisdom. The "most holy or

- in the temple, was called the oracle, because there the priest inquired of God, 1 Kings vi. 4-10. The Scriptures, called the oracles of God, Acts vii. 38; Rom. iii. 2; Heb. v. 12; 1 Pet. iv. 11; and Christians are required to consult them at all times, and especially in matters of difficulty, and of great importance.
- ORDAIN, horizo, to limit, to bound, to mark out, hence the word horizon which bounds our view. Occurs 8 times. Pro-ordizo, to foreordain, or previously mark out, occurs 6 times. Aphorizo, another compound from the same root, occurs 10 times, translated separate or separated. We have the word ordain often in the common version, when it is not horizo in the original; such as to ordain apostles, elders, and to institute observances. For this word we have poieo, to make or appoint; and we have kathistemi, to constitute. Poieo occurs Mark iii. 14, "Jesus ordained twelve," i. e. appointed. Kathistemi occurs Titus i. 4, "Ordain elders," i. e. appoint. Ginomai is also used to make or ordain an apostle, Acts i. 22.
- ORDINANCE, an appointed rite or observance. No religious rite is binding, or even admissible, which is not of divine institution; nor can any so instituted be varied or modified by human caprice or judgment.
- OSTENTATION, to be avoided, Prov. xxv. 14; xxvii. 2; Matt. vi. 1.
- OUTER, external. "Outer darkness" means the darkness of the night without, in opposition to the light and splendor of the feast within. Hence the phrase is also used to express the state of exclusion from the kingdom of God, Matt. xviii. 12.
- OX, laws concerning it, Exod. xxi. 28-36; xxii. 4; Deut. xxi. 1; xxv. 4; quoted by Paul, 1 Cor. ix. 9.
- OZIAS, [strength from the Lord,] son of Joram, Matt. i. 8.
- PADAN-ARAM, [of the field of Syria,] rendered by the Seventy, Mesopotamia. See MESOPOTAMIA.
- PALM-TREE, produces dates, Exod. xv. 27; Deut. xxxiv. 3; Judges i. 10; its branches an emblem of joy, Lev. xxiii. 40; John xii. 13; Rev. vii. 9. It is said that the bark, leaves, fruit, &c. of the palm-tree are employed by the Arabs for 360 uses.
- PALSY, from paralysis, (luncheon, enfeeble,) is a disease which deprives the body in whole, or part, of action and feeling. Matt. iv. 24; viii. 16; ix. 2; Mark ii. 3, 5, 10.
- PAMPHYLIA, [a nation made up of every tribe,] a province in the southern part of Asia Minor, having the Mediterranean on the south, Cilicia on the east, Pisidia on the north, and Lycia on the west. Mentioned Acts xiii. 13; xiv. 24.
- PAPHOS, [which boils,] a city of Cyprus, at the western extremity of the island. Here Paul performed a miracle on Elymas, who opposed his teaching, and endeavored to turn the Roman governor from the faith, Acts xiii. 6-13.
- PARABLE. The word parable is derived from parabolos, which comes from parabolos, to compare, to collate. 1. It denotes an obscure or enigmatical saying, Psal. xlii. 4. 2. It denotes a fictitious narrative, invented for the purpose of conveying truth in a less offensive or more engaging manner than that of direct assertion, 2 Sam. xii. 2, 3; Judges ix. 7-15; 2 Kings xiv. 9, 10. 3. Any discourse expressed in figurative, poetical, or highly ornamented diction is called a parable, Num. xxiii. 7;
- Job xxvii. 1. New Testament parables seem to be generally employed in the second sense mentioned above, viz. to denote a fictitious narrative, under which is veiled some important truth. In some places, as Heb. ix. 9, it bears the meaning of type or emblem.
- PARADISE, a term which by long and extensive use has been employed to designate the Garden of Eden. This has been caused by the Greek translators of the Pentateuch having adopted it. The word paradeisos is not properly either Greek or Hebrew, but appears to have been imported from a more eastern tongue, probably the Persian, and which signified the same as the Hebrew gan. In Gesenius and Robinson's Heb. Lex. it is defined thus: "A paradeis, i. e. an orchard, an arboratum, particularly of pomegranates, a park, a fruit garden; a name common to several Oriental languages, and especially current among the Persians, as we learn from Xenophon and Julius Pollux. Saucrit, pardeesha; Armenian, pardees; Arabic, ardaus; Syriac, ardaus; Chaldees of the Targums, pardees." Josephus calls the gardens of Solomon, paradeses, and Berossus, quoted by Josephus when he tells the lofty gardens erected by Nebuchadnezzar, were called the Suspended Paradise. There are only three places where the word is found in the New Testament, Luke xxiii. 43; 2 Cor. xii. 4; Rev. ii. 7; but which may be illustrated by reference to the primeval term, Isa. li. 2; Ezek. xxxviii. 13; xxxi. 9, 10, 18; xxvi. 85; Joel ii. 3.
- PARCHMENT, prepared sheep skin, and formerly much used for writing on, mentioned 2 Tim. iv. 13.
- PARENTS, to be honored, Exod. xx. 12; Deut. v. 16; Eph. vi. 2; their duty to their children, Gen. xviii. 10; Deut. iv. 9; vi. 2, 7; vi. 17; Matt. xxii. 18; 2 Cor. xii. 14; Eph. vi. 4; Col. iii. 20; 1 Tim. v. 8.
- PARMENAS, [that abides,] one of the seven deacons, Acts vi. 5.
- PARTHIANS, [Parthians,] called Persians or Elymians in the time of the prophets, and Parthians about the time of Christ, Acts ii. 9.
- PARTIALITY, unfair and unjust treatment of others, to be avoided, Matt. xxii. 16; James ii. 1, 9; Jude 16.
- PASSOVER, so called because instituted in remembrance of the destroying angel passing over the houses sprinkled with the blood of the paschal lamb, Exod. xii. 11, 12, &c. This was kept on the 14th day of Nisan or Abib. Sometimes it denotes the yearly festivity, called the Feast of the Passover, (Deut. xvi. 3; Num. xlviii. 16, 17;) celebrated on the 15th of Nisan; and sometimes the whole solemnity, commencing on the 14th and ending on the 21st of Nisan, Luke xxii. 1; though, strictly, the Passover and the feast of unleavened bread, (or unfermented things, more properly,) are distinct institutions. Christ called our Passover, or Paschal lamb, 1 Cor. v. 7. To be fulfilled in the kingdom of God, Luke xxii. 16.
- PATARA, [trod under foot,] a seaport of Asia Minor, in Lycia, 160 miles S. E. of Ephesus, Acts xxi. 1.
- PATIENCE, recommended, Luke xxi. 19; Rom. xii. 12; 1 Thes. v. 14; Heb. x. 36; xii. Ja. i. 3, 4, v. 7; 1 Pet. i. 19, 20; 2 Pet. i. 4.
- PATMOS, [mortal,] an island in the Ægean Sea, 16 miles S. W. of Samos, to which the apostle John was banished, Rev. i. 9. It is a small, oblong and rocky island, about 15 miles in circumference, and used, under the Roman empire, as a place of banishment.

PATRIARCH, a venerable man, with a large posterity. The word is chiefly applied to those who lived before the time of Moses, Acts vii. 8; and hence we speak of the patriarchal age. Heb. vii. 4.

PATROBAS, [paternal,] mentioned Rom. xvi. 14, 15.

PAUL, [a worker,] was a native of Tarsus, a city of Cilicia, Acts xiii. 2, and was of Jewish descent, of the tribe of Benjamin, Phil. iii. 5, and probably inherited the right of Roman citizenship from his father, through services rendered to the Roman state. He was first a persecutor, then a disciple of Christ, and commissioned by the Lord Jesus as an apostle to the Gentiles. Acts xxvi. 15—18. After a life of arduous labor and suffering for the name of Jesus, Paul was beheaded by Nero, at or near Rome, about A. D. 66. Fourteen of the books of the New Testament are attributed to his pen, and they certainly evince his sound judgment and scholastic attainments.

PEACE, to be cultivated, Psa. xxxiv. 14; Matt. v. 9; Mark ix. 30; Rom. xii. 18, &c.; by what means, Col. iii. 13; 1 Thess. iv. 11; the gift of Jesus to his disciples, John xiv. 27; Phil. iv. 7; James iii. 17, 18.

PEARL, a hard, white, shining substance, found in some shell-fishes. They are repeatedly mentioned in the New Testament, and appear to have been esteemed of great value. Matt. xiii. 45, 46; 1 Tim. ii. 9; Rev. xii. 4; xviii. 12—16; xxi. 12.

PENTECOST, the name (signifying fiftieth) given in the New Testament to the Feast of Weeks, or Ingathering, which was celebrated on the fiftieth day from the Passover, or seven weeks from the 16th of Nisan. Lev. xxiii. 9—21; Deut. xvi. 9; Acts ii. 1; xx. 16.

PERFECT, complete, without blemish or defect. Perfection applied to God, Matt. v. 48; to his law, Psa. xli. 7; to be aimed at by Christians, Luke vi. 35; 2 Cor. xiii. 9, 11; Eph. v. 1—3; Col. iv. 12; 1 Thess. iii. 10, &c.; will be perfect to the future of it, Eph. iv. 13; Col. i. 28; Heb. xii. 23; Christ prayed for this, John xvii.

PERGA, [very earthy,] a town of Asia Minor, capital of Phrygia, 60 miles S. W. of Iconium, Acts xiii. 14; xiv. 23.

PERGAMOS, [heights,] now Bergama, a city of Asia Minor, in Mysia, on the Calcas, 50 miles north of Smyrna. It was once a large city, the capital of a kingdom, and had a library of 200,000 volumes; also a famed temple to Esculapius. In Pergamos was one of the "seven congregations of Asia," to which the Apocalypse is addressed.

PERSECUTION, how to behave under it, Matt. v. 44; 1 Cor. xii. 14; 1 Pet. iv. 10; the blessings connected with it, Matt. v. 10; 24. 23; Mark vii. 35; Luke ix. 24; 1 Pet. iv. 14; James i. 27; Rev. vi. 9; vii. 13.

PERSEVERANCE in duty, enjoined, Matt. xxiv. 13; Luke ix. 63; Acts xiii. 43; 1 Cor. xv. 58, &c.; the glorious result, John x. 29, 37; Rom. ii. 7; Heb. ii. 10, 20, 30.

PERSIS, [that rate,] mentioned Rom. xvi. 12.

PESTILENCE, a name given in Scripture to any prevailing contagious disease.

PETER, [a rock, or stone,] was one of the twelve apostles, a native of Bethsaida, in Galilee, and was a son of Jonas, and brother of Andrew. His first name was Simon, but when the Savior called him to the apostleship, he changed it to Cephas, John i. 42, 43. He was crucified about A. D. 70, with his head downward.

EPISTLES. These were addressed to converted Jews in the province near the southern shore of the Black Sea, 1 Pet. i. 1. The first was written four or five years before the other. The second was especially intended to guard against false teachers, and scoffers. There have been many doubts expressed as to the genuineness of the second epistle than of any other book of the New Testament. It was not generally received or acknowledged as belonging to the sacred canon till the fourth century.

PHARISEES, [separatists,] a famous sect of the Jews, who distinguished themselves by their zeal for the tradition of the elders, which they pretended was delivered to Moses from Mount Sinai, and therefore of equal authority with the law. From their rigorous observance of these traditions, they looked upon themselves as more holy than other men; and, therefore, separated themselves from those whom they thought sinners or profane, so as not to eat or drink with them. Hence arose their name.

PHENICIA, [land of palm trees,] a country in the north of Palestine, on the Mediterranean, containing the cities of Tyre and Sidon.

PHILADELPHIA, [love of a brother,] a city of Asia Minor, and one of the seven containing the Christian congregations to which the Apocalyptic admonitions were addressed. Situated in Lydia, on the Hermus, 65 miles east of Smyrna; and is now called Allah Shehr. "city of God," i. e. High-town. It was once a large city, but now contains only about 3000 houses.

PHILEMON, [that kisses,] a friend of the apostle Paul's, and an eminent Christian, residing at Colosse, whose servant, named Onesimus, absconded and fled to Rome. There he was converted and sent back to his master with a letter from Paul, called

The Epistle to Philemon, written about A. D. 61, and was sent, together with Epistles to the Ephesians and Colossians, by Tycheus and Onesimus. Paley, in his Scripturalia, has brought many unanswerable proofs of the authenticity of the Scripture from the unostensible coincidences between this Epistle, that to the Colossians, and the Acts of Apostles. This Epistle has been universally admired as a model of graceful, delicate, and manly writing.

PHILETUS, [comrade,] an apostate Christian, mentioned by Paul, in connection with Hymeneus, 2 Tim. ii. 17.

PHILIP, [warlike,] one of the twelve apostles; a native of Bethsaida in Galilee, John i. 45, 46; Luke vi. 14.

— one of the seven first deacons, Acts vi. 5; also called an Evangelist, Acts xxi. 8. — son of Herod the steward, by Cleopatra, and tetrarch of Batanea, Trachonitis, and Auranitis, Luke ix. 1, and from him Cesaræa Philippi received its name, Matt. xvi. 13.

— another son of Herod, by his wife Mariamne, and called by Josephus, Herod, the first husband of Herodias, Matt. xiv. 3.

- city, but now a ruin village. Many ruins still exist, which are witnesses to its former greatness.
- PHILIPPIANS, Epistle to the. Written by Paul from Rome during his two years' imprisonment, and bears in every part the impress of his peculiar style, manner of thought, and form of doctrine. The church had been planted by Paul, and of all the churches, they seem to have loved him the most, and to have been the most generous his support. He wrote to thank them for their bounty, and to teach them. This is the only Epistle of Paul which expresses no censure.
- PHILOLOGUE, (a lover of learning), mentioned Rom. xvi. 12.
- PHILEGON, (rebel), mentioned Rom. vii. 14.
- PHRYGIA, (ἡ φρυγία), a country in the south of Asia Minor, Acts xvi. 6; 2 Tim. vi. 10.
- PHYSCULLA, (positive), a Christian who followed Paul in his ministry, and mentioned in connection with Hermogenes, 2 Tim. i. 15.
- PHYLACTERIES, (seguards), strips or folios parchment, inscribed with passages of the law, fastened on the forehead, wrist or horn of the garment, from a mistaken interpretation of Exod. xxxi. 18; Num. xv. 37-40. See also Matt. xxiii. 5. Our Lord condemns not the wearing of them, but the pride and hypocrisy of the Pharisees in making them broad and visible, to obtain respect and reputation for wisdom and piety.
- PILATE, (his name is named with a dark). Pontius Pilate was the sixth Roman Procurator of Judæa, under whom our Lord suffered, and died, Acts (ii. 23; 16. 27; xiii. 28); 1 Tim. vi. 13. Both Lucius and Josephus corroborate the New Testament accounts concerning him.
- PILLAR, a column, a supporter, a monument. "The pillars of the earth," and "pillars of heaven," are metaphorical expressions, by which the word is compared to a solid edifice, reared by his power and skill of Jehovah. Job li. 9; xxvi. 11; xxviii. 4, 6; Ps. lxxv. 3. James was a pillar in the church; that is, a good support and ornament; and the church itself is the "pillar and ground of the truth;" that is, it maintains truth in the world. 1 Tim. iii. 15.
- PINDIA, (πίδια), a country of Asia Minor, west of Mount Taurus, S. W. of Lycania, and north of Pamphylia. Its present name is Natalia.
- PLow, an instrument of tillage. To plow and look back, Luke ix. 62, is to mangle bad work, if indeed one could thus work at all, especially with the imperfect plows used in the time of Christ. Christians, therefore, must not look back on the world with pleasure and desire, but give all heed to the important work and reward which lies before them. 1 Cor. ix. 10.
- POLYXAMY, (many against), Gen. ii. 24; Matt. xix. 4-6; Mark x. 6-9; Rom. vii. 5; 1 Cor. vii. 2.
- PONTUS, (ἡ πόντος), a country comprehending the N. E. part of Asia Minor, and bordering on the Euxine Sea.
- PRIMA, mentioned John 5. 1-7; 16. 7.
- PRÆTORIUM, (is house of park). Prætorius Prætorius succeeded Felix in the government of Judæa, Acts xxiv. 27.
- POTTER, one who makes earthenware; a term of the sovereignty of God, Jer. xlviii. 7; Rom. ix. 21; the breaking of his vessels an emblem of destruction, Jer. xix. 1, 11; Rev. ii. 27.
- POTTER'S-FIELD. See ACEDAMA.
- PRAISE, to commend. To praise God is to duly acknowledge his great excellences. Ps. cxxxviii; Rev. xix. 6. It is one of the noblest acts of worship, and is the dictate of nature. Acts xv. 26; 1 Cor. xv. 15; Eph. v. 19; Col. iii. 16, &c. Praise of men, no proper principle of action, Matt. vi. 1; Gal. v. 26; Phil. ii. 3.
- PRAYER, the obligation and use of it, Matt. v. 44; vi. 6; vii. 7; Luke xviii. 1; Phil. iv. 6; Col. iv. 2; 1 Tim. ii. 1, &c.; to be offered in faith, Matt. xxi. 22; Heb. xi. 6; without ostentation and vain repetitions, Luke xviii. 1-14; Matt. vi. 7; in the name of Jesus, John xiv. 13; xv. 16; xvi. 23; Eph. v. 20, &c.; instances of private prayer, Dan. vi. 10; Matt. xiv. 23; Acts ix. 11; x. 9; secret, Acts i. 14; ii. 42; xii. 12; xvi. 13, 16; xxi. 6; forms of prayer, Num. vi. 22-27; x. 35, 36; Deut. xxi. 8; xxvi. 1, Matt. vi. 9-13.
- PREACH, or ΠΡΟΚΛΗΣΗ, is loudly to make known the will of God, as his appointed herald, Eph. iii. 8. Κερασσο, from κερας, a horn, or public crier, is found 61 times, and always indicates to make proclamation as a herald.
- PRETORIUM. This word denotes the general's tent in the field, and also the house or palace of the governor of a province, whether a pretor or not. It is applied to Herod's palace at Jerusalem, Matt. xxvii. 27; Mark xv. 16; John xviii. 28, 29; xix. 9; also to the one he built at Cesarea, Acts xlii. 35. In Phil. i. 13, the word denotes the camp or quarters of the Pretorian cohort at Rome.
- PRIEST, a man who officiated or transacted with God on behalf others, stately, or for the occasion. Those under the law were of the family of Aaron, Exod. xxviii. 1; under the Christian economy, all disciples are a holy and royal priesthood, 1 Pet. ii. 5, 9; Rev. i. 6; v. 10; x. 6.
- HIGH, first Aaron, afterwards the eldest son of the eldest brother of his family, Exod. xxviii; Jesus Christ, the High-priest, Heb. ix. 11; Heb. vi. 20; v. 5, 21; vi. 20; vii. 2, 23, 28.
- PRINCE, a chief, a governor. Christ is the "Prince of peace," Isa. ix. 6; Eph. ii. 15; John xiv. 27; "Prince of life," Acts iii. 15; "Prince of the kings of the earth," Rev. i. 5. These titles peculiarly belong to him, because he is the "resurrection and the life," and has the "keys of death and hades," and will raise up the believer at the last day; then in his kingly and priestly office, "he will speak peace to the heathen," and "make wars to cease to the ends of the earth," and "peace shall flow as a river;" then "all kings shall fall down before him; all nations shall serve him."
- PRISCILLA, (ἡ πρίσκιλλα), wife of Aquila, and probably like Phoebe, a deaconess. She shared the travels, labors, and dangers of her husband, and is always named along with him, Rom. xvi. 3; 1 Cor. xvi. 19; 2 Tim. iv. 19.
- PROCHORUS, (ἡ προχόρος), (he who presides over the choir), one of the deacons mentioned Acts vi. 5.
- PROCONSUL, a Roman officer appointed to the government of a province with consular authority. When the apostle Paul was at Corinth he was brought before Gallio, the proconsul of Achaia, Acts xviii. 13-16.
- PROMISES of God, many and various, and succeeding great and precious, 1 Pet. i. 4; are sure in Christ Jesus, 1 Cor. i. 20; are Incentives to purity, 2 Cor. vii. 1; are for the present and future life, 1 Tim. iv. 8.

PROPHET. This word and the word prophesy have two meanings: the one is the foretelling of events yet future, the other is the uttering the meaning of ancient oracles, or speaking, from the impulse of the Spirit, to the edification and comfort of Christians, 1 Cor. xiv.; Rom. xii. 6.

PROSTITUTION, that which atones for and covers our guilt, as the mercy-seat covered the tables of the law, Rom. iii. 25; 1 John ii. 2; iv. 10.

PROSELYTE, a stranger, or one from abroad, converted to the Jewish religion, Acts ii. 10; vi. 5; xiii. 45.

PROSEUCHA, a word signifying prayer, and always so translated in the authorized version. It is, however, applied to a place of prayer,—a place where assemblies for prayer were held, whether a building or not. In this sense it seems Luke vi. 12 must be understood, also Acts xvi. 14.

PROVIDENCE, a care for the future. The Greek word provisio, means forethought, and corresponds with the Latin providentia, which originally meant foresight. God's care or providence, considered in reference to all things existing, is termed by Knapp universal; in reference to moral beings, special; and in reference to holy or converted beings, particular. Everything is an object of Providence in proportion to its capacity. The disciples, being of more value than many sparrows, were assured of greater providential care, Matt. vi. 26; x. 29—31.

PRUDENCE recommended, Prov. xii. 10, 23; xiii. 16; xiv. 8; Matt. x. 16; James iii. 13.

PSALMS. Book of, one of the most extensive and useful in Scripture, is often quoted in the New Testament. That David composed most of the Psalms is beyond doubt. "Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs," Eph. v. 19. Psalms, denote such sacred songs or poems as are sung to instruments, and may here refer to those of David; Hymns signify songs in honor of God; and songs means any regular poetic composition adapted to singing, and here restricted to those which are spiritual. This admonition is in opposition to the practice of the heathen, who, in their Bacchanalia, or feasts, dedicated to Bacchus, the god of wine, became intoxicated, as the previous verse intimates, and sang drunken songs in praise of their deity.

PTOLEMAIS, [Psyllis,] now Acre, a seaport of Palestine, 24 miles south of Tyre. It is famous for its siege by the Crusaders. It is now the principal port of Palestine, and contains about 10,000 inhabitants.

PUBLICAN, a person who farmed the taxes and public revenues. The name and profession of a publican were extremely odious among the Jews, who submitted with much reluctance to the taxes levied by the Romans. The publicans were also noted for their imposition, rapine, and extortion, to which they were, perhaps more especially prompted by having a share in the farm of the tribute, as they were thus tempted to oppress the people with illegal exactions, that they might the more speedily enrich themselves. Zaccheus and Matthew were publicans, but there is no reason to suppose that either of them had been guilty of a most practices, or that there was any exception to their characters beyond that of being engaged in an odious employment. Matt. xvi. 17; xxi. 31; Luke v. 27; xii. 2.

PUBLICUS, [cosmos,] governor of Melita, at

PUDENS, [shamefaced,] 2 Tim. iv. 21.

PURPLE, a color much worn by kings and emperors, Mark xv. 47. It is the famous Tyrian dye, so costly, and so celebrated in antiquity. It was procured from the shellfish named seves or porpora. The traffic in it, probably, was profitable, Acts xvi. 14. To this day, the best scarlet dye, (a term often interchanged for purple,) in all Asia, is produced at Thyatira.

PURITY of heart and action required, Rom. vi. 19; Gal. v. 15; Eph. i. 4; v. 3, 4; Phil. ii. 15; Col. iii. 6; 1 Pet. ii. 11; 2 Pet. iii. 14.

PUTEOLI, [showing in wells,] now Pozzuoli, a maritime town of Campania, in Italy, on the north shore of the bay of Naples, and about 8 miles N. W. from the city of that name, Acts xxviii. 3.

QUABRELS to be avoided, Rom. xiii. 13; Col. iii. 13; James iii. 10; iv. 1—7.

QUARTERNION, a detachment of four soldiers, Acts xii. 4, which was the usual number of a Roman night watch. Peter, therefore, was guarded by four soldiers, two within the prison and two outside the doors; and as the watch was usually changed every three hours, it was necessary that the four quarternions mentioned in the text should be appointed for the purpose.

QUARTUS, [the fourth,] a disciple, mentioned Rom. xvi. 23.

QUEEN often means in Scripture a king's mother. A reference to this fact will remove several apparent discrepancies in the Old Testament. The word has still the same meaning among Orientals. It also denotes a woman who is married to a king, or governs a kingdom, Neh. ii. 19; 1 Kings x. 1; Acts viii. 27. Also, the church as espoused to Jesus, Isa. xlv. 6.

QUICKSAND, In Acts xvii. 17, it is mentioned that when the ship in which Paul was driven past the isle of Clauda on the south, the mariners, as would now be said, struck the sails, and scudded under bare poles, lest they should fall into the quicksands. The original word syrtis denotes a sand bank or shoal, dangerous to navigation, drawn, or supposed to be drawn together by the currents of the sea.

RABBI, a name of dignity among the Jews, signifying doctor or master. Applied to Jesus, John i. 38, 49; iii. 2, 26; vi. 25. Jesus warns his disciples against suffering it to be given to them, Matt. xxiii. 7—12.

RABBONI, signifying my great master, is the highest honor or title of respect applied by the Jews to the teachers of the law, Mark x. 51; John xi. 16.

RACA, a word which occurs in Matt. v. 22, and which is left untranslated in the authorized version. It is expressive of contempt, and signifies an empty, worthless fellow.

RACE, a rapid course, generally implying contest. The numerous allusions to Grecian footraces, contained in Paul's epistles, require some knowledge of the laws of those games. See 1 Cor. ix. 24; 2 Tim. ii. 5; Heb. xii. 1; Gal. v. 7, &c. Those persons who intended to contend in the games were obliged to repair to the gymnasium ten months before the solemnity, where they prepared themselves by continual exercise and no man who had omitted to prepare himself in this manner was allowed tend for any of the prizes. Hence the apostle says, "Now everyone who contends, or strives for the mastery, is temperate in all things."

RACHEL, (a sheep), daughter of Laban, sister of Leah, and wife of Joseph, Gen. xxxix. 21. Jeremiah and Matthew have put Rachel for the tribes of Ephraim and Manasse, the children of Joseph, Jer. xxxi. 10; Matt. ii. 18.

RACHAB, (prosser), a woman of Jericho; her history, Josh. ii. vi. 21-25; an example, Heb. xi. 31; James ii. 25.

RALLIED forbidden, 1 Cor. v. 11; 1 Pet. iii. 9; 1 Tim. ii. 11; Jude 9.

RAIN was plentiful in Israel twice a year. "The early and the latter rain" occurred, the former in September, the latter in March. After Dews, the weather becomes settled, and about May the grain is gathered. In Egypt it scarcely ever rains; the overflow of the Nile, and copious dews, answering the purpose. In tropical climates the winter is the rainy season. Violent winds often attend these rains, and overthrow timbered houses, thence our Saviour's parable, Matt. vii. 26.

RAMAH, (elevated), a city of Benjamin, six miles north of Jerusalem, Josh. xviii. 25. Now it was Rachel's tomb; she is poetically introduced as rising from the grave, and looking in vain for her offspring. "Rachel weeping for her children," Jer. xxxi. 15.

RAMBLE censured, Psa. cxxi. 21; xv. 11; Prov. xiv. 29; Acts xix. 36.

RAVEN, a bird of prey, ceremonially unclean. Elijah fed by ravens, 1 Kings xviii. 4-6; and cured by God, Job xxxviii. 41; Psa. cxlvii. 9. If he cares for ravens, how confidently may his people trust him! Luke xii. 24.

RECONCILIATION, a restoring to favor, or reunion between those who had been at variance, Rom. v. 10; 2 Cor. v. 18; Eph. ii. 16; Col. i. 20.

REDEEMED, to buy back what was sold, pledged, or forfeited.

REDEEMER, one who ransoms by paying the price. Christ our redeemer, 1 Pet. i. 10.

REDUPLICATION, means delivery, from lucra, which occurs in Luke i. 68; ii. 33; Acts i. 25; Heb. ix. 12. Apolutrosis, deliverance from, occurs 10 times, and signifies the dismissing of a person after a ransom has been paid.

REFORMATION, metanoia, occurs 24 times, and metanoia, reformation, 24 times. Metanoia signifies to think after, or to change one's mind so as to influence the conduct. Doxas metanoias, Acts v. 31, to give reformation, is equal to making a proclamation offering inducements to it. A quotation from Josephus will illustrate this—"Doxas metanoias epi tois pepnymenis" to publish a pardon to those who lay down their arms.

REGENERATION, denotes a new birth, a renovation, or complete change for the better. The original word, palingenesis, occurs twice—Matt. xix. 28, the renovation, or change of state or condition; and Titus iii. 5, the washing, or bath of regeneration, connected with the renewing of the mind by the Holy Spirit. "Born again" is a figurative expression, and in figurative language there must be a correspondence in the figures used. The phrase "born again," gennethee anothen, occurs John iii. 3, 7.

REMISSION is synonymous with forgiveness, and is applied to the release of captives or slaves, and the discharge of debtors on the sabbatical year, Deut. xv. Luke iv.

18, 10. The noun, aphesis, remission occurs 17 times, and the verb, aphiemi, occurs 110 times; rendered to forgive, remit, set free from, dismiss, in all versions.

REMPHAN, (prepared), the name of an idol, which some think to be Saturn, Amos v. 26; Acts vii. 43.

REPENT, metamelomai, I repent, or am concerned for the past, occurs Matt. xxi. 19, 32; xxvii. 3; 2 Cor. vii. 8; Heb. vi. 21. Always translated repent.

REPROOF, how to be given, Lev. xix. 17; Prov. ix. 8; xxiv. 25; Luke xxi. 3; 1 Thess. v. 14; 2 Thess. ii. 15; 1 Tim. v. 1, 20; 2 Tim. iv. 2; how to be received, Prov. x. 17; xii. 1; xiii. 18; xv. 5, 10, 31, 32; xix. 40; xxviii. 23; xxxi. 1; Eccl. vii. 5.

REST, quietness, promised to Christians, Matt. xi. 28, 29; Heb. iv. 11, 12; iv. 1-11.

RESTITUTION, means the restoring of any thing to its former state. Acts iii. 12. The original word signifies, to dispose, order, or settle anything in a good state, which has previously been bad. These things will be the accomplishment of all promises and prophecies respecting the conversion of the Jews and Gentiles. Also, the returning of a thing unjustly gotten, or making amends for an injury. This is very particularly enjoined in the law of Moses, Exod. xxi. Lev. xiv. 1; Deut. xix. It was done at the reformation under Nehemiah, Neh. v. 10, 11; and by Zaccheus, who following the Roman law, agreed to restore fourfold, Luke xix. 8.

RESURRECTION of Christ, foretold, Psa. xvi. 10, 11; Matt. xii. 40; xvi. 21; xvii. 33; Mark ix. 21; xiv. 28; John ii. 19; recorded by the Evangelists, Matt. xxviii. Mark xvi. Luke xxiv. John xxi. preached by the apostles, Acts ii. 24-30; iii. 15; iv. 10; v. 30, 31; xi. 40-43; xiii. 26-37; xvii. 31, 32; xxv. 19; xxvi. 8, 23; 1 Cor. xv. 3, 4; the resurrection of Christ the foundation of the believer's hope, 1 Cor. xv. 10-18; 1 Thess. iv. 14-17; 1 Pet. i. 3; promised to them by Jesus, John v. 29; xi. 26, 29, 34; 21. 25; xiv. 19, &c.

RETALIATION, law of, Exod. xxi. 24, 25; Lev. xxiv. 20; Deut. xix. 21; abrogated, Matt. v. 38; Rom. xii. 17; 1 Cor. vi. 7; 1 Thess. v. 15; 1 Pet. ii. 10.

REVELATION, Book of. Critics generally agree that the apostle John was the writer of this book, and that it was written about A. D. 95. It is a prophecy expressed in the most striking and impressive symbols, of the fortunes of the Christian Church, commencing soon after the fall of Jerusalem to the consummation of all things—running through a period of nearly 6000 years; and embracing the downfall of Pagan Rome; the rise, progress, and overthrow of the apostasy; the second appearing of Jesus Christ as the king of kings, punishing the destroyers of the earth, and subjugating all the kingdoms of this world to himself; and giving a glance at his millennial reign with his glorified saints, and the final and complete overthrow of all the powers of evil, and the establishment of universal peace and righteousness for the ages of the ages. The Apocalypse is a very difficult book to understand, and perhaps an accurate knowledge of the import of the symbols employed in it, and of the times, persons, and places alluded to, defined, or portrayed in it, like other prophetic writings, was designed to be understood perfectly only when accomplished.

REVILING forbidden, Matt. v. 22; 1 Cor. vi.

35: Christ our example, 1 Pet. ii. 25: iii. 9: 2 Pet. ii. 11; Jude 9.

RHIGIUM, [capture], now called Reggio, a seaport opposite to Messina in Sicily, Acts xxviii. 15.

RHESA, [seed], an ancestor of Jesus, Luke iii. 27.

RHODA, [a rose], a servant of Mary, the mother of John Mark, Acts xii. 12.

RHODES, [a rose], an island near the S. W. corner of Asia Minor, 125 miles in circumference, celebrated in ancient history for commerce, and for a colossal brazen statue of Apollo, which was reckoned one of the seven wonders of the world. It was 120 feet high, and ships in full sail passed between its legs. It was thrown down by an earthquake after standing 50 years. Acts xxi. 1.

RICHES, their uncertainty, Matt. vi. 19; Luke xii. 16-21; James v. 1-3; dangerous, Matt. xiii. 22; James I. 6, 7; v. 1-4; a blessing if well used, Luke xvi. 9; 1 Tim. vi. 17-19; true riches, Matt. vi. 19, 20; Luke xii. 21; Rev. ii. 9; iii. 18.

RIGHTeousNESS, Christ is to his people, Jer. xxxiii. 6; Mat. iv. 7; 1 Cor. i. 20, &c.; the righteous to inherit eternal life, Dan. xii. 2; Matt. xxv. 46; Luke xviii. 20; John iii. 18; iv. 14; Rom. ii. 7; 1 Tim. vi. 19; Titus i. 2; 1 John ii. 25; Jude 21.

RIGHT HAND is, in Scripture, a symbol of power, Exod. xv. 6; Psa. xxi. 8. In the court, the place for the pleader was on the right hand, and the Sanhedrim placed those to be justified on the right hand, and those to be condemned on the left hand. It was also reckoned a position of the highest honor to be placed at the right hand. Psa. cx. 1.

RISE "up in the judgment," Matt. xii. 42. The Judge did not pass sentence in a sitting posture, but rose up for that purpose; also the witnesses rose up from their seats, when they gave evidence against criminals.

RIVER of life, Rev. xxi. 1.

ROCK, "upon this rock will I build my church," Matt. xvi. 18. The Greek word for Peter is Petros, and means a stone, and the original word for rock, is petra. The meaning of this passage therefore is, "Thou art Petros, a stone, and on tau petra, rock, will I build my church." Mark the construction of the language. "Thou" is in the second person, and "tau" is in the third; "petros" is masculine, and "petra" is feminine. Jesus asked for a confession: Peter gave it in these words,—"Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God." and this was the petra on which he declared that he would build his church, and against which the gates of hades should not prevail. 1 Cor. iii. 11.

ROD, a symbol of power and rule, Psa. ii. 9.

ROMANS, Epistle to. Paul had never been to Rome when he penned this letter. It was called forth by his having heard of their condition, and especially of the difficulties existing between the Jewish and the Gentile members. He controverts many of the errors of both Jews and Pagans, as to ancestral merit, justification, the efficacy of sacrifices, election, submission to foreign rulers, &c. Paul was nearly sixty years old when he wrote this letter, during a residence of some months at Corinth.

ROME, [strength], a city of Italy, on the Tiber, 11 miles from the sea. It was built on seven hills, was the capital of the Roman empire, the mistress of the world, and the seat of arts and arms. It has long been the residence of the Pope, and the seat of ecclesiastical power. It contains St. Peter's church, the most magnificent edifice in the world, and has many monuments of its ancient grandeur. Though greatly reduced, it nevertheless contains about 150,000 inhabitants.

RUBY. See PERRONS BROTHERS.

RUFUS, [red], the son of Simon the Cyrenian, who assisted Christ in carrying his cross, Mark xv. 21. Another person so named, mentioned Rom. xvi. 13.

SABAOTH, [armies], Rom. ix. 29; James v. 4.

SABBATH, [rest], so called, because on the seventh day God rested from his works, Gen. ii. 2, 3. There is no positive evidence that the Sabbath day was observed before the Law, no command or example of its observance being recorded. It was positively enjoined on the nation of Israel, as one of the ten commandments, "written and engraven on stones," and to which they were required to yield exact obedience. Jesus claimed to be "Lord of the Sabbath," and showed the Pharisees that it was "lawful to do good on the Sabbath." The Savior having "blotted out the handwriting of ordinances, and taken it out of the way, by nailing it to his cross," rested the whole of the Sabbath in the grave, and arose on the first of the week, as Lord of the new creation. There is no mention of the Sabbath being enjoined on Christians, and especially on Gentile believers. See Acts xv. 16-19.

DAY'S JOURNEY, Acts i. 12. Jewish tradition allowed a man to travel on the Sabbath only one mile.

SABBATICAL YEAR, the seventh year, in which the land was to have rest, Exod. xxiii. Lev. xxv. It was also called a "year of release," and in it all debtors were liberated, and all law suits ceased. Deut. xv. 1.

SACRIFICE, an act of religious worship, in which the worshipper shed the blood of animals, as an acknowledgment of his guilt and exposure to death, and as a typical atonement for sin, Gen. xxi. 34; Heb. x. 1, &c.; xi. 4, &c. The Jewish people could not offer their own sacrifices; they were to bring them to the priest, and he was to offer them. So cannot we now offer up our prayers and praises to God but by Jesus Christ, and so the apostle here applies the case. "By him, let us offer the sacrifice of praise," Heb. xiii. 15.

SADDUCEES, [just, justified], a famous sect among the Jews, so called, it is said, from their founder, Sadoc, who flourished about 500 years B. C., and taught there was no resurrection nor future state, neither angel nor spirit, Matt. xiii. 29; Acts xiii. 9.

SALAH, [mission], a son or grandson of Abraham, Gen. x. 24; xi. 18; Luke iii. 26.

SALAMIS, [sakes], one of the chief cities of Cyprus, on the S. E. coast of the island, Acts xiii. 5.

SALATHIEL, [I have asked of God]; or SALATHIEL, the father of Zerubbabel, 1 Chron. iii. 17; Matt. i. 12.

SALÉM, [peace], the original name of Jerusalem, Gen. xiv. 18; Heb. vii. 1, 2, and was used poetically in later times, Psa. lxxvi. 3.

SALIM, [a fox], the well-watered place where John baptized, John iii. 23.

SALMON, [peaceable], the son of Nahshon, who married Rahab, 1 Chron. ii. 11; and the father of Boaz, Ruth iv. 21; Matt. i. 4, 5; Luke iii. 32.

SALMONE, [peaceable], a promontory forming the eastern extremity of the island of Crete, Acts xxvii. 7.

SALOME, [peaceable,] the wife of Zebedee, and mother of James and John, Matt. xvii. 35; Mark xv. 20; xvi. 1. Also, the name of that daughter of Herodias, who caused the death of John the Baptist.

SALT, was used with every burnt offering, Lev. ii. 13; Mark ix. 42; disciples compared to it, Matt. v. 13; Luke xiv. 34. In illustration of Matt. v. 13, Mundrell, in his travels near Aleppo, says, "I found veins of salt, of which the part exposed to the air, sun and rain, had lost its savor, while that below the surface preserved its saltness." Schoetgenius has largely proved in his "Hortus Hebraicus," that such as had become insipid was used to repair roads.

SALUTE, to address with civility. The Eastern salute according to rank. The common salutation is laying the right hand on the bosom and a little declining the body. In saluting a person of rank they bow almost to the ground and kiss the lower of his garment. Infidels kiss the feet, the slaves, or a servant of a superior. Karak has the law of the church, or the monks, "ut supra caput per 300 pedes," was an order which great deposits were required.

SALVATION, deliverance from evil. 1. Salvation from physical distress, Acts xvii. 12; Rom. vii. 13; 1 Tim. ii. 16; Acts iii. 25; xxi. 16. In this sense it is the savior or preserver of all men. 2. Salvation from the guilt, pollution, and domination of sin, Acts 16. 32; Rom. vii. 13; 1 Cor. i. 21; 1 Pet. iii. 1; James i. 21; 1 Cor. ii. 5; 2 Cor. v. 21. Salvation makes and completes all the requirements and obligations of the saints, 1 Cor. vi. 11; Rom. vi. 11; Phil. ii. 12; Heb. v. 9; 2 Tim. ii. 16.

SAMARIA, [a mountainous city,] situated near the middle of the valley, formerly Omri, king of Israel, on a mountain which, of the same name, is still to be seen the metropolis of the ten tribes. Also the middle division of Palestine.

SAMARITANS, inhabitants of Samaria, John ix. 9. They were the offspring of a mixture of Ishmaelites, mixed with apostate Jews, who built a temple on Mount Gerizim, and were hated by the Jews, Luke ix. 53; 1 John ii. 28.

SARON, [a bay of Greece,] was found in the Archipelago, in the coast of Asia Minor, Acts xv. 16.

SARACENIA, an island in the Egean Sea, Acts x. 13.

SARAPIS, a goddess, a judge of Tarent, of the tribe of Dan, 2 Kings x. 23; Heb. xi. 32.

SARACENS, a people of Asia, the sons of Kanah and Harnah, offshoots of the tribes of Issachar and Benjamin, the descendants of the Judges of Israel, and was commonly known to the Egyptians. He was a great and powerful king, and reigned many years, but he was not of the race of Sargon. He captured and assailed the Jews of Samaria, took of them, and the first of Samaria. He died in the twelfth year of his age.

SANCTIFY, to separate anything to God. Hagiasis occurs 28 times, translated to sanctify to make holy; Hagiasmos, sanctification, holiness occurs 16 times. The meaning of Hagiasis will be found in John xvii. 17; 1 Cor. x. 31. Jesus was said to be sanctified, made holy, i. e. set apart and devoted to God. The setting apart, or consecrating of the body, soul, and spirit, to God, through Jesus Christ, is the holiness of Christianity.

SANCTUARY, a holy place, Exod. xxv. 8; Heb. ix. 2.

SANDALS, soles of leather or wood fastened to the feet with strings, Matt. iii. 11. They are still worn in several eastern countries, by both sexes, and all classes.

SANHEDRIM, more properly SANHEDRIN, the supreme judicial council of the Jews, especially for religious affairs. It is said to have consisted of 70 or 72 judges, Matt. xviii. 1; John xi. 47.

SAPHIRA, [that relates or tells,] See ANANIAS.

SAPPHIRE. See PRECIOUS STONES.

SARAH, [a princess,] the wife of Abraham, and mother of Isaac, Gen. xi. 29, 30; honorably mentioned, Heb. xi. 11; 1 Pet. iii. 6.

SARDINE, or SARDIS. See PRECIOUS STONES.

SARDIS, [prince of joy,] a city of Asia Minor, formerly the capital of that wealthy monarch Croesus, king of the Lydians. One of the seven churches of Asia existed here, to which the Lord Jesus sent a letter, Rev. iii. 1.

SARDONYX. See PRECIOUS STONES.

SARONITA, [a goldsmith's shop,] a city of Sidon, between that place and Tyre. Mentioned 1 Kings xvii. 9, 10; Obad. 10; Luke iv. 26.

SATAN, is a transferred Hebrew word, and is derived from the verb which means to lie in wait, to oppose, to be an adversary. Hence the noun means an adversary or opposer. Ho Satanas and ho diabolos are used and applied in several instances to the same being, Rev. xii. 9. Christ, in the temptation, Matt. iv., in his repulse of the tempter, calls him Satan; while the evangelists distinguish him by the term "devil." Diabolos is the uniform translation which the Septuagint gives of the Hebrew word for Satan, when used with the article. In some passages the term Satan is used in a general sense, as 1 Kings x. 14, 22; 1 Sam. xxi. 4; Num. xxii. 7; Psa. cii. 5; 22 many others in a specific sense, as a proper name, as Luke vi. 1, 2; 1 Cor. x. 25; 12; John 8-12; 1 Tim. ii. 14; Matt. ix. 10; Mark i. 13; Luke x. 18, 20. His character is denoted by his titles—Satan, Adversary, Tempter, False Accuser, Tempter, &c. according him to be guile and actively evil, 1 John iii. 8; John xii. 44. His agency is evil—both moral and physical. See Luke xii. 2; Acts x. 35; 1 John ii. 16; Eph. ii. 2; Rev. xii. 9; Luke x. 10; Acts x. 23; 1 Tim. ii. 29. All the forms of personal agency are made use of by the sacred writers in setting forth the character and conduct of Satan. He is described as having power and dominion, messengers and followers; as tempting and resisting; he is held accountable, charged with guilt; is to be judged, and to receive final punishment.

SAUL, [demanded,] son of Kish, of the tribe Benjamin, was the first king of the Israelites, 1 Sam. ix. 1, 2, &c. Paul, the apostle, called Saul prior to his conversion.

SAVIOR, a term applied to Christ, who came "to save his people from their sins." He is therefore called Jesus, which signifies a Savior.

SCEPTRE, a staff, rod, or wand, signifying authority or royalty, Psa. xiv. 6; Rev. xix. 15.

SCEVA, [disputed,] a Jew who lived at Ephesus, Acts xix. 14-16.

SCHISM, or DIVISION, condemned, 1 Cor. i. 10; iii. 5; xi. 18; xii. 25; 2 Cor. xii. 11.

SCORPION, a large reptile, remarkable for irascibility and malignancy, Luke xi. 12. Some of the species are said to be white, and about the size of an egg, and when

- coiled up it is difficult to distinguish one from the other.
- SCRIBES, writers and expounders of the law.
- SCRIPTURES, [writings], a name applied by way of dignity to the contents of the Bible, and which are given by inspiration, 1 Tim. iii. 16; Matt. xiii. 29; Mark xiv. 49; Acts xvii. 11; xviii. 24; 2 Pet. iii. 16.
- SEA, a large collection of water. The Hebrews applied this term to lakes of moderate size; and the modern inhabitants of Palestine still retain the same phraseology. Symbolically, waters signify peoples; and the gathering together of people into one body politic, constitutes a sea.
- SEAL, an engraved stamp, also the impression made by such a stamp. Matt. xxvii. 66.
- SECUNDUS, [the second], a disciple mentioned Acts xx. 4.
- SELUCIA, [Marates by waves], a seaport of Syria, 12 miles west of Antioch, Acts xiii. 4.
- SELF-DENIAL, a Christian duty. Matt. v. 29, 30; xvi. 24; xviii. 8, 9; Mark viii. 24, &c.
- SEPTICHERES, or places for burying the dead, were usually hollow rooms dug into rocks, with an upright door to enter into them, to which a large stone was put, Gen. xliii. 6; Judges viii. 23; 1 Sam. x. 2; 2 Sam. iii. 32; Isa. xlii. 16; Matt. xxvii. 60.
- SEPHAPHIM, [fiery or burning ones]. See CHRISTIAN.
- SERGIUS PAULUS, [maker of nets], the deputy Governor of Cyprus, Acts xiii. 12.
- SERPENT. Many kinds mentioned in Scripture. Alluded to as crafty, Gen. iii. 1; Matt. x. 16. One of the names of Satan.
- SERVANTS, general commands concerning them, Eph. vi. 5-8; Col. iii. 23-25; 1 Tim. vi. 1, 2; Titus ii. 9, 10; 1 Pet. ii. 18-25.
- SEVEN, a sacred number among the Jews. The term often denotes a perfect or complete number. Job v. 10; Psa. xli. 6. Sevenfold, or seven times often only means abundantly, completely. Seventy times seven is a still higher superlative.
- SEVENTY DISCIPLES sent out by Jesus, Luke x. 1-20.
- SHAVING, a rite of purification, Acts xviii. 18; xxi. 24.
- SHEBA, [capitivity], a province S. E. of Arabia, between the Red Sea and Indian Ocean. It was famed for spices, gems, and gold. Psa. lxxii. 10; Isa. lx. 6. The queen of Sheba visited Solomon, 1 Kings x. 1; Matt. xii. 42.
- SHEEP, a well known animal of great utility, and famed for meekness. Christians are compared to sheep, and Christ is the "Lamb of God." In India sheep cannot be distinguished from goats by a common observer. This fact gives force to the declaration that Christ will divide the good from the bad, as a shepherd divides his sheep from the goats.
- SHEKEL, a Jewish weight. The common shekel of money was worth about half a dollar, and the shekel of the sanctuary possibly double that sum.
- SHEPHERD. Christ is styled a shepherd, 1 Pet. ii. 25; the good shepherd, John. x. 11; the chief shepherd, 1 Pet. v. 4; and the great shepherd, Heb. xiii. 20. Elders or overseers are also called shepherds, Eph. iv. 11, where the common version has pastors; and as such they are to feed the flock, 1 Pet. v. 2.
- SIDON, [swatting], a great commercial city, and the capital of Phenicia. It is situated on the Mediterranean, about 18 miles north of Tyre. It contains 16,000 inhabitants, and is now called Saida. Luke iv. 26.
- SILAS, [considering], a contraction of Silasus, a distinguished Christian teacher in the church, Acts xv. 22, 32.
- SILVAM, [arist], a fountain or pool of water, S. E. of Jerusalem, John ix. 7.
- SILVANUS. See SILAS.
- SILVER. We do not read of silver till the time of Abraham, when it was in general circulation as money, though not coined. Abraham was rich in gold and silver. It is used to represent general wealth.
- SIMEON, [that hears or obeys], a good old man who was waiting for the Barior, Luke ii. 25-35. Also, one of the twelve patriarchs.
- SIMON, [that hears or obeys], the brother of Jesus, Matt. xiii. 55; Mark vi. 3.
- the Canaanite, called Zelotes, an apostle, Matt. x. 4; Mark iii. 18; Luke vi. 13.
- surnamed Peter. See PETER.
- the Pharisee, Luke vii. 36-50.
- the leper, Matt. xxi. 7; Mark xiv. 3.
- the father of Judas Iscariot, John vi. 71; xii. 4.
- the Cyrenian, Matt. xxvii. 32; Mark xv. 21; Luke xxiii. 26.
- the tanner, Acts ix. 43; x. 6, 17, 22.
- Magus, Acts viii. 9-24.
- SIN, to miss a mark; or any deviation in conception, thought, or deed, from the will of God. It is defined by John to be 'the transgression of the law, 1 John iii. 3, 4. Its progress in man is strikingly drawn in James i. 15, 14. Sin sometimes means a sin-offering, Gen. iv. 7; 2 Cor. v. 21; Heb. ix. 28.
- SINAI, [ya bush], the mountain on which Jehovah appeared to Moses, and gave the law. From recent researches it has been discovered that the "Mount of God," or Horeb, is Sinhal, a mountain which towers up insular grandeur to the height of 5,000 feet, and some 20 miles distant from the popular Horeb, and monkish Sinai. Sinhal was regarded as the true Sinai, till Justinian built his monastery of St. Catherine upon the mountain to which it has given a name.
- SINCERITY required, Matt. v. 8; Rom. xii. 9; Phil. i. 10; Col. iii. 22. The Greek word silikrisia, translated sincerity, means an evident purity when held up in the light of the sun, as we would examine water, 1 Cor. i. 14.
- SINGING is not only authorized as a part of divine worship by example, Matt. xxvi. 26, but expressly enjoined, Eph. v. 19; Col. iii. 16; and should be done properly, 1 Cor. xiv. 15.
- SMYRNA, [myrrh], a city and seaport of Asia Minor, in Ionia, 35 miles N. by W. of Ephesus. It was anciently large and powerful, and is now the most populous and commercial city of Asia Minor. A Christian congregation was early planted here, to which one of the seven Epistles of Revelation was directed, Rev. ii. 8-11.
- SOBRIETY of mind and body, recommended, 1 Thes. v. 8; Titus ii. 2, 4, 6; 1 Pet. i. 13.
- SODOM, [their secret], one of the cities which were destroyed by fire from heaven, which stood on the site now occupied by the Dead Sea. Gen. xix.
- SOLOMON, [peaceable, perfect], the son of David and Bathsheba. He was beloved of God, and selected to build his temple; and was one of the best kings of Israel. He reigned 40 years, and was renowned for his wisdom and wealth, and the splendor of his peaceful reign. He was the author of books of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Canticles, besides some on botany, natural history, &c.

WOLGOMON'S PORCH, a covered way on the east of the temple, John x. 23; Acts iii. 11.

WOPATER, [defends his father,] a Berean disciple, Acts xx. 4.

WORMER, a magician, one who undertakes to disclose secrets or foretell events by diabolical power. Acts xiii. 8; Rev. xxi. 8; xxii. 15.

WOSPATER, [saving the father,] Paul's kinsman, Rom. xvi. 21.

WOSTILENES, [savior,] the chief of the synagogue at Corinth, Acts xviii. 1; he became a Christian, and accompanied Paul, 1 Cor. i. 1.

SOUL. The Hebrew word, nephesh, of the Old Testament, occurs about 700 times, and is rendered soul 471 times; life and living, about 160 times; and the same word is also rendered a man, a person, self, they, me, him, any one, breath, heart, mind, appetite, the body, (dead or alive,) last, creature, and even a beast; for it is 28 times applied to beasts, and to every creeping thing. The Greek word psyche of the New Testament, corresponds with nephesh of the Old. It occurs 105 times, and is rendered soul 50 times, and life 40 times. The same word is also rendered mind, us, you, heart, heartily, and is twice applied to the beasts that perish. Psychikos, an adjective derived from psyche, occurs 6 times, and is translated natural and sexual; it is properly translated animal in modern translations. Perhaps it may be worthy of notice, that in all the 700 times which nephesh occurs, and the 105 times of psyche, not once is the word immortal, or immortality, or deathless, or never-dying, found in connection, as qualifying the terms. See IMMORTAL.

SPAIN, [rare, precious,] a country in the S. W. of Europe, and formerly included what now comprises Spain and Portugal. Rom. xv. 24, 28.

SPARROW, a very small, well-known bird. Referred to by Jesus, Matt. x. 29; Luke xii. 6.

SPEECH, proper use of, Matt. v. 22; xii. 36; Eph. iv. 29; v. 4; Col. iii. 8; iv. 6; 1 Thes. v. 11; Titus iii. 2; James i. 26; iii. 2; 1 Pet. iii. 10.

SPICES, used in burying the dead, 3 Chron. xvi. 14; Mark xvi. 1; Luke xxiii. 56; John xix. 40.

SPIKENARD, a very fragrant species of grass, which when trodden upon, fills the air with sweetness. The ointment made of it was precious, Mark xiv. 3. A pound of it in the days of Christ was worth 300 denarii, equal to forty dollars, a great sum at that time.

SPIRIT. The Hebrew word Ruach, occurs 400 times in the Old Testament, and is rendered spirit 240 times; breath 23 times; wind 95 times; mind 6 times, and the balance in 18 different ways. The Greek word pneuma has been chosen by the inspired writers of the New Testament as the equivalent in meaning of ruach. It occurs 335 times, and is the only word rendered spirit, (with two exceptions, Matt. xix. 26; Mark vi. 12.) Pneuma, like ruach of the Old Testament, has four significations:—1. It represents, primarily the air we breathe. 2. It denotes a being, as angels. 3. It represents an influence from a being. 4. It indicates a state of feeling. It is believed that there is not a passage where these words rendered spirit, occur, but what may be classified under one of these significations. Like the word psyche, neither ruach nor pneuma are ever once connected with words which indicate that it is deathless, never-dying, or immortal.

STACHYS, [spike,] a disciple, Rom. xvi. 9.

STARS, bright heavenly bodies, seen in the night. The star which conducted the Magi to Bethlehem was probably a meteor. Matt. ii. The morning star is a symbol of the Messiah. Angels, too, are symbolized by stars, Job xxviii. 7; and also the princes and nobles of a kingdom, Dan. vii. 10.

STEPHANUS, [a crown,] one of the first converts at Corinth, baptized by Paul, 1 Cor. i. 10; xvi. 15.

STEPHAN, [a crown,] one of the seven first deacons, and the proto-martyr of the Christian church, Acts vi. 6, 8; vii. 60.

STOCKS, the Roman cippi, or large pieces of wood, which loaded the legs of the prisoners, and most painfully extended them. Acts xvi. 24.

STOICS, a sect of heathen philosophers, founded by Zeno of Cyprus, B.C. 300, so called from his teaching in the Stoa, or porch, at Athens. Acts xviii. 15.

STONE, PRECIOUS. Jacinth, a stone of a violet color, bordering on purple, composed of a strong blue and deep red. Beryl, a pellucid gem, of a bluish green color, found in the East Indies, and in the gold mines of Peru. Chalcedony, a precious stone, variegated with divers colors, in the form of clouds. Chrysolite. The import of this term would make it the golden stone. It is a gem of a yellowish green color, and now ranks among the Topazes. It is very transparent. Chrysopeprus differs only from the Chrysolite in having a bluish hue. It is a variety of the Chrysolite, of a green color, with a golden brightness. It is sometimes called the yellowish green and cloudy Topaz. Diamond, the hardest and most valuable of all precious stones; sometimes called Adamant. It is one of the most inflammable substances in nature, being pure carbon. Emerald, the same with the ancient Smaragdus; one of the most beautiful of gems, of a bright green color, without any mixture. Jacinth, a gem of a deep reddish yellow. Jasper, a precious stone, variegated with divers colors, and of a very hard quality; some have been found of a sea green color. Onyx, a species of the Chalcedony. Some call it a Sardonyx. Ruby, a red purple stone, very hard and rare. Sapphire, a precious stone, of a very beautiful pure blue, second only to the diamond in hardness, lustre, and value. It is of a different species, sometimes blue, red, and yellow combined. Sardius, a gem of a reddish color, approaching a white. Sardonyx, resembling both the Sardius and the Onyx. Topaz, a yellow gem; or as some describe it, of a pale dead green; considered by mineralogists, a species of the Sapphire.

STRAINING out a gnat. An allusion to the filtering of wine for fear of swallowing an unclean insect.

STRAIT GATE, "enter ye in at the strait gate." A metaphor taken from the custom at marriage feasts, of having a gate designedly made narrow, through which those who were bidden might enter, but those

- might exclude those who were not bidden, Matt. vii. 13; Luke xiii. 24. Strive means to agonize, and alludes to the athletic exercise in the Grecian games.
- STREET, "the street called Straight," Acts ix. 11. This street still exists in Damascus, and extends from the eastern to the western gate, about 3 miles.
- SUN, the great source of light and heat. Gen. i. 14; miraculous events connected with it, Josh. 2. 12, 13; 2 Kings xx. 9-11; Luke xxiii. 44, 45. Used as a symbol, Ps. lxxxiv. 11; Mat. iv. 2.
- SWINE, the plural of hog. It was not only unclean by the Levitical law, but by strict Jews was regarded as impure and detestable in the highest degree. They would not so much as pronounce its name, but called it the strange thing. Among the charges of gross sins, mentioned by Isaiah, the eating of swine's flesh is specified, Isa. lxx. 4; Matt. xviii. 30-32.
- SYCAMINE-TREE, mentioned only Luke xvii. 6. Probably the mulberry tree.
- SYCAMORE, a tree which bears fruit like a fig, and has leaves like a mulberry. Luke xix. 4.
- SYCHAR, [a city.] a name of reproach applied by the Jews to Sacchem, now Napalene, a city of Samaria, between Mounts Ebal and Gerizim; 24 miles north of Jerusalem. Three miles from Sychar was Jacob's Well, memorable for our Savior's conversation with the woman of Samaria.
- SYCHEM, [a place of figs.] the name for Sacchem in Acts vii. 16, being that also used in the Septuagint ver. of the Old Testament.
- SYNAGOGUE, an assembly among the Jews for religious worship; also the place in which such assembly met. Frequently mentioned, Matt. iv. 23; vi. 2, 6; x. 17; xii. 9; xiii. 54; xliii. 1-7, &c.
- SYNTACHE, [that speaks or discourses,] a female Christian, Phil. iv. 2.
- SYRACUSE, [that drags violently,] once a rich and populous city, on the S. E. part of the island of Sicily, 24 miles in circumference. It was built 700 years B. C. Acts xxviii. 12.
- SYRIA, [sublime, descending,] in Hebrew, it is called Arum. A country of Asia, extending from Asia Minor and the Mediterranean on the west, to the Euphrates on the east, and in its most extensive sense, including Palestine. In the time of the kings it more frequently indicated the kingdom of which Damascus was the capital than the whole country, or any other part of it.
- TYRO-PHENICIA, [purple, drags,] Phenicia, properly so called, of which Sidon was the capital. In Mark vii. 27, the Canaanitish woman is called a tyro-phenician, because she was of Phenicia, which was then regarded as part of Syria.
- TABERNACLE, the tent of assembly. A beautiful and costly tent, erected for the worship of God, while Israel was in the wilderness. Ordered to be built, Exod. xxv; preparations for it, xxiv.; set up, xi. It was 45 feet long and 15 wide, and stood in a court 150 feet long, and 75 wide, enclosed by curtains 5 feet high, sustained by 66 pillars. A curtain divided the tabernacle into two apartments, the eastern one, called the Most Holy place, being 15 feet square. Heb. ix. 3-11.
- TABERNACLES, Feast of, one of the three great festivals of the Jews, being that of the closing year. Lev. xxiii. 34-43; John vii. 2, 37.
- TABITHA, [clear-sighted,] called also Dorcas. A Christian widow at Joppa, Acts ix. 26, who was restored to life by Peter.
- TABOR, [a table,] a celebrated mount in the Holy Land, rising in Jericho, or the plain of Esdraelon, about seven miles from Nazareth. It is extremely fertile, covered by trees and odoriferous plants. The summit presents a plain, a mile in circuit, which Buckingham says, affords the finest view to be enjoyed in Judaea. It is supposed to be the holy mount of transfiguration, Matt. xvii. 1-13; Mark ix. 1-13; 2 Pet. i. 16-18.
- TALENT, a Jewish coin or weight. It is not clear what was the exact value of the talent. That of silver was probably somewhere near 1000 dollars, and that of gold 25,000. Matt. xxi. 12.
- TARBUS, [winged, feathered,] the capital city of Cilicia, on the river Cydnus, 6 miles N. E. of the Mediterranean. It was the native place of Paul, Acts ix. 11.
- TAVERNA, THE TURKISH, a place about 23 miles south of Rome, Acts xxviii. 15.
- TEACHERS, false, their character described, and Christians warned against them, Rom. xv. 17; 2 Cor. xi. 13; Gal. i. 7-9; Phil. iii. 2; Col. ii. 8, 18; 1 Tim. i. 7; iv. 2, vi. 2; 2 Tim. (i) 2-5, 15; Heb. xiii. 9, 2 Pet. ii. 1.
- TEMPERANCE recommended, Prov. xxiii. 1-7; Gal. v. 23; Eph. v. 18; Titus i. 6; 1, 2 Pet. i. 6.
- TEMPLE, a house or dwelling set apart for the worship of God. The materials of Solomon's temple prepared by David, 1 Chron. xvii. 12; built by Solomon, 1 Kings vi. vii; the dedication of it, viii.; repaired by Jehoiachin, 2 Kings xxi. 1-15; by Hzekiah, 2 Chron. xxxi.; by Josiah, 2 Chron. xxxiv.; burned by the Chaldeans, 2 Kings xxv. 9; 2 Chron. xxxiv. 19; a new one built after the captivity, Ezra iii. 7-10; the chambers in it cleansed, Neh. xiii. 9; the people excited to build it, Hag. ii. 1; its glory to exceed the former, Hag. ii. 7-9; a future one described in vision to Ezekiel, Ezek. xl. 48.
- TEMPTATION of Jesus, Matt. iv. 1-11; Mark i. 13, 15; Luke iv. 1-12.
- TESTIMONY, [the proof,] an argument to the apostle Paul, Rom. xvi. 22.
- THETTALUS, [a tutor,] an orator who pleaded against Paul before Felix, Acts xxi. 1-9.
- TESTAMENT, more properly rendered covenants, Heb. ix. 15-20.
- TETRARCH, a prince of a fourth part of a state, who had the power, without the title or crown of a king, Matt. xvi. 1; Luke (ii) 1, 14, 21; Acts xiii. 1.
- THESSALON, [that provokes,] a surname of Jude, Matt. x. 8.
- THEOPHILUS, [a friend of God,] mentioned Luke i. 3; Acts i. 1.
- THESSALONIANS, the title of two Epistles written to the congregation at Thessalonica, which was planted by Paul. See Acts xvii.
- The First Epistle is generally admitted to have been the earliest of Paul's letters. He enjoined it to be read to all the adjacent churches, Chap. v. 27. Its object seems to have been to confirm them in the faith, and to excite their piety.
- The Second Epistle, written soon after the first, recommends their faith and charity, rectifies their mistake in supposing that the day of judgment was at hand, admonishes them of certain irregularities, &c.
- THESSALONICA, [city against the Thracians,] now Saloniki, a city and port of Macedonia, both in ancient and

- times large and commercial. It is situated on a gulf, about 700 miles from Athens.
- THELPHAS, (a false teacher.) A Jewish insurgent who was slain, while a band of followers that he had induced to join him were scattered and brought to nought, Acts v. 26.
- THOMAS, [a twin], or DIOMEDS, one of the apostles, Matt. x. 3; John xi. 16; xx. 24.
- THORNS, used as a punishment, Matt. xxvii. 1; Mark xv. 17; John xix. 2.
- THYATIRA, [sacrifice of labor], a city on the northern border of Lydia, about 27 miles from Sardis, the seat of one of the seven apocalyptic churches, Rev. i. 11; ii. 18. The modern name is St. Assos.
- TIBERIAN, [good witness]. The sea of Galilee. Also a city on the lake or sea of Tiberias, 28 miles north of Jerusalem, and now called Tabaria.
- TIBERIUS, (son of Tiber.) the third emperor of Rome, Luke iii. 1.
- TIME, to be improved, Eccl. xii. 1; Matt. v. 25; Luke ix. 45; John xi. 4; xii. 35; Rom. xiii. 11; 2 Cor. vi. 2; Gal. vi. 9, 10; Eph. v. 16.
- TIMOTHY, [honor of God], a young Christian of Derbe, grandson of Lois, and son of Eunice, a Jewess, by a Greek father, who was probably a proselyte, Acts xvi. 1; xi. 4; 2 Tim. i. 5; iii. 15. The apostle Paul made him the companion of his journeys and labors, Acts xvi. 2, 3; 1 Tim. iv. 12; and is often alluded to by him with paternal affection, 1 Tim. i. 2, 15; 1 Cor. iv. 17, &c.
- The two Epistles to Timothy were written by Paul, from Rome, not long before his death. In these he is instructed in the choice of officers for the church, in the proper deportment of a christian minister, in the method of church government and discipline, the importance of steadfastness in christian doctrine, the perils and seductions that should come, &c.
- TITLES, means Testis; instances, Gen. xiv. 20; xxviii. 22; laws concerning, Lev. xviii. 20-32; Deut. xiv. 22, 23; Neh. x. 37; Mal. iii. 8-10; Heb. vii. 6.
- TITUS, [honorable], a Christian teacher, and companion and co-laborer of Paul. He was of Greek origin, but converted by the apostle, who calls him his own son in the faith, Titus i. 4. The apostle left Titus in Crete, to establish and regulate the churches in that island, Titus i. 5.
- The Epistle to Titus contains similar instructions to those addressed to Timothy. It gives the qualifications and duties of elders—the doctrine of obedience to civil rulers—the necessity of good works, and the proper treatment of foolish questions and heretics. This epistle seems to have been written from Ephesus, shortly after Paul had visited Crete, Titus i. 6.
- TONGUE, the duty of governing it, Psa. xxxix. 1; James iii. 2-12.
- TONGUES, confutation of, Gen. xi. 1-9; gift of, Mark xvi. 17; Acts ii. 4; x. 46; xii. 6.
- TRACHONITIS, [rock], a district in the N. E. part of Palestine.
- TRADITIONS, not to be regarded, Matt. v. 1-20; Mark vii. 1-23; Col. ii. 8; Titus i. 14.
- TRAINING children, a duty, Gen. xviii. 19; Deut. iv. 9; vi. 6-9; xl. 19; Psa. lxxviii. 5, 6; Eph. vi. 4.
- TRANCE, a state of mind, in which a person is wrapped into visions of future or distant things, to which the body seems insensible, Num. xxiv. 4, 10; Acts x. 10; xl. 5; xii. 17.
- TRANSFIGURE, to change the figure and appearance, as Christ did on the mount, Matt. xvii. 2; Mark ix. 2.
- TREASURY, a place where the public money is kept or managed, Mark xii. 41. This treasury was a chest, into which the people put what they pleased: it was placed in one of the rooms of the temple, and the voluntary offerings were for its repairs.
- TROAS, [penetrated], a maritime city of Phrygia, or of Mysia, in the Hellespont, Acts xvi. 8; xx. 6, 6.
- TROGYLLIUM, a town and promontory on the western coast of Asia Minor, opposite Samos, Acts xx. 15.
- TROPHIMUS, [well-educated], a native of Ephesus, converted by Paul, Acts xv. 15.
- TRUTH, the, emphatically, Gal. iii. 1; James v. 9; or sincerity, Job. xxiv. 14; 1 Sam. xii. 24; Psa. xv. 1; li. 6; Prov. iii. 3; viii. 7; xii. 17, 19; 1 Cor. v. 8; Eph. iv. 25.
- TRYPHENA, [delicious], a female disciple at Rome, Rome, xvi. 12.
- TRYPHOSA, [thrice skinning], a female disciple at Rome, Rom. xvi. 12.
- TYCHICUS, [casual], a disciple, employed as a messenger to several congregations, Acts xx. 4; Eph. vi. 21, 22.
- TYPES of Christ, brazen serpent, Num. xxi. 9; John iii. 14, 15; bread or manna, Exod. ix. 15-35; John vi. 31-65; Rev. ii. 17; a lamb, Gen. xxii. 7, 8; Exod. xii. 5-5; xix. 30; Isa. liii. 7; John i. 29; Acts viii. 32; 1 Pet. i. 10; Rev. v. 6-13, &c.; Melchizedek, Gen. xiv. 18-20; Heb. v. 6; vii. 1, 14; pass-over, Exod. xii. 1 Cor. v. 7, 8; scapegoat, Lev. xvi. 20-22; Heb. ix. 20; 1 Pet. ii. 24.
- TYRANNUS, [a prince], a sophist or rhetorician of Ephesus, who kept one of those schools of philosophy and eloquence so common at that period, Acts xix. 9.
- TYRE, [strength], a large city of Phenicia, supposed to have been built by a colony of Sidonians, and hence called the "daughter of Zidon," Job. xix. 29; Isa. xxiii. 12; Matt. xi. 21.
- UNBELIEF, causes of, John v. 44; 2 Cor. iv. 4; Eph. ii. 2; 2 Thes. ii. 12; danger of, Mark xvi. 16; Luke xii. 46; John viii. 24; Rom. i. 28; 2 Tim. ii. 12; Rev. xxi. 3.
- UNBELIEVERS, Christians should not unite with them, 2 Cor. vi. 14, 15, 16; to be shunned, Rom. xvi. 17; 1 Tim. vi. 5.
- UNION to Christ, shown by comparison to a body, 1 Cor. xii. 12, 27; Eph. iv. 15; Col. i. 18, 24; to a building, Eph. ii. 20-22; 1 Pet. ii. 4-7; to a vine, John xv. 4-8; to the conjugal union, Eph. v. 23, 24; it is as the union of the Father and son, John xvii. 21, 23; Rom. viii. 38, 39; 1 Cor. vi. 17.
- UNJUST STEWARD. In Luke xvi. 1, the lord spoken of was not as some suppose the Lord Jesus Christ, but the lord or master of the steward. Hence the argument that some have raised on this passage, immediately comes to nought.
- UNLEAVENED BREAD, Feast of, or Pascha. See FESTIVALS.
- UPPER MILLSTONE, Matt. xviii. 6. The Syrians rolled up some in sheet lead, and hung a heavy weight upon the necks of others, whom they cast into the rivers and lakes, as a capital punishment.
- UPPER ROOMS, [places or couches], Matt. xxiii. 6. In the Jewish synagogues, the elders sat with their backs towards the ark or chest wherein was the book of the law, and their faces towards the congregation, who looked towards the ark; and these seats were more honorable than others, and are here called the chief seats.

VAT. The Aspersion referred to in Mark xii. 1, was a vessel placed under the levon, or vat, as a receptacle for the new wine or oil. A place was dug for holding it, as well as sometimes for the vat in which the fruit was trodden. Matt. xxi. 33.

VILL, whatever hides anything from view. As a female covering, Gen. xlii. 65; Ruth ii. 13; 1 Cor. xi. 1-10; veil of the tabernacle and temple, Exod. xxvi. 31-37; Lev. xvi. 2; Matt. xviii. 61; Mark xv. 38; Luke xxii. 45; Heb. vi. 19.

VENGEANCE of God, Gen. iv. 15; Deut. xxxii. 33, 41, 43; Isa. xxxiv. 8; 2 Thess. i. 8.

VIALS were of common use in the temple service. They were not like those small bottles which we call by that name; but were like cups on a plate, in allusion to the censers of gold, which on account of the heat of the fire burning the incense, were often put upon a plate. Rev. xvi.

VINE, one of the most prominent productions of Palestine, and still less a most luxuriantly. Notwithstanding the present depressed state of the country, it even now exports vast quantities of grapes, raisins, and inspissated grape juice, (or honey of grapes as it is called,) into Egypt. The vine was an emblem of the Hebrew nation. A period of security and repose is figured by every one sitting under his own vine and fig tree. The vine is also used by our Saviour as an emblem of himself, John xv.

VINEGAR, mingled with gall, Matt. xxvii. 34. Medicated wine, to deaden the sense of pain, was given to the Jewish criminals when about to be put to death; but they gave our Lord vinegar, and that in mockery, as they did other things, of his claim to royalty. But the force of this does not appear, if we do not recollect the quality of the wines drunk anciently by princes, which it seems were of the acet sort.

VINYARD, a piece of ground planted with vines. The vineyard was prepared with great care, the stones being gathered out, a secure fence made round it, and a scaffold, or high summer house, built in the centre, where, as the fruit ripened, a watchman was stationed, and where there was also shelter for the workmen at their meals, and a suitable place to keep the tools. Isa. v. 1-7; Matt. xxi. 33. This was, of course, deserted at other seasons of the year. See Isa. i. 8.

VISION, a supernatural appearance of men and things to the mind of a person not asleep, Acts ix. 10; 2 Cor. xii. 1. Thus has God often shown his people what eye had not seen, nor ear heard.

VOLUME, something rolled up, as was the ancient form of books, Isa. xl. 7; Heb. i. 7.

WALKING with God, Rom. viii. 1, 3; 2 Cor. v. 7; xiii. 14; Gal. v. 19, 25; Col. iii. 6.

WASH, to bathe, or purify. The Jews washed before eating, as they used their hands instead of knives and forks. Mark vii. 8. Kitto says that when some Pharisees remarked that our Lord ate with unwashed hands, they did not mean that he did not at all wash his hands, but that he did not plunge them according to their own practice. No Jew entered a house without removing his shoes or sandals; nor do Orientals to this day. We see the propriety of this when we consider that chairs not being used, all sat upon the floor, which, therefore, must be kept very clean.

WASHING THE FEET is among the most ancient, as well as the most obligatory, of the rites of Eastern hospitality. See Gen. xviii. 4; xix. 21; xxiv. 32; xix. 21. From 1 Sam. xxv. 41, it appears that servants and sons sometimes performed this rite as their appropriate duty. For the master of a house to do it was esteemed the greatest condescension, John xiii. 5. To wash the feet was not only a token of affectionate regard, but also a sign of humility. This union of affectionate attention and lowly service is found in the example of Jesus, John xiii. 4-15, and in 1 Tim. v. 10. The Hindus, like the Jews, walk home bare-foot from bathing, hence the appropriateness of the remark, "He that is washed, need not, save to wash his feet," John xiii. 10.

WATCH, a Roman guard, consisting of 60 soldiers, allowed the Jewish rulers to quell tumults. Matt. xxvii. 46.

WATCHES. The Jews in ancient times divided the night into three parts, the evening, the middle, and the morning, each part including four hours, Exod. xiv. 24; Judges vii. 19; 1 Sam. xi. 11; in after times, they divided the night into four, in imitation of the Romans, who relieved their sentinels at the end of every three hours, Matt. xiv. 45; Mark vi. 48. These parts of the night were usually denominated the first, second, third, and fourth sentinels; but they were sometimes styled the evening, midnight, cock-crowing, and morning, Matt. xiv. 25; Luke xii. 28; Mark xlii. 25.

WATER, miraculous changes or supplies of it, Exod. vii. 19; xiv. 21; xv. 23-25; turned into wine, John ii. 3; brought out of a rock, Exod. xvii. 6; Num. xi. 7-13; Josh. iii. 15-17; 2 Kings ii. 8, 14; iii. 20, 27; vi. 6; John ii. 3; Jesus walk on it, Matt. xiv. 25; Mark vi. 48; John vi. 19.

WAVERING condemned, Gen. xlix. 4; Heb. x. 23; James i. 6, 8; 2 Pet. ii. 14; iii. 16.

WEDDING GARMENT, Matt. xxii. 12. It was usual for persons to appear at marriage feasts, in sumptuous dress, adorned with florid embroidery. But as travelers were sometimes pressed in, and as they could not be provided with such garments, robes out of the wardrobes of the rich, were tendered to them. If such persons refused this offer, and appeared in their own apparel, it was highly resented, as a token of their pride and contempt for those who invited them.

WHITE STONE, Rev. ii. 17. This important passage, alludes to a custom of noting and perpetuating friendship, among the Greeks and the Romans, by dividing a pebble, and after each had inscribed his name on the flat surface, they were exchanged. The production of either half was sufficient to insure friendly aid, even from descendants. Voting was done by casting a white stone in approval, and a black one for rejection.

WIND, The original word is esemos, and occurs 29 times. It is never translated spirit.

WINK. There are no less than 13 distinct Hebrew and Greek words, translated by the word wink, either with or without the adjectives new, sweet, mixed, and strong. These each refer to some particular kind or condition of wine, which being all translated by one common generic term, fails to express the meaning of the original, and creates confusion in the mind of the reader. But as space forbids a full examination of the terms, the reader is referred to Esop's Cyclopaedia. Art. Wink.

WITCH, a person who pretends to

- tion, hence a public mocker of the Deity, and of his servants, the prophets; living on the credulity of the people, and thus bringing into contempt God's authorized ambassadors; a class of systematic and audacious plunderers and deceivers; hence the order that such should not be permitted to live. Exod. xxiii. 18; Lev. xx. 27. Witchcraft excludes from the kingdom of God. Gal. v. 20.
- WITNESSES, not to be fewer than two, Num. xxxiv. 20; Deut. xix. 5; xix. 15; Matt. xviii. 16; 2 Cor. xiii. 1; 1 Tim. v. 19.
- WIVES, their duty, Gen. iii. 16; Eph. v. 22; Col. iii. 18; Titus ii. 2; 1 Pet. iii. 1.
- WOMEN, how they should behave in public worship, 1 Cor. xi. 1-16; xiv. 24, 26; 1 Tim. ii. 11, 12; aged, their duty, Titus ii. 3; young, theirs, 1 Tim. v. 14; Titus ii. 4, 5; how to adorn themselves, 1 Tim. ii. 9; 1 Pet. iii. 3.
- WORD of God, the Scriptures, Mark vii. 13; Luke iv. 4; Eph. vi. 17; 1 Pet. i. 23, 25; the gospel, Luke v. 1; Acts iv. 31; xvi. 7, viii. 14; xiii. 7.
- WORLD, the earth and all the animals and vegetables on its surface; mankind generally. The word world in the common version is the rendering of no less than four different Hebrew words in the Old Testament, and four Greek words in the New. The Greek word aioum, age, or the plural form ages, is rendered world no less than 24 times, and the adjectival form of the word 2 times. GENESIS, the habitable, or inhabited earth, occurs 15 times, and is translated world 14 times, when the connection plainly shows in many instances that it has a limited meaning, as in Luke ii. 1; iv. 5; and earth only once. Gen. earth or land, is translated world once in Rev. xvi. 3. KOSMOS, order, regularity; the world, universe, &c.; occurs 180 times, and is rendered by world 155 times, and once adversary.
- not to be conformed to, Rom. xii. 2; Gal. vi. 14; James i. 27; xv. 4; 1 John ii. 15; v. 4.
- WORSHIP to be paid to God only, Exod. xx. 1-6; Matt. iv. 10; Acts x. 25, 26; xiv. 13-18; Col. ii. 18; Rev. xix. 10; xii. 8; public worship, Matt. xviii. 20; Acts i. 14; Heb. x. 24.
- WRATH of God on the impenitent, John iii. 20; Rom. i. 18; ii. 8, 9; Eph. v. 6.
- YOKE of Christ, easy, Matt. xi. 30; Rom. xii. 1; 1 John v. 8.
- YOUNG persons, their duty, Titus ii. 6; 1 Pet. v. 6; examples, 2 Tim. iii. 15; Jesus, Luke ii. 40-52.
- ZACCHÆUS, [pure, justified,] a superintendent of taxes at Jericho, Luke xix. 2.
- ZACHARIAH, [memory of the Lord,] several persons of this name. One of the chief was one of the minor prophets, son of Barachiah, who returned from Babylon with Zerubbabel, and began to prophesy about 520 years B. C. He wrote the book which bears his name, and predicted many things relating to the Messiah, and the future restoration of Israel.—The name also of the father of John the Baptist, Luke i.
- ZEAL, commended, Matt. v. 6; 1 Cor. xvi. 13; Gal. iv. 18; Jude 3; Rev. iii. 10; improper, reproved, ix. 15; Rom. x. 2.
- ZEBEDEE, [abundant portion,] the father of the apostles James and John, Matt. iv. 21.
- ZEBULON, [habitation, dwelling,] the Tribe of, a district of Palestine, on the west side of the lake of Genesareth.
- ZELOTES, or Zealots, a sect often mentioned in Jewish history. The name was probably given to Simon from his having been connected with it. He is also called Cassander, probably for the same reason; the word Kana in Hebrew, having the same meaning as Zelotes. Luke vi. 15; Acts i. 13.
- ZENAS, [stranger,] a doctor of the law, and a disciple, mentioned Titus iii. 13.
- ZEBUBABEEL, [a stranger at Babylon,] son of Salathiel, and of the posterity of David, Matt. i. 12.
- ZION, or SION, [a monument, sepulchre, turret,] the highest mountain in Jerusalem, where was built the city of David, Gen. xlviii. 2. Zion is often used poetically for Jerusalem, Micah iii. 12; and sometimes is applied to the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
